ROOSEVELT ASKS LAW TO ABOLISH GOLD PAYMENTS

Will Forbid Making Such Contracts.

The house passes Roosevelt's three billion, 300 million dollar public works bill; defeats sales tax, plugs loop hole in income tax law. Details on page 6.

Wheat lobby urges upon Secretary Wallace a "relief" plan which will cost the consuming public 330 million dollars this year; advances to farmers of most of this amount proposed. Details on page 6.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 26.—[Special.] — The administration today demanded of congress formal repudiation of the gold payment clause in all existing contracts, public and private. In addition the administration asked that no creditor in the future be allowed to stipulate payment in gold.

Secretary of the Treasury Woodin explained the action as the final expression in law of action already taken when America went off the gold standard in April and prohibited private holdings of gold.

It was described on Capitol hill as taking the United States "off the gold standard by statute."

Introduced in Both Houses.

The administration's request took the form of a joint resolution introduced in the house of representatives by Representative Steagall [Dem., Ala.], chairman of the banking and currency committee, and in the senate by Senator Fletcher [Dem., Fla.], chairman of the banking committee.

Emerging from a cabinet meeting shortly after the resolution had been introduced, Secretary Woodin announced that it had the support of the administration. Representative Steagall already had said that the President asked him to present the resolution.

Abrogates Gold Contracts.

Adoption of the resolution would mean that all contracts, including United States government bonds, although specifically payable in gold, could be discharged with any type of lawful money. In addition the resolution would prevent the writing of gold payment clauses into future contracts.

Secretary Woodin was emphatic in declaring that the United States was not threatening to abandon the gold standard by the introduction of the resolution. He declared that only the use of the so-called gold clause was affected and that the gold content of the dollar and the pledge to maintain all other national currencies on a parity with the gold dollar, both of which are integral parts of the gold standard act, were not touched by the resolution.

Only the second Liberty loan act, which provides for the payment of all government obligations in gold, is affected, he insisted.

Asked whether he thought that it was constitutional to abolish the gold payment obligation in existing contracts, the secretary indicated that he did not concern himself with that question since its settlement was out of his hands.

Legalizes Present Status.

Explaining why in his opinion the resolution did not change the existing situation, Secretary Woodin pointed out that since the banking holiday gold has not been paid out and that since the passage of the inflation amendment to the farm relief act all money has been legal tender.

"Since March 6, when the President declared a bank holiday," he said, "transactions involving payments in gold have been brought under control in order to protect and maintain the supply which constitutes a reserve for the nation's currency. Gold is not now paid, nor is it available for payment upon public or private debts.

"Recently the Thomas amendment to the agricultural relief act has made all coins and currencies of the United States legal tender for the payment of every debt, public and private. Due, however, to the language used, doubt has arisen whether obligations expressed to be payable in a particular kind of money, such as gold coin, may be satisfied by payment in other forms of legal tender.

Would Prevent Confusion.

"While the Supreme court of New York is reported to have held in a recent case that an obligation calling for payment in gold coin could be satisfied by payment of other lawful forms of money, confusion may be created if the existing legislation is differently construed in other jurisdictions. One of the purposes of the resolution is to remove any doubt

COAL MEN AND ATTORNEY HELD BY SCHOEMAKER

Chief Halts Meeting in Big Hotel.

The Trucking and Transportation exchange, a once potent racket through which Murray [The Camel] Humphries levied $500,000 a year on the city's hauling business, was believed exterminated yesterday in a spectacular police raid on a T-N-T meeting in the Bismarck hotel.

Last night, in token of Mayor Kelly's determination to smash all rackets, fifty-seven individuals who had evinced interest in the Humphries agency by reporting at the hotel meeting were sitting in cells. Among the prisoners were J. N. Lorenz, T-N-T attorney; Paul J. Alwart, one of the city's biggest independent coal dealers, and a mixed crowd of coal retailers, teamster union officials and minor union sluggers.

Rackets Given Second Blow.

An hour after the raid the administration dealt the rackets a second crippling blow from another quarter when 700 striking drivers of city refuse trucks were called to the city council chamber and told to quit their T-N-T affiliated union and join a legitimate organization or lose their jobs.

State's Attorney Courtney and Commissioner of Public Works Hewitt delivered the city hall ultimatum, and with telling results. Immediately after the council chamber meeting some 200 of the striking drivers, all under civil service rules, marched to Mayor Kelly's office and signed articles with the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, an American Federation of Labor affiliate, as the mayor and state's attorney urged.

Orders Drivers Protected.

Rebellion of the civil service men against the rule of John Sheridan Sr., whose reputed backers in the outlaw Chicago Teamsters' union are William [Klondike] O'Donnell and Willie [Three Fingered Jack] White, was expected to put a serious crimp in the strike, which has prevented refuse collections since last Monday. Police Commissioner Allman issued a general order for protection of all drivers returning to work this morning.

Their control of municipal employés slipping, by reason of Mayor Kelly's stand, the T-N-T promoters had called the Bismarck hotel meeting for the evident purpose, coal merchants said, of regaining their grip on the Chicago Retail Coal Merchants' association, which renounced the T-N-T two weeks ago after two years of expensive vassalage.

Charles J. Wilson, the elusive individual who acts as T-N-T secretary, circularized the merchant association's entire membership, and the independents as well, instructing them to attend for discussion of the "protection" of their trucks. No member of the merchants' association responded.

Police Do "Receiving."

"Ways and means will be submitted and decided upon to protect the subscribers in their delivery facilities," Mr. Wilson announced. "Your presence at this meeting is of vital concern to you."

Learning of the announcement, Mayor Kelly had Chief of Detectives William Schoemaker and Lieut. Arthur Katt of the hoodlum squad form a reception committee at the hotel entrance, Randolph and Wells streets.

Three of the T-N-T's alleged "big shots," Tom Munizzo, once arrested in the Capone syndicate quarters at 1 North La Salle street; John Sutherland, vice president of the striking refuse drivers, and Richard Finn, contractor, were seized as they entered the lobby and hustled to the detective bureau.

Lawyer Protests in Vain.

Attorney Lorenz, the coal dealers, and small fry were permitted to go to the parlor suite in the hotel, which Wilson had engaged. Neither the secretary nor John M. Bransfield, excavating contractor and reputed power in the T-N-T, showed up, which left Lawyer Lorenz to try remonstrating and to bear the brunt of Schoemaker's wrath.

"You can't treat us this way," he fumed as the chief's men herded the T-N-T adherents into the parlor. "I'm a citizen—we're all citizens in this meeting. You can't take us into custody. Well, if you have one, show me your warrant."

"Sit down," roared Schoemaker, ad-

CUSTOMS AGENTS COST MRS. BAUR 2 NIGHTS' SLEEP

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 26.—Mrs. Bertha Baur of Chicago is one of the first American tourists to suffer the inconveniences of Europe's new fear of money smugglers and of losses through inflation. Mrs. Baur passed through Berlin today on her way to attend the International Chamber of Commerce convention in Vienna. Berlin and Prague have decreed new sets of severe customs regulations. The Czechs are enforcing them without even warning tourists.

Mrs. Baur filled out the usual statement setting forth the funds she is carrying with her aboard a train entering Germany in order to obtain a certificate permitting her to take the money with her upon departing. She intrusted it to a sleeping car conductor. She was awakened by a German customs official at 2 a. m. He demanded her to count the money in his presence.

Mrs. Baur left Berlin on a night train for Vienna via Czechoslovakia. As she was entering her coach she was told that Czechoslovakia today had issued an order providing that no luggage could be registered through Czechoslovakia unless the duty was paid to the Czechs at the border. Mrs. Baur was warned that she must be ready for the Czech customs agents after 3 a. m. Consequently she lost another night's sleep. Mrs. Baur visited her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Bartle Bull, in London.

TWO POLICEMEN AT SOUTH BEND SLAIN BY BANDIT

South Bend, Ind., May 27 [Saturday.]—(AP)—Two policemen were killed, andother was critically wounded, and an unidentified bandit was shot fatally near the business district here just before midnight last night.

The slain officers were Patrolmen Delbert Thompson, 42, and Charles Farkas, 38. Patrolman D. A. Martin was shot just above the heart. The gunman, suspected of several filling station holdups, died in St. Joseph's an hour after the shooting from bullet wounds suffered when he encountered Patrolmen Farkas and Martin after having killed Thompson.

A second suspect, said by officers to have been a companion of the wounded man, was held in jail.

Hijackers Hold Up Beer Truck on Indiana Road

Valparaiso, Ind., May 26.—[Special.] Hijackers held up a truck owned by A. J. Canfield company, Chicago, loaded with beer, four miles west of here yesterday afternoon. The two drivers of the truck were held seven hours before being released.

Herriot Bares Roosevelt's Debt Terms

PARIS, May 26.—(AP)—Payment of the $19,261,432 war debt installment which France defaulted last December was an essential condition laid down by President Roosevelt in their recent Washington talks for any settlement of the Franco-American war debt problem. Former Premier Herriot announced this in the chamber of deputies today.

President Roosevelt told him, Herriot said, that if France would agree to pay the defaulted installment, negotiations for a settlement of the issue could be undertaken immediately.

"When I discussed the debts with Mr. Roosevelt," Herriot said, "I found a man as well disposed to us as a chief of state can be, but a man in the grip of difficulties. Mr. Roosevelt told me that the condition of all rearrangement was the payment of the Dec. 15 installment. Payment of this was the essential condition, according to him.

Cites British Negotiations.

"Negotiations have taken place between England and the United States. They have not been addressed to France, and it is thus that confusion has arisen."

Responding to the declaration by Deputy Henry Franklin-Bouillon that President Roosevelt is helpless in the matter because he is "the prisoner of congress," Herriot said:

"It does not seem wise to deprecate in advance the possible effort of Mr. Roosevelt. That would be incorrect and imprudent."

Premier Daladier took no part in the discussion. The cabinet maintains its position that it will not take the initiative unless it gets some new development from President Roosevelt, such as a moratorium on the June 15 payment, with which to face the chamber.

Herriot Wages Lone Fight.

Herriot is making virtually a lone fight for payment.

Writing in the Lyons Democrat, Herriot said that France and the United States both are awaiting a gesture, each from the other. The French, he said, are all agreed that it is impossible to pay the United States for sixty years if France is not paid by Germany.

"It is stupid to think that the United States can demand payments from us and at the same time oppose by high tariffs the entry of merchandise which alone can permit us to pay," Herriot wrote. "No one is more convinced of this than myself."

RACINE GIRL IS CHOSEN WORLD'S QUEEN OF CHARM

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

Miss Lillian Anderson, a violet eyed blonde from Racine, Wis., is the Queen of A Century of Progress. Amid thunderous applause from thousands who jammed the grand ballroom of the Hotel Sherman last night Rufus C. Dawes, president of the Exposition, placed a circlet of semi-precious stones upon her brow and proclaimed her the goddess of beauty of the World's Fair of 1933.

Miss Lorraine Nevens of Evanston, until recently a Northwestern university co-ed, was voted second in loveliness and charm among the 51 finalists in the $20,000 competition sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and fifteen affiliated newspapers. She will be first maid of honor to the Queen. Miss Nevens is 19 years old and lives at 534 Sheridan road, Evanston.

Miss Ruth Joyce Hardie of Chicago placed third in the contest and will be second maid of honor in the Queen's court. Miss Hardie, who is 23 years old, lives at 1108 North Lorel avenue.

Queen Gets $5,000 Prize.

Miss Anderson received a first prize of $5,000 and Miss Nevens and Miss Hardie won prizes of $3,000 and $2,000 respectively.

The 48 other girls who participated in the finals yesterday will form the Queen's court and will join the Queen and her two maids of honor in the round of dinners and receptions to be accorded them in the next nine days.

The Queen who will reign over Chicago's World's Fair is a winsome girl of 23 years with laughing eyes and a captivating smile. She was honestly stunned at the honor accorded her, and none could disbelieve her astonishment when she was told that she had been adjudged first in grace and charm and beauty among the bewitching young women who came from London and Paris and all quarters of the United States to take part in the finals of the contest.

Has No Stage Ambitions.

She has no ambition to enter the movies or go on the stage. At home in Racine, Wis., she is a cashier in a tearoom, a job she took some years ago, after she was forced to leave high school in her junior year because of financial difficulties. Her mother is dead. Her invalid father, Alexander Anderson, lives in Escanaba, Mich.

"I'm so excited I could cry," she said, her cheeks flushed with the excitement of a crowded evening. "Really, I think there are so many of the girls here who are prettier than I am. I only came along for the good time. I couldn't even begin to think of what to do with $5,000."

Miss Anderson has lived for years with Mrs. A. J. Crowley at 1429 College street, Racine. Mrs. Crowley acts as her unofficial guardian.

For those who like statistics, the Queen of the Fair is 5 feet 6 inches tall and weighs 125 pounds. Her closely cropped blonde hair has a golden sheen that is a natural heritage from Swedish ancestry.

Maid of Honor a Brunette.

The first maid of honor, Miss Nevens, is a striking brunette, slim, graceful, with gray eyes framed by dark eyé lashes. Miss Hardie, the second maid of honor, represents a third type. Her light brown hair frames a comely face with deep blue eyes.

The seven judges gave Miss An-

WEATHER—Fair.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

This morning wonders upon wonders will be unveiled to an expectant nation at the World's Fair.

Three miles of valid treasures of instruction at once profound and thrilling, and of amusing trifles await the world in the pavilions and on the promenades and waterways of a still unfinished but vast exposition of arts, sciences, and industries that celebrates the 100th anniversary of the incorporation of Chicago as a town.

Tonight the twelve hours of dedicatory pageantry and oratory—the four orators promise to be mercifully brief—will culminate in a supreme audacity of 20th century man.

A beam of light which for forty years has been traveling toward our planet from Arcturus—that yellow star which is the fourth in brightness in the entire heavens—will generate a faint current which will be so magnified in American observatories that it will set going a mighty searchlight on the carillon tower of the Exposition's Hall of Science.

A Moment to Make You Reverent.

Then exultant music of cannon, of bells, of bands, and of choruses and onlookers singing the national anthem.

Audacity never went farther in the planning of a ceremonial to make mankind gasp.

Already brilliant prospects seem certain for the five months of this colossal combination of science and circus which, like the big Buffalo World's Fair of 1901 has been launched to commemorate A Century of Progress and is so named.

Last evening's reports to the Fair's auditors showed that the advance sale of souvenir tickets has passed four million.

On that basis a total attendance of at least fifty million visitors between now and November is predicted. Paying visitors at our Fair of '93 numbered twenty-one and one-half millions.

Yesterday's intake for souvenir tickets passed $100,000.

And No Subsidies.

Another late release from the Fair's controller announces that up to last evening thirty-seven and one-half millions have been spent on the creation of the Exposition—A Century of Progress corporation spending twelve and one-half millions, the exhibitors nineteen and one-fourth millions, and the concessionaires six millions. On the Fair of '93 was spent, all told, about forty-three millions. That one received generous federal, state, and municipal subsidies. The new one none.

This triumph over depression will be dedicated on behalf of the President of the United States—too busy to come—by his postmaster general and grand almoner of patronage, James A. Farley of New York, a hearty, forthright individual often called "Genial James." The Chicago Fair of forty years ago was dedicated by President Grover Cleveland, also hearty and forthright, but not invariably genial.

Two Miles of Procession.

Military and civic pageantry streaming down Michigan avenue from Chicago avenue to Soldiers' field between 9 and 11 o'clock will attend the orators—Mr. Farley, Gov. Horner of Illinois, Mayor Kelly of Chicago, and Rufus Dawes, president of the Exposition.

For the multitude that will hear them will be 115,000 seats in the Doric stadium on the field at fifty cents each—the regular Exposition admission fee.

The gates to the field will be opened at 9 o'clock, half an hour after the Exposition Grounds open.

At 9:30 comes the concert for the waiting audience by Cavello's band.

An Elgin time ball at the Stadium's north entrance will drop at 10 o'clock—signal for the unfolding of a glittering international pageant by men, women, and children of this city of many nationalities.

An hour later the first advance guard of the procession escorting the statesmen will enter the field, the richly caparisoned Black Horse troop opening the way for Farley, Horner, Kelly, Dawes, former Senator Harry New, the federal government's commissioner to the Fair; Secretary of Commerce Daniel Roper, and the senators from Illinois, Lewis and Dieterich.

Rumble and Melody.

Then clank of artillery to fill your ears and tramp of National Guardsmen, and blaring of school and academy bands.

Now look!

For here you will get a refreshing eyeful of the Queen of the Fair and her fifty ladies of honor, whom THE TRIBUNE and associated newspapers and their readers have assembled from homeland and from foreign lands to bestow "the charm touch" on the opening pageantry and the opening days of the Exposition.

Swirling onto the field after queen and court will come American veterans of three wars, and veteran British, French, Italian, Belgian, Polish, and Czechoslovakian military groups, Boy Scouts and Sea Scouts, bugle corps, and Scotch, Welsh, German, Swedish, Norwegian, Danish, Finnish, Hungarian, Lithuanian, Ukrainian, Jugo-Slavic, Assyrian, and Moroccan nationality groups—all in native costume.

Pretty dazzling processional—all that—for a community whose governmental beginnings and whose present are spanned by the lifetimes of men still living!

Behold the Queen!

Now silence, for the Queen will be handing a pen to President Dawes—of whom Brother Charlie once said, "I think Rufe was born to be president of a World's Fair"—and with it he will sign a proclamation declaring the World's Fair open.

Then Mme. Cyrena Van Gordon will lead the multitude in the national anthem.

Again silence.

Amid it George Craig Stewart, Protestant Episcopal bishop of Chicago, will make the dedicatory prayer.

Dawes, Kelly, Horner and Farley, in the order named, will follow the clergyman with—again the promise—"brief addresses." If the promise is kept it alone will make the dedication memorable.

For the rest of the day there will be official luncheons, receptions and concerts—Mr. and Mrs. Dawes presiding at the receptions in the Hall of Science and great Frederick Stock conducting a concert by a symphony orchestra of 125 musicians and a chorus of 2,500 men and women.

The Kiss of Light.

Just before Arcturus delivers its kiss of light—not a bad phrase—Dawes will mount the rostrum in the hall and talk for ten minutes. Prof. Philip Fox, astronomer, and Prof. Edwin Frost will also discourse.

Then bestowal of the far flung caress from another planet!

'Tis said the "Great Hall" and the courts of the Science building will give nearly 40,000 persons a view of that amazing episode.

Smaller ceremonies of dedication and official visits to exhibits—of which the federal government's display alone is in perfect readiness—will fill in the chinks of time in the epochal day. By midnight toiling Brother Rufus should have paid in full for his glories.

Seventh of Republic's Fairs.

A Century of Progress is the seventh of the republic's World's Fairs that were really World's Fairs, and it follows by 2,417 years the first World's Fair in the recorded progress of mankind. That first one was held in Shushan, Persia, with King Ahasuerus as president and promoter, a monarch better known, outside the Bible's record of him, as Xerxes I., the Xerxes whom the Greeks gave the awful drubbing at Salamis. His fair was open six months and wound up with a party which lasted seven days and at which the president got wildly tipsy and grossly insulted his wife. All the scandal you can read in the first chapter of the Book of Esther.

That fair, which, according to George Collins Levey, C. M. G., the learned journalist who was commissioner to eight modern World's Fairs, was not only the first recorded one, but—except for the scandal of the seven day party—also a big success.

Princes and people came to it from 127 provinces and the monarch, says the Bible, "showed the riches of his glorious kingdom and the honor of his excellent majesty."

His wife, Vashti, was head of the women's department of the Fair and did a lot of entertaining—without scandal.

Record of Other Fairs.

The six American fairs which came before A Century of Progress and possessed genuine international significance were:

The Centennial, Philadelphia, 1876, commemorating the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of the republic.

The World's Industrial and Cotton Centennial exposition, New Orleans, 1884, commemorating the hundredth anniversary of the establishment of the cotton industry in the United States.

The Pan-American exposition, Buffalo, 1901, "in celebration," in the words of its official proclamation, "of the progress of the western hemisphere in the nineteenth century."

Reporter Votes Himself Thanks.

It took me four hours to dig out all those data from Ahasuerus to A Century of Progress for you, and I hope you do not resent my zeal.

A Century of Progress celebrates the most dazzling contrast in the world's history. It celebrates, pictures, epitomizes and dramatizes this city's—and the world's—progress in science, industry, art and invention since 1833 when Chicago had 250 inhabitants, was just finishing its first Presbyterian, Roman Catholic and Baptist chapels, and was feverishly building—also agueishly—165 frame stores and dwellings to accommodate a population that was to number 800 a few months later.

Now we number 3½ millions!

In that year of just a century ago, Chicago's first newspaper—the Democrat—was established, and its first regular school was opened.

Religiously, commercially, educationally we were going forward a hundred years ago!

But pray with George Stewart this morning on Soldiers' field for the great Fair that celebrates the distance we have gone and the heights we have climbed.

For many a World's Fair has encountered cruel handicaps—London's in 1861 the death of prince consort, which plunged court and kingdom in gloom; Vienna's in 1873 the cholera; New Orleans' in 1884 mountainous debt; Chicago's in 1893 a money panic and Mayor Harrison's assassination; Buffalo's in 1901 President McKinley's assassination; San Francisco's in 1915 the world war, and Philadelphia's sesqui-centennial in 1926 rotten politics and shameless graft that ruined it.

So pray, pray hard with Father George.

From Onion Patch to Palaces.

One more contrast:

Two hundred and sixty years ago the soldier and explorer, Joliet, and the priest, Marquette, were here—first recorded visit of white men to us. We were mostly swamp then—no buildings, no anything but water and wilderness. The Oibways had a word for us.

It was "She-kag-ong."

Today—

The cloud-capp'd towers, the gorgeous palaces,
The solemn temples.

And so today we can pray thankfully and sing joyfully while star, sending light unto star, signals the beginning of our second century.

ROBBED BY TWO BANDITS.

Harry Renshaw, 27 East 98th street, manager of the Englewood Sausage company store at 739 East 59th street, was tied up and robbed of $35 yesterday by two men. He was locked in the rear of the store. Mrs. William Hall, 5919 South Union avenue, a customer, later released him.

FOX SHOWS HOW ARCTURUS' LIGHT WILL OPEN FAIR

Adler Director Exhibits Model of System.

Dr. Philip Fox, director of the Adler planetarium, yesterday demonstrated a working model illustrating the method by which a beam from the star Arcturus will be caught tonight by the telescopes of four observatories and transmuted into energy which will turn on the lights of the Century of Progress Exposition. The model will be demonstrated for World's Fair visitors this summer.

The exhibit has a model of the star, miniature telescopes and small switches, operating on the same principles to be used by the big observatories tonight. Dr. Fox explained the mechanism and the astronomical principles employed in the experiment. Afterwards, the sky as it will appear tonight, providing the weather is clear, was shown in the planetarium room.

No Chance of Failure.

Any one of the four observatories taking part will be able to furnish enough energy from the beam of Arcturus to throw on the switches which will light up the exposition, Dr. Fox said, thus eliminating some of the risk of cloudy weather. Because the four stations must operate together, however, the power switches will be operated manually at the observatories unable to catch the beam because of clouds.

Dr. Fox showed how the huge telescopes of the participating observatories will be trained on Arcturus several minutes before the scheduled time of the ceremony. At the eye of each, he said, will be a photo-electric cell and connected amplifying equipment. The observatories are Yerkes at Williams Bay, Wis., Allegheny at Pittsburgh, University of Illinois at Urbana, and Harvard at Cambridge, Mass.

Amplify Tiny Star Beam.

When the beam from Arcturus strikes the telescopes the photo-electric cells will create a current which will be amplified millions of times and close the switches, sending the current over telegraph lines to Chicago. Each of the observatories will play a part in lighting sections of the exposition. The first will be sent from Harvard. Then the telescopes of Allegheny, Urbana and Yerkes will be opened in turn, with the final impulse lighting the huge searchlight over the exposition grounds.

Many months were required in building and perfecting the model exhibit at the planetarium. Perfect operation was obtained in yesterday's demonstration. Dr. Fox said that a member of the planetarium staff will be on duty to operate and explain the exhibit during the exposition.

FARLEY ARRIVES THIS MORNING TO OPEN WORLD FAIR

Postmaster General Farley will arrive at 9:35 a. m. today on the Liberty Limited of the Pennsylvania railroad to open the Fair as the official representative of President Roosevelt.

Mr. Farley will be met at the train by President Dawes and U. Grant-Smith, protocol officer of the Fair; Gov. Horner, and Mayor Kelly. From the station he will be taken to Chicago avenue and Michigan boulevard for the start of the parade.

Following the opening ceremony in Soldiers' field, Mr. Farley will be the guest of President Dawes for a conducted tour of the Exposition grounds. A luncheon, tendered to one thousand guests by the Fair, at the Pabst Blue Ribbon Casino, will follow the tour. Mr. Farley will be taken to the Englewood station in the afternoon to board the Broadway Limited for Washington, D. C.

NOTES OF THE WORLD'S FAIR

The first rocket car to cross the Sky Ride made the trip yesterday at 1 p. m. Kip Walters of the Walters Electrical company piloted the car.

The first load of California wine, rushed here in record time, will arrive at the Exposition grounds in the morning. The wine is bottled under the new regulation permitting the mixing of Burgundy and seltzer water in proportions so that the ultimate drink will not be more than 3.2 per cent alcohol by weight. The wine will be available both for drinking and for dedication purposes. The load will be delivered to the Streets of Paris by the Mission Dry corporation.

Col. John Stewart, chief of works, announced yesterday that workmen will not interfere with opening day visitors. Passes to workmen are issued for only Saturday and Sunday and will be renewed if necessary. Workmen are instructed to keep out of sight as much as possible, and all tools not in use must be cached. Wherever possible all machinery was removed last night.

Yung Kwar, Chinese commissioner to the Fair, arrived yesterday on the Baltimore and Ohio.

One of the interesting exhibits in the Hall of Science will be that of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. It will include a model of the giant electrostatic generator designed by Dr. Robert J. Van de Graaff, and a new type of stroboscope developed by Prof. Harold E. Edgerton, which makes it possible to stop motion in high speed machinery. A wind tunnel is shown, such as is used in testing the behavior of a model airplane at various speeds.

Tuesday will be the lightest average day during the week, according to an estimate made yesterday. On an estimated total attendance of 50,000,000 visitors, the following daily average percentage was calculated: Mondays, 8.4 per cent; Tuesdays, 8.0; Wednesdays, 10.3; Thursdays, 11.2; Fridays, 9.8; Saturdays, 11.3, and Sunday, carrying almost half the total load, 40.5 per cent. June 13 will be the lightest day, with 100,000 visitors, and Chicago day, Aug. 10, the heaviest, with one million. The average daily attendance is figured at 250,000. Today's attendance is calculated as 300,000 and the daily peak will be reached at 2:30 p. m.

Mrs. Gertrude Lintz of Brooklyn arrived yesterday with two gorillas and eleven trained chimpanzees to conduct Gorilla Villa on the Midway. Moss, a white gorilla, threw the Midway into a furore when she broke the lock on a bag belonging to Mrs. Mildred Blaydes, an attendant, and tore a silk petticoat to shreds.

Workmen working night and day to put the finishing touches to the exhibit of the American Radiator and Standard Sanitation corporation are laughing at the other workmen on the Exposition grounds. The recently perfected steam refrigerated air conditioning plant, to be exhibited during the Fair, is now in working order and provides a constant temperature of 60 degrees in the building. The Garden of Comfort in the Radiator exhibit will provide a cool lounging place for summer visitors.

The Pantheon, depicting battle scenes of the world war, will be dedicated at 2:30 tomorrow, with military officials attending.

A delegation of 250 cadets from St. Johns Military academy at Delafield, Wis., all in full dress uniform, arrived yesterday over the Milwaukee railroad to participate in this morning's parade and opening ceremony in Soldier field.

5 BIG BUILDINGS AT EXPOSITION ARE WINDOWLESS

Illumination Is Entirely Under Man's Control.

Five of the major buildings at A Century of Progress are windowless, permitting constant artificial control over the interior illumination. These five—the Hall of Science, the Hall of Social Science, the Travel and Transport building, the General Exhibits Group, and the Federal building—are also similar in the modernistic outlay of curving partitions between exhibits, and ramps which slope at small angles and provide complete circuits of the buildings.

The plan of each of these buildings, however, is strikingly dissimilar, although in most of them there is a main artery which branches off into the various sections of the exhibits.

HALL OF SCIENCE

The Hall of Science is a 3 story building in the form of a gigantic letter "U" with a large circular court at the main entrance at 16th street. In the center of the court is a pool and surrounding it are various shops. The ground floor houses more than 35 exhibits, mostly of drugs and medical specialties, and a large drug store.

A ramp leads from the circular terrace to the great hall, which occupies most of the second, or main floor, and is two floors high. Prominent in the great hall is a large diagram of the sciences, indicated as branches on a tree, whose roots are the science of mathematics. This tree occupies a large part of the east wall and extends the full height of the room. Names of famous scientists and philosophers, with quotations concerning them, run in squares along the four walls of the hall. The hall is 260 feet long, 60 feet wide, and 57 feet high.

Four Ramps in Building.

There are four ramps in the building, which may be traveled for a complete view of the exhibits from the ground floor to the mezzanine, the third floor. The mezzanine runs as a gallery around the great hall.

One of the important exhibits in the building is the carillen tower at the southwest corner where the J. C. Deagan company has installed chimes. Other exhibits are those from Loyola university, Marquette university, the state department of health and the Union Carbide and Carbon company, all of which are on the ground floor. The motif of this floor is the evolution of chemical and physical processes, culminating in the achievements to be seen in the great hall.

GENERAL EXHIBITS GROUP

To the south of the Hall of Science is the General Exhibits group of buildings. This group has 211,237 square feet of space. The northernmost of the five buildings in this group is connected with the great hall of the Hall of Science by a double-decked arcade.

A main artery, 995 feet in length, runs through the five buildings. Between the five are wide courts, 100 feet square, opening toward the lagoon. The buildings, which spread off to the east of the artery, are devoted—from the north to the south—to Mineral Industries, Graphic Arts and Paper Products, Furniture and Office Equipment, Jewelry and Cosmetics, and Textiles. The color scheme varies in each building, but the predominant shades are light blue and silver.

Business Machines Prominent.

A prominent exhibit is that of the International Business Machines company. This is a tall dome shaped structure, in a dull gold shade, which occupies the major portion of the third building in the group and extends two floors, the full height of the building.

The first four buildings are rectangular in shape. The fifth building, housing the textile exhibits, is oval.

The rectangular buildings are 110 feet wide and 160 feet long. The central architectural feature of each building is a great hall, 40 feet wide by 160 long with a ceiling the height of the building. In the halls the exhibits are arranged along the sides and grouped in the center.

Stairs and ramps lead to the upper levels, affording a complete view of the hall. Adding to a diversified color scheme, the posts in each building are different shades of blue and silver. There are four entrances on both the east and west sides of the building.

Among the exhibits are those of the Illinois Steel company and the Burrougs Adding Machine company. Most of the concessions are on the second floor.

THE FEDERAL BUILDING

The Federal building, which houses the principal exhibits of the United States government, lies across the bridge on Northerly island, slightly south of the main entrance to the Hall of Science.

This structure is 620 feet long and 300 feet wide, two stories high, with a rotunda 70 feet in diameter, surrounded by a 75 foot dome. A curved staircase leads to the second floor of the interior, from where the exhibits are seen, ranged in the two long wings flanking the rotunda.

One of the exhibits in this building is that of the Department of Agriculture, which depicts through pictures and farming tools the changes in farm operations during the last century as a result of improvements in engineering methods and the use of machinery. This exhibit, on the first floor, includes charts showing the gathering and dissemination of market information and analyses of business trends.

All Departments Shown.

All the other government departments have exhibits in this building, and there are also exhibits from the Smithsonian institution, the shipping board, the government printing office, the national advisory committee for aeronautics, the Panama canal, the library of congress, and the National Capital park.

In the treasury department exhibit on the first floor are examples of the work of the bureau of the mint, the bureau of engraving and printing, the bureau of narcotics, and the public health service.

One section of the department of state exhibit is a collection of historical documents and records, showing the growth of the department in the last century.

War Department Exhibit.

The war department plans to illustrate methods of construction, covering river and harbor improvement, the Mississippi river flood control, the Wilson dam, and the Nicaragua canal survey.

For the entertainment of distinguished visitors the building includes, in addition to the exhibits, a large reception room, a model kitchen, a pantry and caterer's quarters, and offices for government officials who will conduct guests and representatives of foreign governments through the exhibits.

In the department of commerce section is illustrated the work of the aeronautics branch, the bureau of standards, the census bureau, the bureau of fisheries, the bureau of lighthouses, and the coast and geodotic survey.

The Federal building forms the base of a triangle, the other two sides, extending to an apex at the east, being devoted to the Hall of States.

The Hall of States is two stories high. The inside of the triangle is a court, with a sunken garden, from which there are entrances to the state exhibits. The products of each state are on view in the separate inclosures.

HALL OF SOCIAL SCIENCES

To the south of the Federal building is the Hall of Social Sciences. This building is connected with the Hall of Science by a bridge across the lagoon. The building is 700 feet long and comprises 238,079 square feet. Ramps lead from the ground to the main floor.

On the ground floor the evolution of the American family will be illustrated by means of a revolving stage with lifelike figures. The first scene will illustrate the colonial family, with the women spinning and a view of the men at work in the fields. The second scene illustrates the stage coach era and the formation of larger communities. The third scene is the family of today. The apartment, complete with radio and refrigerator and other modern household appurtenances, is shown as part of a large building, and views of an automobile highway, a railroad, and an airplane are seen through the window.

A relief map near by illustrates the nine culture areas of North America as a study in anthropology.

Through the use of traveling lights on illuminated maps the visitor will be shown the international distribution of the sources of food supply for the dinner table.

In the educational exhibits section are charts of educational statistics and problems. One of these has been prepared by the Radcliffe College for Girls at Cambridge, Mass. Results of new methods of teaching are shown.

Through the use of motion pictures on the first floor the development of the city of Chicago will be shown.

Other anthropological exhibits on the first floor include an exact reproduction of an Indian mound from central Illinois with skeletons and the rough tools used by the builders, and a section of rock taken from the Castillo grotto in Spain.

Communications Exhibit.

Another section of the Hall of Social Science houses the Radio and Communications building. The central exhibits in this building, which is to the east of the main artery, have been provided by the American Telephone and Telegraph company and the Illinois Bell Telephone company. The part of wire and wireless in modern life is shown through the actual use of the instruments of communication.

In the Electrical building, which forms a semicircle at the south end of the Hall of Social Science, is illustrated the generation, distribution, and utilization of electrical energy. In the center of the building is a landscaped court with a fountain. On the east side of the circle are two bas-relief panels, 50 feet square, dedicated to "Light, the beginning of all things" and "Energy, the substance of all things."

In the circular hall on the first floor are exhibits by manufacturers of electrical equipment, including generators and lighting systems. The hall is flanked by two stairways exiting on a series of terraces.

TRAVEL-TRANSPORT BLDG.

The fifth building, the Travel and Transport building, is located just south of 31st street. The dome, which is suspended by cables, has an interior diameter of 310 feet at the base. The building is two stories high and there are staircases inside and outside. An escalator has been installed by the Otis Elevator company. The Great Hall of the building, which lies at the north end, has a barrel shaped dome 80 feet high. Marine, land, and air transportation vehicles are shown there.

First Automobile Exhibited.

The first automobile ever operated in this country is one of the exhibits in the building, in contrast to modern motor cars near by. Other vehicles shown are the stage coaches and post chaises of a century ago, and a reproduction of the Rocket, the first practical locomotive.

In the upper interior of the dome is a pictorial representation of the development and use of petroleum products in transportation. Another effective contrast of exhibits is an airplane manufactured twenty-five years ago alongside a modern airplane.

At the south end of the building are the railroad exhibits. These show sections of track and early types of trains compared to the modern locomotives. A section of automobile exhibits is placed to the front and north of the Great Hall.

COURTESY URGED BY MAYOR TO CITY'S GUESTS

Mayor Kelly issued a proclamation yesterday welcoming to Chicago the visitors to the World's Fair. In it he requested city employés to be especially courteous to the visitors and asked Chicago motorists to give motorists from other sections of the country the right of way when possible.

"Chicago is glad to have you," the proclamation read, "and hopes you will appreciate the beauties of our city so that you will wish to come back. Chicago desires you to have the best time you have ever had in your lives. We urge visitors to study our glorious lake front so they will understand why we call it America's playground."

The mayor has ordered a complaint bureau established in the corridor of the main floor of the city hall. The bureau will handle any complaints that visitors wish to make. The mayor said he wished to have everything done to earn for Chicago the reputation of being America's most courteous city.

FAIR'S SUCCESS ASSURED BEFORE ITS GATES OPEN

Aid to Trade Exceeds All Expectations.

The vanguard of an army of more than one million persons who already have booked transportation and reservations began moving yesterday towards Chicago and the World's Fair.

Roseate predictions that A Century of Progress would bring millions to the city and give business here a stimulus toward real prosperity have started to come true beyond all expectations. The World's Fair is a success before its gates have been opened.

Only a few persons in Chicago have realized the tremendous enthusiasm which the World's Fair has created outside of Chicago. A survey yesterday of railroads, hotels and travel agencies gave proof that this enthusiasm not only exists but that it will be demonstrated visibly here within a few weeks when the hundreds of thousands of visitors begin pouring into the city.

100,000 Contract for Tours.

Two of the major travel agencies, the Travel Guild and the American Express Agency, reported that they have sold tours to the Fair to nearly 100,000 persons who will visit Chicago within the next two months. Both of these agencies have accurate indications that this number will be trebled before the Fair is many weeks old.

William J. Hennessy, convention manager of the Association of Commerce, has been working overtime for months completing the booking here during the Fair period of close to 1,000 major conventions which will be attended by more than one million persons. The American Legion convention alone will bring a quarter of a million visitors to the city.

Considering only the convention visitors, it has been estimated as conservative by Mr. Hennessy's bureau that the average expenditure of each visitor while in the city will total $50. This means an item of $50,000,000 in business from those who come to the conventions.

Reservations Grow Daily.

An accurate estimate of the total number of visitors who will come only to see the Fair is impossible at this time, but the railroads have booked in advance reservations for several hundred thousand, with the number growing daily. Other hundreds of thousands will, of course, come to Chicago by automobile and bus.

Chicago hotels will be doing "prosperity" business from today until the end of the exposition. Managers of the large loop establishments said that bookings for the early days of the Fair, including today, had far exceeded their expectations. They were emphatic in pointing out, however, no shortage of rooms has yet developed.

MILK EXHIBIT TELLS STORY OF HUMAN PROGRESS

'Color Organ' to Make Pictures 'Live.'

BY PAUL POTTER.

The Dairy Industries building is the first imposing structure which will greet the eyes of visitors to A Century of Progress today as they cross the bridge to the north end of Northerly island. On the building is emblazoned the inscription "A Vital Story of Human Progress."

On entering the building visitors will find themselves in a darkened hall before a large screen showing huge animated pictures in colors.

An artist sits at a keyboard as if to play a pipe organ. Yet not a sound is heard.

As he touches the instruments on the keyboard the huge white screen comes to life, presenting a visualization of the history of the dairy cow and the contribution of her milk to the progress of the human race.

See New Rival for Talkies.

In a quiet voice the color effects are explained by a sound recording device synchronized with the "color organ" itself. In a few minutes the audience has been treated to a peculiar form of educational entertainment which scientists predict will some day become as popular as the "talkies" but with appeals to the sense of color harmonies added to motion pictures with sound combined.

Through the halls of this building without a window the crowds will pass by unique exhibits of the forces which have built up an industry rated forth in volume of business among all American industries. A class in psychology at Northwestern university coined the name of "Temple of Moo" for this structure and its novel contents. It was erected at a cost of $210,000 by contributions from 1,665 firms and individuals in the nation's dairy industry.

Increase Milk Production.

In one exhibit are seen the component parts of milk and its products, testifying to how perfect a food the dairy cow supplies. In her native wild state, a sign states, this cow had barely enough milk for her calf. Breeding and years of scientific development have enabled her progeny not only to supply enough milk for her calf for six months but an extra 8 quarts daily, or enough for 4 adults and 6 children; a total of 3,500 quarts annually.

In another exhibit a gentle bovine made of papier maché discloses through an opening in one side just how the feed she consumes is converted into the creamy fluid that sustains life. She is labeled "Nature's greatest food factory."

FAIR'S TRAFFIC LINES READY FOR OPENING CROWD

Street Cars Expected to Carry 50%.

BY HAL FOUST.

Here's how to get to the World's Fair for the opening day today.

Street cars, buses, elevated lines, the Illinois Central railroad, taxicabs, and private cars will carry between 500,000 and 1,000,000 persons to A Century of Progress this week end. A little forethought in choosing your conveyance and your route may save avoidable delays and inconviences.

Maj. E. S. J. Irvine, chief of the transportation division of the Fair administration, hesitated to make any definite prediction of attendance during the two opening days of the Exposition because there are so many uncertain factors to consider, including the weather. However, his plans call for facilities that should accommodate a peak day of 700,000 without any more congestion than is usually encountered in large gatherings such as big football games.

Expect Smooth Operation.

No effort has been made to encourage a peak attendance on the opening days, so, unless the administration is caught by surprise, the attendace will not far exceed 300,000 or 350,000 either today or tomorrow, and this number can be handled with comparative dispatch and comfort, providing the recommendations of the traffic engineers are followed.

Automobile owners are advised to leave their cars at home and to patronize the public utilities, saving time and money. Maj. Irvine, in giving this advice, is aware that it will be ignored by tens of thousands, and he has made his plans accordingly.

Pedestrian ramps, pavements, and pay parking spaces have been built, but it would be financially impractical to provide sufficient facilities to accommodate all World's Fair patrons in private automobiles. There will be traffic jams such as motorists have experienced in attending football games at Soldiers' field.

A parking lot with a capacity of 7,000 automobiles is situated between the Illinois Central tracks and the Fair Grounds with passerelles for the passengers to walk over the through traffic driveway without hazard or delay. Vacant lots west of the tracks are also being used for parking. No private cars will be allowed within the grounds. Intramural transportation is furnished by specially designed buses.

Many to Use Street Cars.

The Chicago Surface lines are expected to carry 50 per cent or more of the World's Fair crowds. Although street car extensions across the Illinois Central railroad will not be ready for the opening of the fair, existing tracks approach within a few blocks of the entrances. The 11th street bridge will be used by pedestrians and there are overhead foot bridges to exposition gates at 18th street, 23d street, and 31st street. Another entrance at 35th street will be ready about June 8.

The surface lines, about June 3, will open an extension of tracks over the 23d street viaduct, with a loop terminal at the 18th street entrance to A Century of Progress.

An extension eastward from the Roosevelt road tracks, on a viaduct to be built over the Illinois Central, was authorized in an ordinance adopted by the city council this week. Unless unexpected delays are encountered, this improvement will be finished about Aug. 1.

Buses on Shuttle Lines.

The bus company will operate shuttle lines between the loop and the exposition. Regular bus transfers will be honored on these special carriers. One of the bus lines will connect with the enlarged elevated station at Roosevelt road. The rapid transit trains also will stop at Cermak road and at 18th street.

The Illinois Central railroad announced a World's Fair service at a special fare of 10 cents. This rate will apply on the main line as far south as 75th street and on the South Chicago branch as far as Stony Island avenue.

This 10 cents is to apply to special World's Fair trains only. However, J. V. Lanigan, traffic manager for the railroad, said that commuters to the loop also will enjoy a rate cut on a sliding scale, averaging about 50 per cent.

Other railroads and suburban lines likewise announced rate cuts for A Century of Progress.

derson only one vote more than the second two and were deadlocked for a period in trying to reach a decision between Miss Hardie and Miss Nevens.

Review of Beauties Today.

The queen and her court will take part in the ceremonial review in Michigan boulevard today before the formal opening of the Exposition. They will be seated on floats in a dazzling display of pulchritude.

They had a taste last night of the gay round of activities outlined for them. A formal dinner preceded the coronation of Miss Anderson, and celebrated entertainers presented a lively floor show.

The ceremonies took on the appearance of a semi-official inauguration of A Century of Progress when Mr. Dawes took the floor to name the winners. The identity of the queen and her two maids in waiting had been kept a closely guarded secret until then, and none of the girls, with the exception of the three fortunate winners, who had been pledged to silence, knew what name was to be announced.

Announcement Made by Dawes.

"This occasion will go down into the annals of the history of Chicago and the world as a high spot in the opening ceremonies preceding the official inaugural ceremonies of A Century of Progress tomorrow," said Mr. Dawes.

"Speaking in behalf of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, which, with 15 other newspapers of America and its Paris edition, has sponsored this thrilling competition, it has been emphasized that this is not a contest alone for beauty but one to find 51 girls of charm, girls of character.

"We are celebrating tonight the choosing of 51 girls of whom the world can be proud."

Mr. Dawes then read the names of the three winners and Miss Anderson came forward to receive the glittering diadem which she will wear frequently at formal occasions in connection with the World's Fair. The guests enthusiastically indorsed the decision of the judges with their plaudits and the contestants themselves cheered the winners. There were no jealousies among the group of girls who had already displayed a spirit of sportsmanship rare in such a contest.

Mayor Welcomes Contestants.

Mayor Kelly addressed the 51 young women, telling them that Chicago welcomed them with open arms.

"What is ours is yours," he said. "Enjoy our people and the thrills of this great World's Fair. Chicago toasts you. Chicago salutes you—every one a queen."

The coronation ceremonies were broadcast by W-G-N and a coast to coast network of the National Broadcasting company. Quin Ryan of W-G-N was the announcer.

7 Judges Make Selection.

The finals in the contest lasted more than three hours yesterday and the 51 young women were given a searching scrutiny by the seven judges, who were Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, Mrs. Howard Linn, Mrs. Robert R. McCormick, Mrs. William H. Mitchell, Mrs. Pauline Palmer, Mrs. Howard Ellis, and Wallace Kirk.

Points were scored for beauty, for poise, for voice, for carriage. It was whispered that the Queen's graceful bearing gave her the minute margin over her closest competitors.

The judges conversed with the young women, listened to them read aloud, watched their smiles, the way they sat down, the manner in which they shook hands. The judging took place under the glare of spot lights calculated to reveal the slightest flaw in physical beauty.

The judges knew the girls only by the numbered arm bands they wore. There was no clew to the girls' identity and the judges could not know whether the young woman before them was from Chicago, from Paris or London, from the far west or the east.

Praise Girls' Attitude.

When the judges exchanged notes among themselves they discussed with admiration the good sportsmanship shown by all the girls. Each contestant had promised to support wholeheartedly the choices of the judges and their attitude during the finals and at the coronation ceremonies last night indicated that they had made the pledge in sincere good faith.

When the group entered the Bal Tabarin in the Hotel Sherman, where the finals were held, the task of the judges seemed almost a hopeless one. The girls, all garbed in identical gowns of egg shell taffeta with scarlet slippers to contrast, presented a bewildering array of beauty. The judges were frankly perplexed as they surveyed the array of radiant blondes, curly headed brunettes, and the few vivacious redheads. Slowly, however, the weeding process was begun as certain slight imperfections were noted.

Crowds Glimpse Beauties.

Popular interest in the contest was evidenced at a luncheon in the walnut room of Marshall Field & Co., where five thousand persons, most of them women, swarmed around the portals of the lunchroom to watch the 51 beauties. More thousands gathered in State street when the young women entered automobiles to be driven to the Hotel Sherman.

With the strain of the contest over, the 51 girls surrendered to the gayety of the dance last night. They were escorted by 51 students from Northwestern university and the University of Chicago, chosen from among the leaders in the upper classes. They have before them receptions, processions, state dinners, luncheons, balls, tours, military fêtes, and expeditions to the Fair during the next nine days.

RACINE MAKES PLANS TO WELCOME HOME WORLD'S FAIR QUEEN

Racine, Wis., May 26.—[Special.]—Preparations were being made tonight for a proper welcome home for Miss Lillian Anderson, 23 year old Racine restaurant cashier who was selected from a group of beauties from all parts of the world to be queen of A Century of Progress.

Her victory was the one topic of conversation here—at clubs, theaters, and in homes. The news had spread over most of the city before 10 p. m.

Thrilled with the news, her fellow workers at the Quaker shop, a popular downtown eating place, already have arranged for the welcome. They are awaiting word from her as to when she will return. There was talk of a formal civic welcome.

The young women with whom she worked recalled tonight how she had first laughed at the proposal that she enter the contest. It was with difficulty that she was finally induced to consent to have her picture entered.

Her home originally was in Escanaba, Mich., but she has lived for the last 10 years in Racine.

PRAISED BY ARTIST

It was coincidence yesterday that the board of judges, seated at individual desks in the Bal Tabarin of the Hotel Sherman, chose for the queen of A Century of Progress the young woman who wore the arm band bearing No. 1.

"Never before have I known a competition to be conducted with such thoroughness, such order, such beauty," commented Mrs. Pauline Palmer, one of the judges and an artist of repute, who has judged some of the most important art exhibits in this country and abroad. "And never before have I known a group of judges to work more sincerely and earnestly. The selection of Miss Lillian Anderson as the queen was the sincere opinion of every one of the board."

Judging started with a parade of the 51 young women marching single file eight feet apart. On their second appearance they were presented to the judges in groups of eight and the third time they made their entrance into the Sherman ballroom each one of the 51 was presented with a card inscribed with the sentence, "I am very happy to have been chosen one of the 51." The sentence was read by each from a rostrum at one end of the ballroom.

"'And so,' continued Mrs. Palmer last night, 'the young women were judged from all points of view: Their carriage, their poise, their voice, their grace. They walked, they sat down, they rose, they talked. It was an honest, thorough, but difficult judgment to make.'"

ASKS $75,000 FOR INJURIES.

Evansville, Ind., May 26.—[Special.]—Claiming he was permanently disabled in a fall, June 2, 1931, when a scaffolding broke, while he was working for the Louisville and Nashville Railroad company, George F. Barrows filed suit in Circuit court here today against the railroad, asking $75,000 damages.

FAIR SKY PROMISED FOR THE OPENING OF WORLD'S FAIR TODAY

Fair skies and comfortable temperatures will prevail for the opening day of A Century of Progress Exposition, according to the weather forecast.

Meteorologist W. P. Day said that if the wind blows fresh from the lake, the mercury may drop to about 65, but will probably be ten degrees higher if the breeze is from the landward side of the city. Yesterday's low was 62 degrees and the high 73. There was more than a half inch of rain in sudden showers during the early morning.

The opening of the Columbian Exposition in 1893 was under rainy skies and in temperatures below 50. However, that Fair was started a month earlier than the present one.

LAW FACULTY OF JAP UNIVERSITY QUITS OVER BOOK

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

TOKIO, May 26.—The gravest clash yet recorded between administrative and professorial ideas of academic freedom led this evening to the resignation of the entire law faculty of Kyoto Imperial university, numbering thirty-nine professors and lecturers. President Konishi, who supports the professors against the ministry of education, may also resign, along with the 1,600 law students. There are signs that a battle for academic freedom may be fought.

The central figures in the conflict are Ischiro Hatoyama, education minister, and Yukikatsu Takikawa, professor of law. A textbook on penal law recently published by Takikawa was suppressed on the ground that it contained ideas antagonistic to the constitution of Japan.

Hatoyama demanded Takikawa's resignation. It was refused. President Konishi refused to dismiss him. Yesterday Hatoyama obtained a cabinet order for Takikawa's dismissal. The law faculty resigned after issuing a manifesto declaring their colleague's book contained nothing subversive.

200 GIRLS HIRED AS TAXI DANCERS FOR C. H. WEBER

They Will Help Enliven "Streets of Paris."

More than 200 girls have been recruited during the last few days as taxi dancers in the World's Fair "Streets of Paris," it was disclosed yesterday. All cafés and dance floors in the concession have been leased to County Commissioner Charles H. Weber.

Candidates for the taxi dancing jobs have been swarming daily into an office on the eighteenth floor of the 35 North La Salle street building. On the door is the legend: "Illinois Bureau of Investigation." But the girls are not daunted by the sign.

Once inside they await their turn in a little hallway, putting on the last touches of their makeup. Then the girls are taken one by one before H. C. Bradfield, who is Mr. Weber's representative.

Double Rôle for Waitresses.

"Sure we're going to have a taxi dance," said Mr. Bradfield. "It will be in the 'Place du Tertre,' which will have 2,800 square feet of dancing space on a green tile floor. In some of the other cafés the barmaids will serve drinks and then dance with the customers. They tell me they do this in Paris."

In taxi dances the girls charge a fee for each dance. The girls get a percentage of their earnings. The house gets the rest.

Mr. Bradfield has also been hiring waitresses, gendarmes, grisettes, apaches, and apache's girl partners, whatever they are called.

Other Chances to Dance.

Among the other cabarets within "Streets of Paris" where some of the taxi dancers may collect fees are the Café de la Paix, Café de la Rotonde, Café du Dome, Café Select, Le Moulin Rouge, and Café Lapin Agile. Dancing at the Terrace du Lido in the open air on a waxed concrete surface will be free. One of the attractions will be "Harry's New York Bar," run by Charlie Hepp.

The taxi dance plans, it is said, may run counter to the plans of "Paris, Inc.," which leased the dance concessions. Andrew Rebori, director of the entire Parisian project, declared that the contract with Mr. Weber specified that no "professional hostesses" were to be employed.

FIRES AT SHOE BURGLARS.

Simon Conrad fired five shots early yesterday at burglars who had broken the window of his shop at 4341 Archer avenue and carried off twelve pairs of shoes.

BRIDAL GOWNS REVIVE GRANDEUR

Bettina Bedwell.

"It looks to me as if fashionable brides this season are going to revive grandeur in a big way," writes Bettina Bedwell, Paris fashion correspondent of the Chicago Tribune, in her article in tomorrow's Sunday Tribune.

"There is an inflation of trains, and no bride with an eye on her social prestige is going to the church in a dress that escapes the floor."

If you are going to be a 1933 bride, if you are going to have one in the family, or if you are merely a woman with a woman's interest in brides and things bridal, you will want to read every word Bettina Bedwell writes about the Paris forecast of wedding styles in her extremely interesting article in tomorrow's Chicago Sunday Tribune.

C. E. MITCHELL'S INCOME LISTED; FRAUD CHARGED

Item of $666,666 Rated as Loan to Him.

New York, May 26.—[Special.]—While an elderly gentleman, who has made out every income tax return that Charles E. Mitchell ever turned in was working on the 1929 figures, he was instructed by Mr. Mitchell to omit $666,666.67, as that was to be reported as a loan, he testified before a federal court today.

Mr. Mitchell is on trial at the federal building on charges of evading his income tax in 1929 and 1930 while he was chairman of the National City bank and the National City company.

One of the counts against him is that he received the amount of $666,666.67 from the management fund of the National City company and did not report it on his tax return at all. His remaining taxable income was wiped out by a sale of stock to his wife at a loss, a sale the government claims was a "sham" meant to defraud the treasury.

Ex-Partner Draws Return.

Frank W. Black, a retired vice president of the Chase National bank, once a partner of Mr. Mitchell in the bond business, was making out Mr. Mitchell's tax return, he said, when the banker called him to discuss the item in question. Mr. Mitchell's records, from which Mr. Black was working, included a deposit made by him at the Guaranty Trust on July 1, 1929, of $666,666.67.

Mr. Mitchell told him, he said, that the payment by the company from the management fund had been rescinded and was to be carried as a loan.

United States Attorney George Z. Medalie, in opening his case, declared he would prove that there was no intention to repay that sum and that subsequently it was, in fact, written off the books of the National City company, so that it should have been accounted for as income and not regarded as a loan.

Work Sheets Introduced.

The testimony came as Mr. Medalie began presentation to a jury of the income of Mr. Mitchell by introducing the work sheets from which his income tax return was computed.

Introduction of the figures by Mr. Medalie is the first time that Mr. Mitchell's income for the big year of the boom has been separated into its various parts.

The work sheets were placed in evidence, similar to many of the records so far shown the jury, over the objection of Max D. Steuer, defending the banker, who held that Mr. Mitchell had not prepared them and so was not bound by what they might show.

Mr. Black was on the stand while the argument about the admission of his work sheets went on.

The government's contention is that Mr. Mitchell had a gross income of $3,649,623 in 1929; that legitimate deductions were $183,299 and that he should have paid a tax on $3,466,324, which tax would have reached the major figure of $728,709.

Income Items Listed.

Directors' fees alone brought the chairman of the National City bank, the National City company and head of numerous financial corporations $4,503.78 in 1929. Other items on Mr. Black's work sheets for the Mitchell income in 1929 were:

| | |
|---|---|
| Directors' fees | $ 4,503.78 |
| Dividends | 262,874.40 |
| Bank interest | 8,251.21 |
| Mgmnt. funds [City bank, Jan.] | 366,634.19 |
| Mgmnt. funds [City bank, July] | 250,000.00 |
| Mgmnt. funds [City Co., Jan.] | 482,333.33 |
| Syndicate participation | 16,605.37 |
| Coupons of U. S. treasury certificates of indebtedness | 90,237.00 |

The trial, bogged all week in a morass of technicalities over the sale of stock by which Mr. Mitchell showed a loss great enough to avoid payment of an income tax in 1930, went into the realm of mystery today.

United States Attorney Medalie and Mr. Steuer cannot explain the technicalities. They have announced that they have been forbidden by Federal Judge Goddard to clarify or otherwise discuss the evidence and its implications with reporters.

STOCK FRAUD CHARGED

New York, May 26.—[Special.]—The Harriman National bank and Joseph W. Harriman, its former president, who is under indictment, perpetrated a fraud upon depositors to whom they sold stock in the bank around $1,500 a share in 1930, Supreme Court Justice Bernard L. Shientag ruled today.

Consequently, Justice Shientag awarded Mrs. Margaret Singleton of 305 West End avenue, an elderly depositor of the bank, a judgment of $2,624 against Harriman and the bank, this representing the difference between the $3,024 which she paid for two shares of the stock on Nov. 24, 1930, and $400, the market value in June, 1932.

First of Several Suits.

Mrs. Singleton's suit was the first of several actions to recover money paid for the bank stock to be decided, and consequently the case was held to be a more important one than the amount of money at issue indicates. The judgment won by Mrs. Singleton was for the full amount which she asked.

"The stock was purchased by plaintiff in reliance upon false and fraudulent representations concerning the bid and asked prices," Justice Shientag wrote in his opinion. "Instead of a bona fide market for the stock, the price was artificially maintained and known to be by the officers making the misrepresentations.

Rules Bank Is Liable.

"The defendant bank is liable for the false representations made by its president [Harriman]," the court added.

Mrs. Singleton purchased the stock through Francis W. Williamson, a vice president of the bank, who showed her a letter over Harriman's signature to the effect that depositors were to be given the privilege of purchasing the bank's stock for the first time. On May 20, 1932, Mrs. Singleton delivered her stock to the bank to be sold, which, Justice Shientag said, would have minimized her loss.

Inherited $5,000,000

Bridgeport, Conn., May 26.—(AP)—Fredericka Fry Del Guercio of Greenwich, who inherited $5,000,000 before her marriage, charges in her divorce complaint against Eligio Del Guercio, a law clerk, filed today, that her husband was ashamed to be seen with her.

Mrs. Del Guercio, the adopted daughter of John H. Fry, noted artist, and Georgia Timken Fry, inherited $5,000,000 of the Timken Roller Bearing fortune. Her wedding at Greenwich in 1931 was estimated to cost $250,000 in decorations alone.

In her complaint Mrs. Del Guercio asserts her husband undermined her health by wrangling and that he forced her to entertain his friends. She says he became abusive because she refused to sell securities to aid his father's printing business.

The bill also alleges Del Guercio was friendly with other women while residing in a New York apartment.

DIXIE WOMAN CLEARS NAME OF MRS. JELKE

Denies She Ever Visited Her Home with Man.

Newport, R. I., May 26.—[Special.]—Mrs. Eugenia Woodward Jelke never was in the Birmingham apartment in which she was alleged to have held a rendezvous with a mysterious "major," according to the testimony of Mrs. Ethel Hartman, proprietor of the place.

Mrs. Hartman took the stand in the F. Frazier Jelke divorce case this afternoon, after a trip by airplane from Birmingham, in company with a private detective.

Mrs. Hartman, whose name has been brought into the case many times, denied that Mrs. Jelke ever had been in her house, and denied that Mrs. Effie Wagner Bailey, who made the accusation, had spent 14 consecutive mornings in the apartment, during which she had said Mrs. Jelke had twice visited there.

Returns to Birmingham.

The Birmingham woman, who admitted two imprisonments for selling narcotics, said that she recently had gone to New York for the purpose of testifying that Mrs. Jelke was the woman who had been in her apartment, but that her knowledge of it was only hearsay, and when she ascertained that the "Eugenia" who frequented the place was not Mrs. Jelke she returned to the south.

Mrs. Hartman testified that she received $5,200 from the detective agency employed by Jelke and refused to be moved when Charles P. Sisson, in cross-examination, contended that all she had received was $1,200 for expenses. She denied many references to letters and conversations with representatives of the detective firm, as Mr. Sisson read from what apparently was a report of their activities, and she alluded to Mrs. Bailey, the witness upon whom the petitioner based its adultery charge, as "a rat," although she frequently called her her lifelong friend.

Dissertation on Underworld.

The appearance of Mrs. Hartman as a witness for Mrs. Jelke was for the purpose of discrediting the testimony of Mrs. Bailey. She testified that to her apartment, which she admitted was used for immoral purposes, many majors, captains, and generals came. She didn't know anything about their being of the military—"they were called that, but I think they were wholesale liquor runners," she said.

Sometimes the men brought their women and sometimes the women brought their men. She never knew their names, except possibly their first names. One of the frequenters was a girl named Eugenia. But when Mrs. Jelke stood up in court Mrs. Hartman was positive that she had never seen the respondent and that she was not the Eugenia she knew.

MEANS, WHITTAKER GET TWO YEARS EACH FOR LINDBERGH HOAX

Washington, D. C., May 26.—[Special.]—Gaston B. Means, self-styled super sleuth, and Norman T. Whittaker, alias "The Fox," today were sentenced to serve two years each in the penitentiary for conspiracy to defraud Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean of $35,000 in the Lindbergh baby hoax.

Means was brought here for trial before a jury and Justice Raniel W. O'Donoghue of the District Supreme court from Atlanta penitentiary, where he is already serving a fifteen year term for taking $104,000 from Mrs. McLean on the promise that he could return the Lindbergh child. The baby was subsequently found murdered.

The recent conviction of Means and Whitaker followed a sensational trial in which Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was a witness.

MEXICAN ENVOY SAYS U. S. IS FOR REVALUING SILVER

MEXICO CITY, May 26. — (AP) — Mexico and the United States have agreed to unite their efforts at the world economic conference for rehabilitation of silver and stabilization of its price through international agreement, Alberto J. Pani, secretary of the treasury, said tonight. It was his first public statement since he returned from his conversations with President Roosevelt in Washington.

"A definite understanding was reached in Washington," Pani said. "Mexico, being the largest producer of silver, has a vital interest in this matter and the Mexican and American delegations to London will work in accord.

"It is very probable that it will be at least possible to obtain approval of a program to stabilize the world price of silver."

6 IOWA FARMERS PLEAD GUILTY TO MOBBING A JUDGE

They Will Receive Their Sentences Today.

Le Mars, Ia., May 26.—[Special.]—Six farmers charged with dragging Judge Charles C. Bradley from his bench in the District court here on April 27 pleaded guilty today to criminal charges growing out of that attack. Among them was Martin Rosburg, who is alleged to have been the man who actually laid hands on the judge when he refused to give the mob which invaded his courtroom a pledge to hear no more farm foreclosure cases.

Arrested in South Dakota.

Rosburg pleaded guilty to charges of assault with intent to do great bodily harm and of interfering with the administration of justice. He fled from his home at Hinton after Gov. Clyde Herring sent militia into Plymouth county as a result of the attack on Judge Bradley and was arrested at Tindall, S. D., two weeks later.

Judge Bradley was dragged from his courtroom with a noose tightened about his throat. He was choked into unconsciousness and released by the mob after he had been smeared with grease and dirt.

The cases today were heard by Judge Earl Peters, who said that he would pronounce sentence tomorrow.

Others Who Plead Guilty.

The others who pleaded guilty to taking part in the attack on the court were John Sokolovkse, Lawrence Krause, Theodore Hardman, Walter Ideker, and Albert Kaiser.

All of them pleaded guilty to the charge of assault with the intent to do great bodily harm. Sokolovske and Krause also entered pleas of guilty to charges of unlawful assembly.

In the case of three others accused in connection with the assault on Judge Bradley, a change of venue to Orange City, in Sioux county, was granted by Judge Peters.

BOOKING AGENT HELD UP.

Max Turner, 748 Brompton place, a theatrical booking agent, was robbed of $120 early yesterday by three men who held him up in front of his home.

HOUSE APPROVES PUBLIC WORKS; KILLS SALES TAX

Measure Driven Through by Vote of 324 to 76.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 26.—Upon the middle class taxpayer the house of representatives today voted the brunt of the new taxes required to finance President Roosevelt's 3 billion 300 million dollar public works-industry control bill, which was passed today.

The measure now goes to the senate, where favorable action is expected after the income tax approved by the house is revised to ease the burden on men of small means.

The measure emerged from a tumultuous session unscathed in every detail and carrying still the administration's "white collar" program of taxes—increased income taxes, increased gasoline taxes and new taxes on stock dividends.

A sales tax proposal, offered not only as an alternative to the administration plan but as a substitute as well for the special excise taxes now in effect, was rejected by the decisive vote of 137 to 265.

22 Democrats Bolt Bill.

Defeat of the sales tax spelled certain victory for the public works bill, and a moment later it passed on a roll call count by the overwhelming vote of 324 to 76. Although 22 Democrats bolted to vote against it, most of the sales tax advocates who a moment earlier had been opposed, voted for the bill.

The complete rout administered the sales tax was regarded as a virtual death blow to any further effort to substitute it for the present tax program embodied in the public works measure. Although reports continued to persist, even after the house vote, that President Roosevelt and his advisers now are in favor of its inclusion in the bill in lieu of the present tax proposals it was regarded as unlikely that an attempt will be made to substitute the sales levy in the senate. The force of the house defeat, it was pointed out, gave clear indication of the overwhelming sentiment against the sales tax in congress.

Defeat Worse Than in 1932.

The vote on the sales tax today, it was pointed out, was even more decisive than the trouncing given it in the house two years ago during consideration of the 1932 revenue bill. At that time, a less conciliatory proposal was defeated by 160 votes to 236, or by only 96 votes. The defeat today was by a margin of 128 votes, with 228 Democrats, 33 Republicans, and 5 Farmer-Laborites opposing, and 73 Republicans and 64 Democrats voting "aye."

The sales tax plan was offered on the floor by Representatives John W. McCormack [Dem., Mass.], a member of the ways and means committee. In a motion to recommit it provided for the imposition of a 2¼ per cent levy on manufactures, with the so-called necessities of life—food, clothing and medicine—exempt. In addition it provided for repeal of the present excise taxes on automobiles, radios, tires, trucks, automobile accessories and boats and for repeal of the existing tax on bank checks.

The house was in wild uproar as the sales tax vote approached. So terrific was the din that Representative Thomas L. Blanton [Dem., Tex.] demanded the sergeant-at-arms be given a "posse" with which to silence the yelling and maintain order.

"Mr. Chairman," shouted Representative John H. Hoeppel [Dem., Cal.], above the din, "I make the motion that we call out the marines."

The confusion reached its peak when Representative Claude A. Fuller [Dem., Ark] took the floor to read off a list of 36 states which he said stand to lose because of a committee amendment to the bill governing the allotment of 400 million dollars provided for road construction grants to the states.

Under the present federal highway act, Mr. Fuller pointed out, federal highway aid funds are apportioned to the states, two-thirds on the basis of area, two-thirds on population, and two-thirds on present road mileage. But under the committee amendments, he said, one-half of the new 400 million dollars would be allotted on the basis of population and one-quarter each on the basis of area and present mileage. The heavily populated districts he charged were being favored.

Chairman Raps for Order.

When Mr. Fuller began to read off the states which would suffer under the committee's arrangement scores of western and southern representatives leaped to their feet with anxious inquiries as to how much their state stood to lose. Mr. Fuller was swamped with shouted questions and the chair banged futilely for order.

But the house finally accepted the explanation of the committee that the new apportionment plan would give centers of population more road work funds than sparsely settled districts because the unemployment problem was more critical in the densely peopled areas. The committee amendment was adopted, 181 to 32.

Likewise accepted, and with no opposition, was a committee amendment under which capital losses under the present income tax laws can be deducted only in the year in which they are incurred. Under the existing law such losses may be carried over to the following year.

Plugs Up Tax Loophole.

Representative Hearstill Ragon [Dem., Ark.] offered the amendment for the committee with the statement that he believed J. P. Morgan & Co. and other large financial houses had done nothing illegal in evading the income tax law in the manner disclosed at the current senate committee investigation. But, he said, the capital losses amendment was designed to plug up the loophole in the law which made such evasions possible.

Also, adopted without opposition, was a committee amendment transferring the present 3 per cent federal tax on electrical energy from the consumer to the producer.

Wheat Lobby Demands 330 Million Tax on Consuming Public for Farm "Relief"

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 26.—[Special.]—The same old farm lobbyists who have promoted past government schemes for relieving the farmers today came forward with a plan to take 330 million dollars this year from the consuming public and give it to the raisers of wheat.

A bit of irony was seen in the fact that Secretary of Agriculture Wallace conducted his first public hearing under the new farm bill on this very day when funeral services were held for the old federal farm board, which passes out of existence, by order of President Roosevelt, at midnight.

The farm board, promoted by the lobbyists as the benevolent agency of government which would lift the farmers to crests of prosperity, succeeded only to the extent of relieving the taxpayers of the country of 360 million dollars in the three years of its existence.

330 Million Tax on Consumers.

Encouraged by the talk of billions which has bounced around the walls of congress and the treasury lately, the same farm lobbyists came smilingly forward today with a proposal to tax all those who buy bread and pies and cakes, or flour itself, the sizeable little sum of 330 millions in a single year.

There was every indication at the meeting that the administration will adopt such a program this year.

Secretary Wallace, styled here and there as "Commissar Wallace," because his farm plan is patterned so closely after the soviet farm plan, was surrounded by his assistant commissars, when this meeting of wheat representatives, the first such meeting to be held, got under way.

They do not respond to the title of commissar, but their titles are nearly as impressive. George N. Peek and Charles Brand, flanking Wallace on either side, are "co-administrators of the agricultural adjustment act." Chester C. Davis is "production administrator." M. L. Wilson, who conducted the meeting, is "wheat adjustment administrator."

All of these made short addresses, the main tenor of which was that they wanted to start their administrating without delay.

M. L. Wilson, wheat adjustment administrator, who is one of the original members of the Roosevelt "brain trust," a professor at the Montana State Agricultural school, invited "suggestion," and "advice" from those present, who were said by the administration to be representative of all phases of the wheat industry, from farmers to consumers.

Wants Millions in Advance.

But there were no consumers heard, if any were present.

Mr. Wilson gave the floor first to one of the old school of "farm relievers," M. W. Thatcher, Washington lobbyist for the Farmers' National Grain corporation, which pocketed many of the millions passed out by the old farm board, and which saw to the spending of all the millions frittered away on stabilization attempts.

Claiming to represent 250,000 farmers, Mr. Thatcher said his organizations supported an immediate application of the domestic allotment plan. Then he said:

"We urge an immediate advance of 70 per cent of a benefit payment. In light of the administration's entire program to lift the nation out of its economic abyss and establish social reforms we feel the amount of money required to make this advance to agriculture is a moderate request. Huge sums, running into billions, will soon be put into play in an effort to rehabilitate our national life.

"We ask that 70 per cent, or $281,000,000, be advanced to farmers at an early date and the balance of the fund over administrative expenses be apportioned near the end of the crop year. We ask that these funds be apportioned to states and then by the states to counties, based on past yields and productisn."

Following the laying of the ground by Thatcher, Mr. Wilson called on Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau federation, another one of the fathers of the old farm board. Mr. O'Neal agreed that the tax should be put on immediately and the farmers given the cash.

Opposed by Bloomington Man.

Only two of the speakers were outspokenly critical of the tax proposal. The first was Lawrence Farlow of Bloomington, Ill., of the Farmers' National Grain Dealers' association, representing, he said, elevators dealing with 250,000 farmers.

"My association is opposed to artificial efforts at price fixing," he declared. "We are just now getting rid of one scheme of that kind, and I say to you that these first few months of the Roosevelt administration, when the farm board was no longer operating and we were governed by natural laws, the price of corn in Illinois was raised 200 per cent. Illinois farmers getting 12 cents a bushel for corn when price fixing efforts were being made, are now getting 36 cents under natural economic laws."

Mr. Farlow said raising the price of bread would bring less consumption, which could only mean greater surpluses and consequent ruination of prices.

Predicts Flour Bootlegging.

F. Hutchinson of Chicago, president of the Millers' National federation, the second critical speaker, strengthened the same plea made by Farlow, and added another point.

"This plan of taxing flour will simply lead to wholesale bootlegging of untaxed flour," he said. "It is bound to add to the difficulties of administration and bring the whole plan into disrepute."

A surprising angle to the meeting was that Thomas Y. Wickham of Chicago, chairmen of the grain committee on national affairs, representing the principal boards of trade in the country, offered no objection to the tax plan. He pleaded only for maintaining open markets, and was obviously fearful that if his group opposed this plan another worse one might be set up under the dictatorship of Secretary Wallace.

She was granted a divorce from Fred Fanter, a coppersmith, for cruelty and was awarded the custody of a daughter, Dorothy, 2 years old. Heeding her request, no alimony was granted.

and to avoid confusion so that debtors and creditors may have a clear definition of their legal position.

"Another purpose of the resolution is to make clear that future obligations, public and private, shall not contain the gold clause. The Thomas amendment did not contain specific provision to this effect. Such a provision is contained in the resolution.

"The resolution makes it clear that all obligations past and future will be upon the same footing."

Passage of the new securities act, which today was awaiting signature at the White House, made the action necessary, Woodin said. The government could no longer go on putting out bonds payable in gold, as the Liberty loan act requires, and actually paying them in paper money without incurring the penalties for misrepresentation included in the securities act, he said.

Approximately a billion dollars would be shaved off the debt owed America by foreign governments and a billion and a half would be cut from foreign indebtedness to American citizens by the resolution, it was estimated tonight. This would result from the discharge of debts with dollar exchange, which is selling at about a ten per cent discount, instead of with gold.

Dollars selling for from 83 to 90 cents may be bought abroad and used by foreign debtors to discharge obligations due in this country. In terms of their currencies, therefore, the payment would be reduced from 10 to 15 per cent. Total war debts amount to more than 11 billion dollars while Americans hold privately about 15 billion dollars in long-term foreign obligations.

FIND STOCKER A SUICIDE.

A verdict of suicide was returned yesterday by the coroner's jury which investigated the death of William Stocker, 66 years old, former captain of the west park police, who shot himself to death in his home Thursday.

HERE'S EXPLANATION OF PROPOSED NEW GOLD LEGISLATION

Washington, D. C., May 26.—(AP)—In plain words from official and other sources there came tonight this explanation of the effect of the gold resolution introduced today:

It simply legalizes the present situation.

Gold, having been withdrawn from circulation, paper currency and coins that are lawful money may be used in the payment of all debts.

Such money has the same status as gold.

Bonds and obligations of the United States may be retired in currency or silver instead of gold.

Both public and private security issues in the future or now outstanding may be paid in currency or silver.

The step is expected to reduce hoarding of gold, since it would remove the premium held by gold.

The gold, while having been withdrawn from circulation, is back of the other money of the United States.

The government now holds $4,314,000,000 of monetary gold and the federal reserve banks have $3,499,234,000 of gold.

The metal they hold is enough under the present reserve requirement to back nearly $3,000,000,000 more currency than the United States has in circulation.

COUNTY BOARD ASKS R. F. C. CASH TO PAY EMPLOYES

The county board yesterday adopted a resolution to apply to the Reconstruction Finance corporation for money to pay the back salaries of county employes. The resolution, introduced by Commission Peter M. Kelly, provides for a committee, to be appointed by President Emmett Whealan, to ask the Reconstruction Finance corporation to purchase $1,200,000 in 1932 tax warrants if the local banks refuse to buy them.

The board unanimously passed the forest preserve budget of $3,727,150, which is $316,300 less than the 1932 total of $4,043,450.

GLASS CLASHES WITH PECORA AT MORGAN INQUIRY

Senator Says He'd Prevent Any "Injustice."

BY JOHN HERRICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 26.—[Special.]—With thunder and lightning declamations by Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.] and Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel, the long gathering storm broke today in the Pecora inquiry into J. P. Morgan & Co.

The calm of the hearings, begun four days ago, was smashed by clashes of the senator and the attorney and there were charges and counter charges concerning the conduct of the investigation.

Flanked by his retinue of partners, lawyers, and underlings, Mr. Morgan sat as a spectator on the side lines, his florid face as unemotional as if he were listening to a request for an extension of a loan.

Against Any "Injustice."

"I do not care anything about the house of Morgan, but I do not intend to see any injustice done to it or to any other house, great or small," flared Senator Glass. His thin, veined hand of a 75 year old man banged upon the table. His white hair bristled in a crest; his face glowed as angry red as the wattles of a bantam game cock.

"And I want to say that I did not seek this assignment as counsel to the committee and the $255 a month I am receiving certainly is no incentive to me to render these services or to continue to render them," proclaimed Mr. Pecora. On his face, too, anger flamed crimson through his swarthy complexion. Behind his glasses his brown Sicilian eyes were stormy and his under lip jutted out.

Spectators Applaud.

As Mr. Pecora finished applause swept over the spectators crammed into the ornate white marble caucus room where the hearings are being held. They didn't mean to be hesitant about making their sympathies known. Their wildly swinging arms and clapping palms were the sign that they wanted the show to go, that they wanted Pecora to get after "the money king" and drag his secrets out.

"Oh, yes," barked Senator Glass, and glared belligerently at the crowd, "that is what it is all about. We are having a circus, and the only things lacking now are peanuts and colored lemonade."

It was Mr. Pecora's interrogation of George H. Howard, president of the United corporation and the New York United corporation, that supplied the immediate cause of the outbreak. In a long detailed, sometimes rambling, series of questions, the committee counsel sought to make a record to show the part of Morgan & Co. in financing the corporation and to show that that part was inimical to the interests of the corporation and of the investing public.

Scope of Concern Shown.

He established the fact of the broad extent of the United corporation, an electric and gas utilities holding company, in supplying the operating companies in which it held an interest nearly thirty per cent of the electric energy consumed east of the Mississippi.

He established the fact that the corporation was controlled by the Morgan firm, and that the Morgan influence virtually governed the policies of the operating companies. He established the fact that the Morgan house had been given in return for its advance of funds a million option warrants at $1 each, good for the purchase of United corporation common at $27.50 a share, and that United corporation stock was selling at twice that price and more shortly after this transaction.

He was also seeking to lay a foundation to show what was stated to be a fact last Wednesday in a federal trade commission report, that Morgan & Co., Drexel & Co., its Philadelphia house, and Bonbright & Co. had realized a book value profit of more than 200 millions through a process of writing up the securities invested in the organization of the holding company.

Long Standing Controversy.

But behind these developments of the day's sessions lay—waiting for a match to touch it off—the long standing controversy within the committee itself as to the methods to be pursued in conducting the inquiry. And behind that again lay a lengthy train of personal grudges and jealousies.

Balked for a time in his efforts to get his banking bill through congress, Senator Glass has been further irritated by the fact that he, considered the senate's banking authority, was not chairman of the banking and currency committee instead of Senator Duncan U. Fletcher [Dem., Fla.].

Senator Fletcher has not taken kindly to the fact that those seeking information on banking legislation have gone to Senator Glass and not to the committee chairman.

Since the beginning of the Pecora investigation of the house of Morgan, Senator Glass has protested that he and the other members of the committee were not consulted or informed what the inquiry was intended to prove. He has insinuated that the investigation was not an effort to create a base for new legislation but was merely a muck-raking expedition.

"Wait a minute," the diminutive Virginia senator commanded as the committee was about to recess, according to previous agreement, until next Wednesday.

"I am tired," he declared, "of sitting around the table here in absolute ignorance of where we are going or where we are being taken or what is expected to be adduced from the examination of the witnesses."

All Legal, Witness Says.

"I want to ask the witness now," he went on as he turned toward Mr. Howard in the witness chair, "if any of the transactions enumerated have been, to his knowledge or belief, contrary to the law of any of the states in which this company operates or contrary to any federal statute."

"No sir," replied Mr. Howard.

"I assume that the house of Morgan tried to make a reasonable amount of money out of the transaction, did they not?" Senator Glass continued.

Mr. Howard assumed they did.

"Sometimes, I imagine," said Senator Glass, "from a different point of view, they tried to make an unreasonable amount; but that depends altogether on the point of view, and the point of view depends upon the risk taken and a multiplicity of other considerations."

Couzens Wants Answer.

"I wonder whether we could not get an answer to Senator Glass' question as to what this is all about," suggested Senator James Couzens [Rep., Mich.].

"I do not see how we can anticipate what Mr. Pecora expects to develop," countered Chairman Fletcher.

Mr. Pecora read at length from the resolution empowering him to conduct the inquiry.

"We are acting under the resolution and we selected Mr. Pecora and instructed him to proceed," said Senator Fletcher.

"And I ask the chair whether that is not a complete answer to the senator from Virginia," supplied Senator Couzens.

"No, it is not," snapped Senator Glass. "The senator from Virginia can answer for himself and not have the chairman or any other member of this committee answer for him."

"That is the authority under which we are acting and that is the authority under which we are proceeding," began Senator Fletcher, when Senator Glass broke in with a sharp "Hold on."

"The senator from Virginia is going to express himself, and there is no authority in this committee to prevent him from expressing himself," he asserted.

Insists on Information.

"I say," he went on, "that in compliance with this resolution Mr. Pecora and his numerous investigators went to New York and made this preliminary investigation, and I have said and I insist now that it was his duty to have come here to Washington and have appeared before the subcommittee of which I am a member and to have told us what he found, what significance he attached to what he found, and what he proposed to establish by the investigation before this committee, and not to have brought the members of the committee here before a crowded assembly room without knowing one solitary thing about the meaning of all this. And I say that is so, and other members of the committee agree with me."

Pecora Makes Statement.

"Let Mr. Pecora make a statement first," interposed Chairman Fletcher.

"This United corporation, it has already been shown, is a corporation that has issued hundreds of millions of dollars of securities to the investing public," Mr. Pecora began. "And certainly its size and the area of its operations were deemed to be of sufficient importance to merit the attention of this committee under this resolution.

"It has already further been shown that one million option warrants were issued to J. P. Morgan & Co., for consideration of $1 each, and a similar amount for a similar valuation to the banking house of Bonbright & Co.; that those option warrants are unlimited as to time, and entitled the holders thereof to purchase for each warrant a share of the common stock of the United Corporation at $27.50. It has already been shown that within a few days after the issuance of those option warrants for that consideration of $1 each the common stock of this company was traded in on the public exchange in Philadelphia at prices doubling or more the sum of $27.50."

Proof Not Yet Completed.

His voice became more strident as he went on:

"Now, there was proof and the proof on that has not yet been completed, gentlemen of the committee, that the securities of the United Corporation were issued under circumstances and upon terms that enabled a very small number or group of individuals to acquire—at terms certainly against the interests of the corporation—those of its securities that are called option warrants. Now, I want to pursue the inquiry further, and I think the developments will throw considerable light on a certain phase of the business of issuing and floating and selling securities."

"Now, let me ask Mr. Pecora if he could not have made to the subcommittee, prior to the meeting of the general committee, just the statement that he has made here?" demanded Senator Glass.

"If I had to come to Washington to consult the members of the subcommittee every time I had any development to report," retorted Mr. Pecora, "I would have been busy taking every train between New York and Washington."

The committee knew the general line of investigation, Mr. Pecora replied, and no committee member had asked for further information.

Salary "No Incentive."

"I have been happy to render whatever service, modestly, I could render as counsel to the committee, and I want to assure Senator Glass that the compensation of $255 a month which I am receiving for these services certainly is no incentive to me to render these services or to continue to render them."

It was here that the audience broke into applause and Chairman Fletcher took his time about restoring order.

He had opposed and still opposed counsel for an official investigation working without adequate compensation, said Senator Glass when he could be heard again.

"But I do not imagine," he said, "that counsel for the committee is working just for the $255 a month. Far from it."

Reports have been that Mr. Pecora is also working for the Democratic nomination to the mayoralty of New York.

Mr. Pecora denied press reports that he had threatened to resign. Senator Glass fumed over the disclosure of a secret committee vote in which he was defeated in his effort not to have the lists of Morgan loans to bank officers and of Morgan securities sales to "close friends" made public.

Fletcher Defends Pecora.

Senator Fletcher thought it about time to make a statement on his own account, and he did so, defending Mr. Pecora and saying:

"I have been very proud of the work that Mr. Pecora has done."

Again there was applause from the spectators.

Again an attempt was made to adjourn, but Senator Glass had not yet done.

"I do not intend to be put in an unreasonable attitude," he declared, then once more turned to glare at the excited rows of men and women in the audience.

"Indifferent" to Applause.

"And I am perfectly indifferent to clamor or applause," he continued. "I want that understood. I still say that it would have facilitated the operations of this hearing, and would have enabled the members of this committee to have come in session with some comprehension of what has been discovered by Mr. Pecora, and what he expected to develop here, had he come to Washington and laid before the subcommittee briefly the results of his examination in New York. I say that again.

"And I want to call to the attention of this committee," he concluded, "that the only sentence of statutory legislation that has been put upon the books, that has been offered in either branch of congress, was framed by me; the only solitary sentence of statutory law that would have corrected the things that we have here talked about was framed by me and passed under my management on the floor of the United States senate."

On that they at least succeeded in adjourning. The committee will meet again next Wednesday morning, with George Whitney, Morgan partner, scheduled to resume the stand, and Mr. Pecora ready to put into the record another list of "preferred subscribers," this time to United Corporation shares.

PRESIDENT INDICATES WOODIN TO CONTINUE AS TREASURY CHIEF

Washington, D. C., May 26.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today gave an indication that he has no intention of heeding the demands that Secretary of the Treasury Woodin should resign because of his connection with the Morgan disclosures.

At the President's press conference various questions were asked, including one wholly innocent one as to what guests he would take with him on his week-end yachting cruise on the Potomac.

Then a reporter asked for presidential comment on the disclosures in the Morgan hearing, in which Mr. Woodin had been shown as receiving favors from the Morgan firm on five occasions.

The President hesitated for a moment, and, ignoring the last question, returned to the one concerning the river cruise, and said:

"You asked who is going with me on the Sequoia?"

"Yes," a reporter said.

"Secretary and Mrs. Woodin," was the President's reply.

Two Die When Train Hits Car in Suburb.

Miss Hilda Eggers, 17 years old, 1843 Evergreen avenue, was killed and Miss Gertrude Fruetz, 18, of 6016 North Damen avenue was critically injured last evening when an automobile which police said they had driven away as a joke overturned. Miss Fruetz is in Swedish Covenant hospital.

The car is owned by William Richter, 23 years old, 5747 North Sacramento avenue. He said he and Franklin Pate, 22, of 3819 North Sawyer avenue, were working on it preparatory to taking the girls for a ride. Richter and Pate went into the house to clean up, police were told, warning the girls not to try to drive the car. While the boys were in the house Miss Eggers and Miss Fruetz got into the car, the former at the wheel, and drove away. At Virginia and Summerdale avenues the auto struck a water filled hole in the pavement and turned over twice.

Train Kills Two in Auto.

Two members of one family were killed and a third was critically hurt last night when their automobile was struck by the International Limited of the Grand Trunk railway at 167th street and South Park way in South Holland. Those killed were Mrs. Carrie Kempin, 32 years old, and her daughter, Ruth, 5. Thomas Kempin, husband and father, was hurt and is in Ingalls Memorial hospital, Harvey. He is a farmer.

The Kempins were driving home after watching a suburban baseball game. The road curves sharply as it approaches the Grand Trunk tracks, cutting off a good view. Kempin made the turn and drove upon the tracks, although, police said, the lights were working. The train hurled the auto against a watchman's shanty. Both car and shanty were demonished.

Deputy Coroner Killed.

Deputy Coroner Henry M. Laffan was killed by a truck driven by Alfred Thompson of Mansfield, O., yesterday at 67th street and Western avenue. Witnesses said Deputy Coroner Laffan, who was waiting for a south bound Western avenue street car, stepped from the safety island or lost his balance and fell against the truck.

Mr. Laffan, who was 58 years old, became a deputy coroner four years ago under the administration of Dr. Herman N. Bundesen. He is survived by his widow, Anna, and three grown children.

These deaths and one other yesterday increased the 1933 Cook county traffic toll to 374. The other victim:

Mrs. Anna Caley, 38 years old, 9721 South Winchester avenue, had several ribs broken and her daughter, Margaret, 16, was shaken when their car was struck by a Rock Island railroad pasenger train and thrown against a post at Prospect avenue and 110th street, Morgan Park, last night.

WORKER KILLED AS BUS KNOCKS DOWN SCAFFOLD

A bus of the Chicago Motor Coach company knocked down a scaffold yesterday on which three painters were working at the Washington street entrance of Marshall Field & Co.'s store, killing one of the painters and injuring his two companions.

The man who was killed was Paul Waurming, 34 years old, 1961 West Jackson boulevard. The injured were Lawrence Gerke, 60 years old, 5111 Roscoe street, whose injuries were said to be serious, and Frank Blazek, 35 years old, 1035 North Dearborn street. The injured men are at the Streeter hospital.

The painters had set up their scaffold at the curb in order to paint a canopy extending from the store front to the sidewalk edge. The bus, driven by Louis Braidman, 1255 Turner avenue, swerved to the curb to pick up passengers, knocked down the scaffold and threw the three painters to the pavement.

Braidman was taken to the first district police station for questioning. He told police that he did not realize that he was driving the bus so close to the scaffold.

Physician Arrested After Woman Dies of Operation

Dr. Justin Mitchell, 55 years old, 757 West 79th street, was arrested this morning by Gresham police shortly after Mrs. Florence Jordan, 20, of 1510 West 17th street, had died in the West Side hospital, supposedly from the effects of an abortion. Mrs. Jordan entered the hospital last evening. Before dying, police said, she told them that Dr. Mitchell had operated on her May 8. The physician was found at Parnell avenue and 79th street.

ministering a shove that sent the lawyer spinning. "You fellows have been shaking people down long enough. Why don't you find honest work? I'm an older citizen than any of you and I work for my living. Where would this town be if the mayor and police backed down from you rogues?"

Alwart Explains Presence.

The lawyer subsided, leaving Mr. Alwart to take up his plaint in a milder fashion. The coal dealer protested that his firm had been established fifty years and that he had joined the meeting merely to find out "what it's all about."

"What does a respectable business man want with this mob of racketeers?" demanded Schoemaker. "You should have brought a bodyguard along. You say you want to find out what it's all about. Well, you're here. Now sit down and stay."

The fifty-seven had been held about an hour when Schoemaker called for four patrol wagons. Grumbling anew, they were lined up, counted and marched down the kitchen stairs to be loaded in the wagons while a throng of 500 stared. A late arrival was a sportily dressed youth who refused to identify himself but claimed to be a guest in room 1320 of the hotel and got the manager to vouch for his residence there.

Young Rosenberg Freed.

"Don't get rough with me," he said, provoking Schoemaker and Lieut. Katt to set him firmly on a chair. It later transpired that he was Eddie Rosenberg, younger brother of the 24th Ward Democratic committeeman, Moe Rosenberg, whom the government recently indicted for dodging income taxes.

On his claim that he had come in merely looking for a friend, young Rosenberg was not held. Political pressure was exerted later for another of the prisoners, Munizzo, whose brother, Louis Munizzo, an employé of Municipal Clerk Joseph Gill working in Judge John J. Rooney's court, called at the detective bureau, demanding the prisoner's release. Schoemaker heard of his efforts.

"A Municipal court clerk, are you?" he demanded. "How did you get that job? Politics, is it? Well, take yourself upstairs and join your brother. We want to learn more about you both."

All Permitted to Go.

Assistant State's Attorney Wilbur Crowley was questioning the prisoners. Their attitude showed a marked change from that displayed at the hotel. Each of the coal men admitted paying $2 a month tribute to the T-N-T for every truck he had in service, and all insisted they had paid unwillingly. Each of the union men promised to report when wanted at the state's attorney's office and shortly before midnight all were released, including the two Munizzos, whose mother pleaded for them.

With Attorney Lorenz denied the use of a telephone, the customary writs of habeas corpus were not sought until 5 p. m. Just as the Criminal courts were closing, Attorney Joseph Harrington went before Chief Justice Prystalski asking writs for Thomas Munizzo, Sutherland and Flynn. The chief justice merely filed the writs and informed Attorney Harrington he could ask their issuance at 10 a. m. today, unless the prisoners were booked or released before that time.

Busy Evening for Lawyer.

All in all, Attorney Harrington had a busy evening. From the Criminal court he hastened to the headquarters of the striking city drivers at 637 South Ashland avenue. The 700 strikers, after hearing the state's attorney's ultimated, had agreed to meet there at 8 p. m. to vote on the proposition to quit the Sheridan union and join the International brotherhood.

The lawyer acted quickly. As the men began to arrive, he hoisted a sign in the window, reading as follows: "Meeting off on account of arrest of officers. Await further instructions."

Signed on the notice, in identical handwriting, were the names of Sutherland, the jailed vice president; Fred Sass, the secretary, who was kidnaped from the headquarters two weeks ago and returned alive, and James Dempsey, president under Sheridan's overlordship. The 400 men who had gathered to attend the meeting loitered on the corners for an hour, staring hostilely at the twenty policemen assigned to preserve order.

GET $483 IN OFFICE HOLDUP.

Five armed gunmen yesterday invaded the offices of the Erie Can company at 816 West Erie street and took $483 after terrorizing two women employés and three men.

Mayor Urges Curb on Power of Cab License Commission

While members of the city council were giving consideration yesterday to a proposal to reduce taxicab fares in Chicago, Mayor Edward J. Kelly announced that he favors an amendment of the public vehicle ordinance, under which the monopoly feature of the taxicab business here is possible, placing the commission having control of cabs under the jurisdiction of the police commissioner.

At present the vehicle commission is composed of civil service employés, including Deputy Police Commissioner John Alcock and Lieut. James Killacky, who are not answerable to the administration. No new taxicab licenses may be issued at present without the consent of this commission and upon a showing of public need of additional cabs, a condition on which is based complaints that competitive companies offering reduced fares are denied licenses to operate.

Would Curb Board's Power.

The commission controls the number of cabs permitted on the streets and Mayor Kelly explained that he believes that power should be vested in a body that is responsive to the public through elected officials. The monopoly feature has been considered an important one concerning the question of what rates the two major companies now handling most of the Chicago taxicab business should charge, and Mayor Kelly said he is opposed to allowing one or two companies to keep competition off the streets.

"But I am not in favor of flooding the streets with taxicabs," he added. "The number should be limited, but it should be a reasonable number."

The ordinance fixing new rates is to come before the subcommittee of the local transportation committee of the council next Wednesday and a number of aldermen said yesterday they are considering the possible effect on drivers if a reduction is ordered. It was the opinion of many aldermen that a slash in the rates would increase the volume of business of the cab companies.

In some instances the opinion of the cab drivers was the same, but the employés feared their rates of commission might be reduced to a point where they would make less money under a smaller rate than they do today, even with more mileage and more trips. Yellow cab drivers get 37½ cents on each dollar, and after three years of service this commission is increased to 39 cents.

Drivers' Earnings Low.

The drivers are said to average $12 to $14 a week now. They pay 6¼ cents per gallon for the gasoline they use and the company expects them to average 16 cents a mile in earnings.

It was figured that a reduction of the initial charge of 25 cents for the first quarter mile would result in more short hauls, and a reduction of the 20 cents per mile charge, after the first quarter, would increase the long haul business.

GERMANY TELLS LEAGUE IT WILL END WAR ON JEW

But Adds an "If" on Eve of Hearing.

GENEVA, May 26.—(AP)—The German delegation announced tonight that Germany would discontinue application in German Upper Silesia of regulations affecting Jews if these regulations are found to contravene the German-Polish convention.

This announcement came on the eve of the public hearing by the league of nations' council tomorrow of petitions from Jews in Upper Silesia alleging discrimination against Jews there.

Dr. Friedrich von Keller, German delegate, told the council today that negotiations were going on for settlement of the question.

"If discriminations have occurred, they will not happen again," he said.

In a statement to the council today, Dr. Keller did not admit the accusation of discrimination, but said if violations of the German-Polish treaty have occurred these could only have been through the errors of local authorities.

Nazis Reject Protestant Bishop.

BERLIN, May 26.—(AP)—The Nazis today rejected the Rev. Friedrich von Bodelschwingh, noted social director, who had been nominated as the first Evangelical bishop of the reich. They insisted on the Rev. Ludwig Mueller, chosen by the German Christians, a Nazi group.

The nomination of Dr. von Bodelschwingh by Hermann Kapler, president of the German Protestant church unions, and his associates drew a hot rejoinder from the Nazi German Christians, headed by Dr. Joachim Hossenfelder. A press communique declared: "The bishop question is not yet decided" despite yesterday's premature news reports. The reich's bishop must enjoy the support of the entire Protestant church folk and "the German Christians demand that Mueller be made the reich's bishop."

Nazis Oust Socialist Deputies.

BRESLAU, Germany, May 26.—(AP)—Thirteen Socialists ostentatiously abstained from voting on a budget bill in the lower Silesian provincial diet and were peremptorily ordered out of the house by the Nazis. The Nazis refused to give the Socialist spokesman a hearing.

LITHUANIA SIGNS WAR PACT WITH BERLIN, REPORT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, Poland, May 26.—Information has reached Warsaw that the Lithuanian government has signed a secret military pact with Germany. It is reported that Berlin has agreed to provide certain munitions and two completely equipped East Prussian divisions to support the Lithuanian army in a drive to capture Vilna in the event of an outbreak of hostilities.

The Lithuanians, it is said, have agreed to coöperate with the Germans on condition that Berlin release its claim upon the Memel territory and recognize Lithuania's claim to Vilna, which is disputed by Poland. While this agreement contains nothing concerning coöperation between Lithuanian forces and soviet Russia's army against the Poles, Warsaw suspects that a secret military agreement between Berlin and Moscow is still effective in the event of an outbreak of war over the Polish corridor.

Polish Suspicions Intensified.

The Poles admit they have no confirmation of the new agreement between Berlin and Kaunas. Their suspicions, however, have been intensified by the silence of the Lithuanian press concerning the visit of Dr. Alfred Rosenberg, Chancellor Hitler's Nazi adviser on foreign affairs, to London. While he was in the British capital, Rosenberg suggested that Germany be given the corridor and that Poland be compensated with union with Lithuania.

The Poles believe that Rosenberg's visit to London was to hide Hitler's true intention, which, they say, is to prepare Germany for war by aiming at a fourth partition of Poland with Lithuania playing the rôle formerly occupied by Austria.

Lithuania Denies Pact.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

KAUNAS, Lithuania, May 26.—When questioned about the report of a secret military agreement with Germany entailing military support from East Prussia, Lithuanian officials today denied the existence of such a treaty. There has been no change in Lithuania's foreign policy, they declared.

"Our policy continues to be based upon a demand for the return of Vilna from Poland," they said.

FORD IS WINNER IN $100,000 SUIT OVER CONTRACT

Providence, R. I., May 27 [Saturday.—(AP)—A federal court jury at 2 a. m. today returned a verdict for Henry Ford, Detroit automobile manufacturer, in the $100,000 suit brought against him by Herbert K. Allard of Cranston. The jury had deliberated just 12 hours.

Allard brought suit to obtain $49,844.70 which he alleged Ford owed him for commissions in negotiations which resulted in the purchase of the Wayside inn and neighboring properties in Sudbury, Mass., for Ford.

The jury returned twice to ask for instructions on laws governing contracts.

Hail, Chicago!

Hail, Chicago!

Other people often laugh at Americans for glorifying what is huge. Now the joke can be turned around. Behold the Century of Progress Exposition, galvanized into motion today by the flash of light from the star Arcturus. The most colossal thing of all, most worthy of celebration now, is not some tower of steel and glass in the rainbow city on the shore of Lake Michigan; no, the most colossal thing is Chicago's courage in presenting to the world this spectacle of mankind's progress, in this hour of tribulation, when man in most of the civilized world ponders before the mirror of Time and asks if there is progress in the drama of history repeating itself. What vision, what energy, Chicago has shown to create such an exposition, and what a fount of inspiration it may be!

Is the progress passed in review in Chicago's exposition embodied in the buildings there or in the wonders shown within their walls? Here, visible for all, are two distinct spectacles: one to be gazed upon from without, from afar, from above and below—a city of glass and metal and walls of light; towers and domes of angular color, soaring above wigwams and log huts in dramatic contrast. It is, as one observer has called it, a gigantic birthday cake spread in honor of Chicago's centenary, laid on a site three miles long, a strip of ground which, twenty years ago, lay deep beneath the waters.

The second spectacle is that of the progress illustrated within the modernistic walls. The primitive in art, in religion, in methods of living and hunting and fighting, in drama and in music, will appear in the same panorama with the arts and crafts of today and with today's science and social system. The grotesque sculpture of a Mayan temple, the gorgeous decoration of an Oriental pavilion, a diamond that was the eye of a Hindu idol, these should evoke no greater awe than the murals of modern skyscrapers and bridges, than the machinery man has devised to make all he desires, to protect his health, to amuse himself, to explore the universe and to promote knowledge for the improvement of lives yet unborn.

There is a third spectacle, however, which is the very essence of the exposition. Those visitors to Chicago who marvel at the buildings from afar and who stare spellbound at the variety of wonders displayed within them, should seek the real evidence of progress in the essential relation of one thing to another. The ancestors of modern man laid the foundations of our science in their alchemy, but the first chemists and the first engineers failed to advance their mastery of the elements they knew to a stage where they served all the needs of society. They fashioned engines of war, they sought the secret of gold, they studied the motions of the stars. The progress of science illustrated in Chicago is progress in the service of man and his family, his industry, his community, his government and all his fine arts.

Still, the past has not been abandoned; so that the unity of man's activities can be traced back in time, as well as on the horizontal plane of today, on which agriculture, medicine, chemistry, engineering, architecture and government serve each other. The Century of Progress Exposition embodies this greatest of all spectacles, the interrelation of today with the past and the unity of man's varied strivings toward an improved life, which each generation has called modernism.

OFFICIALS KEEP SEPT. 1 AS TAX PENALTY DATE

Kelly Offers Proposals to Speed Hearings.

TAX COLLECTIONS.

| | 1928. | 1929. |
|---|---|---|
| May 26 .....$ | 87,717 $ | 299,715 |
| Uncollected .... | 19,735,552 | 52,311,233 |
| | 1930. | 1931. |
| May 26 .....$ | 551,843 $ | 382,295 |
| Uncollected .... | 84,751,773 | 115,726,465 |

County officials decided yesterday that it would be unnecessary to postpone the present penalty date, Sept. 1, on second installment payments of 1931 real estate taxes because of the extraordinary number of complaints accumulated by the board of tax appeals.

Mayor Kelly sent a letter to the officials' conference, suggesting two methods by which hearings of the 102,500 complaints could be expedited. One was that all complainants from a single township be called in and given hearings at the same time, so that the books for that township could be closed and forwarded to the county treasurer.

Suggests Deferred Hearings.

The second was that the board of appeals defer all hearings on the 15 per cent cut on homes and small flat buildings until the Supreme court rules as to the legality of the board's blanket assessment reduction on those properties. Otto Woerter, chief clerk of the board of appeals, said that he thought the board would be able to adopt such a procedure.

The meeting was held in County Treasurer McDonough's office. Mr. McDonough announced later that, while the rest of the county building will be closed today for the opening of the World's Fair, windows will be kept open in his office for the receipt of tax payments.

Gets Back Tax Payments.

County Judge Jarecki yesterday followed his policy of taking no immediate action in tax receivership cases against delinquent taxpayers who have paid 75 per cent or more of their bills. During the day he received cash payments or promises to pay within a week a total of $386,976 in back taxes, a little more than one-tenth of 1 per cent of the total delinquencies in the county.

County Treasurer McDonough was appointed receiver for four more properties under the Skarda act, to collect delinquent taxes totaling $123,684. These proeprties are 2301 Taylor street, Liberty Trust and Savings bank, trustee, owing $5,049; 336 West Lake street, Chicago Title and Trust company and Bills Realty company, trustees, owing $32,824; 128 West Lake street, Frederick Hartman and Bills Realty company, trustees, owing $65,597, and 320-22 West Jackson boulevard, owing $20,214.

Promise to Clear Up Debts.

Representatives of two buildings made or promised cash payments and promised to devote their net income to clearing up the remainder of their delinquencies. These properties were the building at 3838 Broadway, owned by Robert Fuchs, on which $30,000 will be paid next week on a $77,500 bill, and the New Berger Building corporation, 330 South Franklin street, which made a cash payment of $1,153 on an $8,142 bill.

Five bills were paid in full. The properties involved, and the amounts paid, were: Trustees System Discount corporation, 201 North Wells street, $19,373; Motor Club Service corporation, 66 East South Water street, $8,874; 3808-18 Lake Shore drive, $6,531; 154 West Adams street, $18,010; Burnham building, 160 North La Salle street, $30,650.

Attorneys for the Stevens Brothers corporation, which owes $63,000 on its department store buildings at 25 North State street and 11 East Washington street, was ordered to pay $25,000 by June 1.

Blums, Inc., 624 South Michigan avenue, which owes $50,574, paid $18,195, bringing payments to 75 per cent.

A payment of $9,000 on the $29,593 arrears of the building at 208 West Randolph street brought the total paid above 75 per cent. A similar payment of $2,276 did the same for the building at 716 South Wabash avenue, which owed a balance of $4,553. The Grant hotel paid 75 per cent of a $23,201 bill.

Files Receivership Petitions.

NEW YORK CITY FACES DEFAULT UNLESS ITS BUDGET IS SLASHED

New York, May 26.—[Special.]—New York City cannot avoid default on its obligations unless there are further sources of revenue and unless it can reduce its budget requirements by drastic economies to the extent of many millions of dollars a year, Samuel Untermyer informed Controller Charles W. Berry today.

Mr. Untermyer contends that the city has the right under the law to demand a renewal of $58,000,000 in corporate stock notes, due in June.

Retained by the controller without fee to study the city's financial condition and make suggestions for remedying it, Mr. Untermyer indorsed these five proposals set forth by the citizens' budget commission:

Popularization of baby bonds, usable in payment of taxes.

Increase in penalties for tardy tax payments.

Retrenchment through reduction of the number of city positions exempt from civil service rules, the cutting off of useless civil service jobs, the keeping of vacancies open, and suspension of salary increases.

But Sonsteby Pledges Aid for Slash.

Judges of the Municipal court, in a star chamber session yesterday, voted against imposing the same 78 day pay cut on the politically appointed employés of the court as is to be imposed on civil service workers in other city departments. After the meeting, however, Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby visited Mayor Kelly and pledged his support to the 78 day cut.

The judges approved a 48 day pay cut, the same as was in effect in the court last year while other city employés received a 78 day reduction. The council finance committee adopted a resolution on Thursday night asking that the court take the 78 day cut.

Misunderstanding, Sonsteby Says.

Chief Justice Sonsteby told Mayor Kelly that there had been a misunderstanding as to the action of the aldermen, and that he was willing to take the larger pay cut himself and to seek the authority of a majority of the judges of the court for imposing it on all employés.

The judges are the dictators of their own appropriations, but Mayor Kelly had stated before the chief justice visited him that he was in favor of having the council appropriate for the court employés on the basis of a 78 day cut. This would force the judges, if they wanted preferential treatment for the court pay rollers, to go into another court and enforce their decree.

Fire and Police Pay Cut.

At a conference on budget policies between Mayor Kelly and Ald. John S. Clark [30th], chairman of the finance committee, and Jacob M. Arvey [24th], president pro tem of the council, it was agreed that firemen and policemen will receive a 52 day pay cut instead of one for 78 days this year. Members of the fire and police department have protested that since they work six full days a week, they are actually working a half day a week for which they are docked, whereas other employés are merely docked for Sundays and Saturday half holidays.

Since the firemen and policemen will have had 39 days deducted from their pay by July 1, they will get only 13 days' deductions for the second six months of the year. Their pay increases will cost the city an additional $800,000 this year, but this money will be salvaged from other appropriations without increasing the budget total or tax levies, Mayor Kelly said.

Agree on Minimum Wage.

It was also agreed at the conference to establish a minimum wage of $100 a month for all full time city employés, in so far as pay deductions would reduce their salaries below that figure. The cost of this policy, advocated by Ald. William A. Rowan [10th] is estimated at $60,000 a year in pay deductions which the city will be unable to make.

LEGISLATORS AND MAYOR DISCUSS TAX MEASURES

Members of a joint legislative taxation committee met yesterday with Mayor Kelly for a discussion of sales tax and other revenue producing measures. No action was taken by the committee, which will meet with Gov. Horner in Chicago tomorrow to discuss the situation.

Mayor Kelly suggested that in writing a sales tax bill provision should be made to use the revenue for general government purposes after relief needs have been satisfied, for the purpose of reducing real estate taxes. Under his plan the money would go to the schools within a year or two after the sales tax went into operation, thus reducing the amount collected by property taxation for educational purposes.

Among those who attended the conference were Senators Harold Ward and Francis J. Loughran, Representative David E. Shanahan, and Scott Lucas, chairman, and Barnet Hodes, member of the state tax commission.

SCHMEDEMAN MAKES PLEA FOR WISCONSIN MILK

The Chicago board of health was urged yesterday by Gov. A. G. Schmedeman in a visit to the offices of Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board, to delay, if possible, its orders issued last Tuesday which may cause 10 northern Wisconsin milk plants to lose their permits, on June 30.

Gov. Schmedeman said that the federal farm act approved by President Roosevelt on May 12 would boost farm prices shortly. He expressed the hope that the utilization of the domestic allotment provisions of this act would improve prices of dairy products in Wisconsin to such an extent that market adjustments planned by the Chicago health board could be less injurious to Wisconsin dairymen.

JUDGES CHARGE LAW MONOPOLY IN RECEIVERSHIPS

18 Firms Control All Big Issues, Say Jurists.

Eighteen large law firms have a virtual monopoly on receivership business involving bond issues over $100,000 in Cook county, according to testimony yesterday before the Sinnett legislative committee. At the same time it was admitted that bondholders' committees represent, not the bondholders, but the investment firm which sold the defaulted issue.

The witnesses maintained, however, that politics has no power to gain appointments of receivers or attorneys in the Chancery courts.

Judges Are Witnesses.

The committee, which has been conducting an investigation into the alleged racket phases of foreclosure and receivership, heard these statements while questioning Superior Judges Denis E. Sullivan and William J. Lindsay and Circuit Judges Hugo Friend, Joseph Burke, William Brothers, and Henry M. Fisher.

Opening their hearing at 9:30 o'clock yesterday morning in room 1121 of the county building, the committee members, all of whom were present for the first time in more than a month, questioned a parade of judges until 6 o'clock in the evening. The committee announced at that time that Saturday's scheduled session would be postponed for another week because of the opening of A Century of Progress.

All the judges questioned yesterday freely admitted that present foreclosure laws allowed many abuses. In many cases they agreed, receivers' and attorneys' fees have been exorbitant. The judges asserted also that political pressure often was brought upon them to appoint friends and relatives to lucrative posts. In every case, however, they insisted they had resisted this pressure, allowing, in most cases, the litigants to choose receivers.

Know "Ice Box" Racket.

The judges also stated that the "ice box" and kindred rackets were not unheard of in the courts. The judges explained the racket by saying that the receiver would be allowed a share of the price paid for new refrigerators or other furniture purchased for properties under his control. None of the judges had encountered a case in which they found evidence that the racket had been operated, they said.

The questioning during the day was again conducted by Assistant Attorney General James G. Skinner. He read most of his questions from a questionnaire prepared months ago by the Chicago Bar association when a report on receivership fees was made public. These dealt again with the practices of the individual judges in appointing receivers, attorneys, methods of fixing fees and suggestions for legislation designed to cure the evils exposed.

Before a handful of spectators, Superior Judge Lindsay was the first witness called to the stand. He said he followed the general practice of allowing litigants to nominate their own receivers, who were in turn allowed to choose their own lawyers. Fees, the judge said, were fixed in accordance with the schedules prepared from time to time by the bar.

Tells How He Bases Fees.

The judge said that he attempted to keep fees within 3 to 7 per cent of the funds handled by receivers. He said he had made it a practice never to appoint a corporate receiver. When the Chicago Title and Trust company was nominated, he said, he usually appointed either Chester Davis or Abel Davis. He said that in dealing with individuals he was able to fix responsibility for mistakes or complications.

At this point Ole E. Benson of Ottawa, one of the two Republican members of the legislative committee and sponsor of the resolution under which the investigation is being made, asked if bondholders' committees actually did good work in representing bondholders.

"It has been my experience," said Judge Lindsay, "that the bondholders' committees usually represent the house of issue, whom they serve diligently. Usually the bondholders suffer."

Urges Blue Sky Enforcement.

In suggesting a remedy for the situation Judge Lindsay stated that the blue sky securities laws should be rigidly enforced. Appraisals of land on which bond issues are to be floated should be made by state officials and not by friendly appraisers and not by friendly appraisers. He also stated that the present building corporation laws are "pernicious." They allow the original organizers to float outrageous issues and then drop out, leaving the bondholders to "hold the bag."

Judge Lindsay also was asked about his appointments of Logan L. Mullins, brother-in-law of Judge Denis E. Sullivan. Asked if Judge Sullivan had ever backed Mullins for receiverships, Judge Lindsay said:

"I've known Mr. Mullins longer than Judge Sullivan. I let other people mind their own business as to their family trees."

Judge Friend on Stand.

Judge Hugo Friend of the Circuit court was the second witness. He too stated he preferred to allow litigants to name their own receivers. He fixed fees on a percentage basis—generally at 5 per cent—he said, and allowed receivers to name their own counsel except in small cases where no counsel is needed. Judge Friend said he had no preference for either individuals or corporations as receivers. The examination by Skinner then proceeded as follows:

Q.—Have you ever been asked to make appointments on political considerations? A.—I have.

Q.—Very many? A.—I would say a considerable number.

Q.—What did you do about it? A.—I told the requestor that we have a free policy in naming receivers, that the receiver is named by those interested in any given case.

Skinner called attention of the committee to the fact that Judge Friend's record as compiled by the bar association disclosed that among 80 receivers only two were given more than one appointment. These men had only two appointments apiece.

Judge Friend suggested that the mortgages upon which bond issues were floated should not include the rents, issues and profits of the properties involved. This would cut down the speculative value of securities and make more difficult the sale of real estate bonds, but it would insure the value of the security behind the mortgage, he said.

Judge Joseph Burke followed Judge Friend to open the afternoon hearing. His practice in appointment of receivers and fixing of fees was similar to those of the other judges. He also stated he had been importuned to make political appointments, but had resisted. He said he had heard of the "ice box" racket, but never had encountered it directly.

It was while questioning Judge Burke on the proposal of Judge Friend to make it impossible for property owners to mortgage their anticipated income by including "rents, issues, and profits" in the mortgage, that Chairman Thomas P. Sinnett of Rock Island dropped the remark concerning the law firm monopoly.

Finds 18 Hold Monopoly.

"The committee has discovered," he said, "that a group of large firms have a monopoly on all business over $100,000 here. I understand that it is 18."

Sinnett refused to comment on his remark, saying the committee report would be made public at a later time.

During the morning Edgar N. Greenebaum, secretary of Greenebaum & Sons Investment company, who has testified on two other occasions before the committee, was recalled. When he said he was unable to find certain records sought by George W. Lavin, another assistant attorney general, the committee members suggested that a contempt citation would produce what was wanted. Greenebaum hurriedly agreed to find the records.

Feinberg Is Questioned.

Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg was recalled to the stand at the end of the afternoon, and questioned concerning fees allowed attorneys representing the Title and Trust company as trustee of the Transportation building in 1930. He charged that the questioning was inspired by political plotters, but defended his fee allowances, saying they had been approved by prominent members of the bar association.

Judges Brothers and Fisher testified that their court procedure had been exactly similar to that of their colleagues. Both admitted that pressure had been brought to bear to obtain appointments for political favorites, and both denied that they had been influenced.

As the hearing closed Assistant Attorney General Brabner Smith introduced into the record a survey of fees charged by bond depositaries in Chicago and in a number of other large cities in the United States. The average Chicago fee amounted to 1.25 per cent of the total bond issue. In the other cities the fees ranged from one-tenth of 1 per cent to 1 per cent of the total issue.

LONE DEMOCRAT IN COURT FIGHT ANSWERS RIVALS

Accuses Judge Shurtleff of Mud Slinging.

Charles E. Carpenter of Crystal Lake, sole Democratic nominee for judge of the Circuit court in the 17th judicial district, last night vigorously answered charges made against him by the three Republican nominees, and particularly by Judge Edward D. Shurtleff of Marengo.

Mr. Carpenter spoke at a meeting in the Waukegan Township High school, which was attended by several hundred voters of Lake county. The district takes in four counties, McHenry, Lake, Winnebago and Boone, and three judges are to be elected June 5. Besides Judge Shurtleff the Republicans running are Judge Ralph J. Dady and Judge Arthur E. Fisher.

Replies to Mud Slinging.

"I am not a politician," said the Democratic nominee, "and I decided at the start to make a clean campaign without mud slinging. I have not mentioned my Republican opponents heretofore. But I have been attacked and must answer. Judge Shurtleff said in a recent speech that he had never met me.

"As a matter of fact, he knows me quite well. I have tried cases in his court. One I remember which he decided against my client. But the Appellate court reversed the judge and the Supreme court upheld the Appellate court. It seems to me a judge ought to remember the lawyers who have his decisions reversed.

"Judge Shurtleff also has attacked me on the ground that I am an attorney practicing in Chicago, although I have lived in Crystal Lake for six years. I should like to point out that when Judge Shurtleff was first elected he also was a practicing attorney in Chicago. His ideas on residence seem to have changed.

Knows Farmers' Problems.

"The charge made by Judge Shurtleff that Chicago newspapers and Cook county politicians sent me here to run for judge are absurd. Such statements are tricks to inflame and prejudice the voters. I am running on my merits and I promise to be a good judge. Even my opponent, Judge Fisher, said at a meeting we both attended in Rockford that I am a capable lawyer and a fine fellow."

Mr. Carpenter reviewed his record. He stated that he had been reared on a farm and that he knew the problems of both the rural and the city residents and added that he had the recommendation and support of Attorney General Kerner.

Other speakers at the meeting were State Representative Thomas Bolger and John O'Keefe, chairman of the Lake County Democratic committee. Both predicted success for Mr. Carpenter.

FORTY FAMILIES ARE ACCUSED OF RELIEF FRAUDS

North Shore Prosecutor Urged to Act.

Prosecution of forty Highland Park and Highwood families on charges of getting poor relief under false pretenses was asked yesterday of State's Attorney Charles E. Mason of Lake county by Justices of the Peace Ansell A. Smith and Arthur Swanson, both of Highland Park. Justice Swanson is moderator and Justice Smith a member of Deerfield township, where the accused families live.

"Every one of these forty families has at least $400 in postal saving banks," charged Justice Smith. "One family has $2,000 in a postal bank, a few more have $1,000, and many others have more than $500 each in postal banks. The total savings of the forty amount to $20,000."

Given Food Worth $8,000.

First Assistant State's Attorney Okel Fuqua, who received the complaints, was told that Deerfield township has spent between $8,000 and $10,000 on these particular families in the last year. Only food supplies are involved, incidentally.

In the last few weeks twenty of the families have dropped from the charity rolls. The rest will be scratched off today. Prosecutor Fuqua recommended that Poormaster William J. Obee sign complaints against the offending families. Obee, seen later, agreed to do this.

Poormaster Clings to Job.

Obee said he had tried to discover postal savings accounts of the families, but had been unable to do so because of government regulations. Meanwhile he has posted a new bond of $40,000, double that of his old one, to continue as poormaster. The heavier bond was demanded of him as part of a move to force his resignation. He refused to quit.

Another development of the Deerfield relief situation was the disclosure that Moderator Swanson has received a threatening note because of his fight to reduce charity expenditures. The writer charged Swanson with not wanting the needy to eat. Postal authorities are investigating.

DOCTORS HOPEFUL THAT GANDHI WILL SURVIVE HIS FAST

POONA, India, May 26.—(AP)—Doctors attending Mahatma Gandhi were hopeful today that the Nationalist leader will be able to survive his three week's fast, ending Monday noon, and the subsequent period during which it is reckoned his health will be endangered. The physicians believed the threat to Gandhi's life will continue for as long as another three weeks. Gandhi undertook the fast in protest at the lowly lot of India's "untouchable" class.

WAUKEGAN JURY CONVICTS TWO ON GUN CHARGES

James Ryan, 40 years old, 9136 South Ada street, and John Twohig, 40 years old, 3537 Madison street, reputed members of the Touhy gang, were found guilty of carrying weapons from which the serial numbers had been obliterated, and of carrying weapons in an automobile by a Lake county jury at Waukegan Thursday. Sentence will be pronounced by Judge Perry Parsons next Thursday. Conviction on each charge carries a penalty of one year in the county jail and a $300 fine.

Ryan and Twohig were arrested by State Policeman Irving Moody in Wauconda on April 25 after they passed a stop light. When Moody found a rifle in their car the two men tried to run him down and escape. They were captured after a four mile chase.

Ryan is under indictment in Cook county for the murder of John Rinella, who was shot to death in the Club House Café four miles south of Des Plaines, on Dec. 15, 1932. Rinella's sweetheart, Miss Marie Flack, 1613 North Lowell avenue, who witnessed the killing, viewed Ryan in the jail at Waukegan and identified him as one of the slayers.

CANDIDATES FOR CIRCUIT BENCH

(Election June 5)

SAMUEL HELLER

Samuel Heller, Republican, one of the candidates for circuit judge indorsed by the bar primaries, was born in Poland 45 years ago, came to the United States at the age of 12, and is a citizen by virtue of his father's naturalization.

He came to Chicago from Chippewa Falls, Wis., in 1904, and in 1909 was graduated from Joseph Medill High school. He was graduated from the University of Chicago with the degree of Ph. B., and from Northwestern university law school with the degree of bachelor of laws. He was admitted to the bar in 1914. During the first four years of his practice he taught history and civics in night classes in the public high schools.

In 1926 Mr. Heller was elected a judge of the Municipal bench. While a judge he attended classes between 8 and 9 a. m. in the department of oriental languages and literature at the University of Chicago and received the degree of master of arts in 1931. The subject of his dissertation for the master's degree was "Sabbatical Year Legislation," a work which is considered an original contribution on that subject. In 1922 he was chief deputy clerk of the Criminal court, and from 1923 to 1925 he was an assistant city prosecuting attorney. The report of the bar association says of Mr. Heller:

"He served as a judge of the Municipal court for a term of six years. He was prompt and diligent in the dispatch of business. His judicial service in the main gave satisfaction. He is qualified to be a judge of the Circuit court."

SENTENCE LEWIS TO 14 YEARS AS ABORTION SLAYER

"Dr." Sherman T. Lewis, 72 years old, was sentenced to 14 years in Joliet penitentiary yesterday for the murder by abortion of Miss Dorothy Waters, a night club entertainer known as Babe Lee. Judge Rudolph F. Desort gave the defendant the minimum sentence on the charge after overruling a motion for a new trial.

Miss Waters died in Lewis' apartment at 909 Wilson avenue on Jan. 4. The state charged that Lewis had performed the illegal operation after the girl had been sent to him by his son, Dr. James W. Lewis, a Milwaukee dentist. The elder Lewis' license to practice medicine in Wisconsin was revoked and he had never been licensed in Illinois.

Judge Edward D. Shurtleff of Waukegan yesterday sentenced Armin Kreutzer, former Milwaukee veterinarian, to serve from one to 14 years in state prison for manslaughter. Kreutzer was convicted of causing the death of Mrs. Anna Balis of Cudahy, Wis., through an illegal operation.

Fears U. S. Liquor Trial; Hangs Himself in Home

Hilding Johnson, 52 years old, 10253 Commercial avenue, committed suicide yesterday by hanging himself in his home. Johnson's son, Kurt, told police his father had been despondent over his pending trial for prohibition violation before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson.

DEMOCRATS OPEN COUNTRY TOWN BENCH CAMPAIGN

Democrats opened their campaign in the country towns for the judicial election June 5 yesterday with a meeting at the Morrison hotel attended by committeemen and workers from the precincts in Cook county outside Chicago. Among those present were candidates on the Democratic fusion ticket, which includes 19 sitting judges, nine of whom are Republicans who elected to run under the Democratic circle.

The candidates were introduced one by one and made brief remarks of a general nature in conformity with the custom of keeping the judicial campaign in comport with judicial dignity. The workers, some 600 of whom were in attendance, received instructions from the party organization on getting out the vote.

In other meetings the precinct captains and workers from the three divisions of Chicago have already received the program of action and the coming week will see activities by the party workers in the various wards.

The bar association yesterday gave a luncheon at which ten of the 23 candidates it has indorsed were guests. Francis X. Busch presided. Charles P. Megan, president of the bar association, spoke.

"No matter what laws may be passed," he said, "they are useless unless the judges, to whom is entrusted their enforcement, are honest, able, and fearless."

The Cook County Bar association, composed of colored attorneys, gave a banquet last night at 4415 South Parkway for the judicial candidates it has indorsed. Its indorsements include 15 of the sitting Circuit judges. Wendell E. Green, James B. Cashin, and William H. Haynes had charge of publicity arrangements. Alva L. Bates is president and J. Milton Sampson secretary of the organization.

$25,000 FENCING MASTER'S SUIT IN JURY'S HANDS

The $25,000 slander suit brought by Edmond J. Clermont, society fencing master, against William C. Hollister, 538 Roscoe street, wealthy printer, was in the hands of a jury last night. As the courts are closed today for the opening of the Fair, the sealed verdict will be opened on Monday by Circuit Judge George Fred Rush.

Clermont charged that Hollister had called him a white slaver and that these remarks had caused him the loss of his position as fencing master at several clubs as well as the loss of a number of society pupils.

Hollister, testifying in his defense yesterday, said that Clermont had made advances to his niece, Miss Lucille Le Brie, when she visited him for a fencing lesson. He denied that he had told Mrs. Richard C. Folsom, who was athletic director at the Illinois Women's Athletic club in 1926 and who testified for Clermont, that Clermont was a white slaver.

THE EXPOSITION OPENS.

Forty years ago Chicago indulged in its first great exposition. Probably only those who lived through that experience can realize its inspiration. The mere record of its was and is impressive, but the deep thrill of it was the privilege and the unforgettable memory of those who looked upon its notable presence and fed upon its beauties and excitements. The world, at first skeptical and reluctant, finally came to applaud, and the city, in the glow of splendid achievement, figured for the first time as a world city worthy to take its place among the great capitals of civilization. If all the generous hopes of that moment have not been realized, the Columbian Exposition of 1893 was, and remains, an irreplaceable accomplishment in our city's history and an event of high significance in the history of the cities of the world.

It was the sense of this that created the reluctance among many of those in Chicago upon whom such labors mainly depend to embark upon the enterprise which is offered to the public today. The Columbian Exposition was something that could not be repeated. It expressed a moment that could not be lived again. Reluctance was wise; but wiser still, we now know, it was to overcome it. Nevertheless it existed and no real account of A Century of Progress Exposition can omit it. The Columbian Exposition was launched upon a wind of enthusiasm. A Century of Progress has had to battle every inch of the way. This is an aspect of this adventure which at least in Chicago can never be forgotten. The Exposition of 1933 is a moral triumph of courage and devotion against heartbreaking difficulties and discouragements. If there was an unforgettable and irrecoverable thrill in the Columbian Exposition there is reason for an even deeper emotion in the accomplishment of this high adventure won through battering years of darkness and storm. The story of it is yet to be told in its detail and fullness and credit given to the men who have carried the huge responsibility of the campaign. Today we may look upon their work and share their happiness in what it is and what it means.

We have recalled the Columbian Exposition, but comparison is not called for. A Century of Progress expresses our day as successfully as its predecessor expressed its own. We need not elaborate upon the differences disclosed or what they may signify. It is enough for us to understand what we have and to enjoy it to the full. The Exposition, as its official name indicates, is primarily a record and review of the accomplishments in applied science, in industry, in material welfare which have marked the century. But if it is a reminder of what has been done, it also throws its myriad lights upon the possibilities, indeed the probabilities, of the future. It faces forward, not backward, and in charting with skill and just judgment the path we have come opens to the mind the march of tomorrow. In this time of doubt and hesitation it is a heartening experience. What man has done man can do and will do better. Many of the best minds in science and industry, in social endeavor and education have worked upon the pages thrown open to us today and those who read them will pay tribute to the intelligence and skill with which the meaning and promise of the century's accomplishments have been presented.

But the foundation of serious significance is not and ought not to be all the Exposition; for the Exposition is well conceived as not only an exposition but a fair with what a fair implies of gayety and recreation. Its spirit is carnival. Light and color cover it as a gay garment. Its site on the lake shore is an incomparable gift and if there is anything ingenuity has overlooked in the possibilities of entertainment for all tastes and ages we doubt if it will be missed.

The Exposition relies also upon the permanent resources of the city, the planetarium, the aquarium, the Field museum, Soldiers' field for games and pageants, all at its gates, and in the Art institute has been assembled the most remarkable exhibition of art, past and contemporary, ever gathered in America. Beyond all this itself is the city, its parks and boulevards and places of outdoor and indoor recreation and its institutions. Perhaps it is not overweening local pride to say that Chicago itself will not be for our visitors the least impressive of their memories.

SOVIET CO-OPERATION.

Responding to the President's message, Michail Kalinin, president of soviet Russia, remarks that "aggression, whether military or economic, on the part of one country against another affects the interests not only of the two countries concerned but also of all other countries by adding to the existing economic chaos." But what of aggression in the form of a world-wide organization to foment violence against all governments? Words of peace from the mouth of any communist official are not worth cable tolls. Pledges of cooperation among other governments contain some promise of fulfillment because their interest, even though it is often slighted, is in peace and economic restoration. But pledges of the communist government are worth only what the immediate and imperative needs of the soviet experiment dictate. Moscow's policy is not to make peace but trouble for every other country. If it could afford at this moment to add to "the existing economic chaos" it would unhesitatingly do so. Fortunately internal conditions do not permit this amiable course of action. Even in the Kremlin the theory that the communist experiment can accomplish its five year plans or survive through the destruction of Europe and America has been fading out. It must postpone its hopes of democratic chaos, but they are only postponed. Soviet coöperation can be accepted only on this understanding.

THE SOURCE OF CHICAGO'S MILK.

The determination of the health officials of Chicago to draw the city's fresh milk supply from within a radius of 100 miles from the city has much to commend it. The shorter haul should bring fresher milk and cream to Chicago and the narrowing of the area of supply should make inspection both less expensive and more effective in guarding the health of the public and of children in particular.

While considerations of health are the primary ones which have led to the change, other benefits may also be foreseen. The increased reliance of Illinois farmers on the Chicago market should make them more aware than they have been frequently in the past of how closely their interests are bound to those of Chicago. As the city prospers a market is created for what the farmers have to sell. Any measure calculated to injure the city is certain to have its injurious effect upon the farmers.

The same lesson may also be learned by farmers in neighboring states, particularly Wisconsin, whose government has been a consistent enemy of Chicago for many years. Wisconsin took a leading part in the controversy over lake levels. The taxpayers of Chicago will be obliged to foot the bill for sewage treatment works to cost more than 140 million dollars as a result of that litigation. While the health authorities have taken the initiative in narrowing the circle of milk supply and have not been motivated by ideas of revenge, the lesson may nevertheless prove a salutary one for Wisconsin.

MR. ICKES IN THE WRONG SPOT.

Mr. Ickes, secretary of the interior, advises the Chicago sanitary district to levy a sewage tax on property owners after the fashion of the water tax, and thus raise the money to put in the works required by the Supreme court finding in the water diversion case.

Mr. Ickes is a resident of Wilmette, was a lawyer practicing in Chicago, and is a citizen of Illinois. These items in his vital statistics might naturally incline him to be, if not a special pleader, at least a reasonable advocate in Washington in matters in which his state is interested. It is seldom observed in other states that their citizens who find places of authority and influence in Washington are indifferent when state interests arise. Mr. Johnson of California was never found lukewarm when California wanted Boulder dam or anything else, whether California was entitled to it or not. The aloof Mr. Borah seldom loses sight of the fact that Idaho is the state he represents. The list of special advocates represents every state except Illinois, regardless of what the project may be. That is how money is sluiced out of Washington. Its direction and volume are both controlled by special influence and vigorous advocacy.

Mr. Ickes would do much better if he bucked up in the face of these special interests and demanded that the big barons give Illinois a square deal. There isn't a project knocking at the treasury door which has half the validity or honesty of this Chicago undertaking, which is covered by a Supreme court mandate and is insisted upon by other states for their own benefit and in their own interest. Mr. Ickes cannot find any enterprise in his own department which has nearly as just a claim upon federal funds as the work required in the Chicago sanitary district. He sees all about him the footprints of able go-getters tracking to and from the treasury, and if they are light when they approach, they are heavy when they retire. He needn't tell Illinois what to do, but he should tell his associates in the federal government what is just and equitable to his own state. He needn't be shamefaced about it. He has the best case that has appeared in Washington since the public treasury became a public crib.

Editorial of the Day

[Rockford Register-Republic.]

Resignation of Miss Amelia Earhart, premier aviatrix of the United States, from the National Aeronautical association does not come as a surprise to those familiar with internal problems of the aviation industry.

For some years the organization, whose functions largely have been superseded by the Federation Aeronautique Internationale, has assumed a dictatorial attitude toward control of flying in this country. Many leaders of the industry, manufacturers and pilots alike, have reached the conclusion that no good purpose would be served by continuing the association.

Originally, in post-war days, it sought to impose some kind of control over aviation and in fairness to the organization it must be admitted that it did accomplish something in this direction in years gone by. However, since the federal government established direct supervision over the manufacturing of aircraft and the licensing of planes and pilots, the N. A. A., as it is known, receded into the background.

Today the Federation Aeronautique Internationale is the dominating body in world aviation. No record—speed, altitude, endurance, or any other—may become official unless the F. A. I. recognizes and certifies it. Pilots' licenses from the federation naturally are highly regarded, while the average American airman is little concerned whether he has a rating from the national association.

Miss Earhart, whose opinion should carry weight, contends that no reason now exists for continuing the organization except in skeleton form. She also feels that its maintenance imposes unwarranted expense upon an industry which, like practically all others, is hard pressed to keep its head above water. The next few months probably will witness a showdown on the question of authority, with the association ultimately on the outside looking in.

The formal breaking point may be reached in air races sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE for July 1, 2, 3, 4, which the N. A. A. has refused to sanction. The association has warned pilots that if they participate in the meet they will be prohibited for one year from taking part in sanctioned races. But the imposing list of nationally known pilots already entered in Chicago's speed events indicates that the association's hand is to be called and that it is to be relegated for all time to an unimportant position in control of national aviation activities.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

PROF. EYAM NUTZ, the great astrologist, informed us yesterday that he fears the light ray from Arcturus which was to start the illumination of the World's Fair at 9:15 tonight will not arrive on schedule time. Prof. Nutz said that forty years ago, at 9:15 in the evening exactly, Arcturus had a puncture, caused by stepping on the tail of a comet. A short circuit resulted, fuses blew out all over the place, and Arcturus was totally dark for an hour. Therefore, says Prof. Nutz, no light rays left Arcturus at exactly 9:15 forty years ago. The professor suggests that one hundred and fifteen trainloads of candles be rushed to the Fair today to provide light in case his information is correct. It might not be a bad idea. A lot of things seem to happen in Mr. Morgan's office in New York that we are a long time in finding out, and Arcturus is a lot farther away than Mr. Morgan's office.

LITANY.

After the way of tranquil women
Happily keeping five rooms bright,
I have gone singing all this morning,
Setting the rugs and pictures right—

Filling a vase with white sweet bells,
Mending a torn familiar glove,
After the way of happy women
Wrapping their bodies round with love.

Finding peace in a plot of pansies,
Letting the heart grow dull and good,
Doing the daily stint and homely,
Learning things that a woman should—

I'll be free of bewildered longing,
Soft, submissive as melting snow.
Such is the fashion of wise women,

UNDERSTANDING MORDECAI.

Sir: I just been readin' a pamphlet that was wrote by that there Prof. Mordecai Ezekiel of the government's farm department, tellin' about a scheme for controllin' the birth rate of hogs. Now I ain't no hand to criticize the government for doin' things they think best but it looks to me like they was goin' pretty far when they start pullin' that Margaret Sanger stuff on the pigs. I don't think it's constitutional, or somethin', to say to the mamma pig: "you can't have more'n six piggies." Mebbe some of the pigs will fall for this birth control stuff but I'll bet that they'll have a tough time with the hog that ain't never read "What Every Hog Otta Know" an' won't listen to that there Prof. Ezekiel. He goes on an' tells how you can guess what the price of pigs is gonna be by algebra, or somethin', an' I was readin' some of his pamphlet to my brother Reid at South Bend that has been to college, where he says: "Holding all the factors except supply, price, population, and time constant, the equation (in terms of deviations from the means) becomes log x 12 equals minus 0.62061 log x 1 plus 2.60325 log x 6 plus 0.02428 x 9." An' Reid says: "Well, you gotta figure it like the one about the grasshopper, you know: If it takes a woodpecker, with a rubber bill, eight months an' seventeen days to peck a hole in a cypress log that'll make three and a half bundles of shingles, with shingles at 67 cents a bundle, how long will it take a cross-eyed grasshopper, with a wooden leg, to kick all of the seeds out of a dill pickle."

THAT OTTAWA FELLA.

AND NOW it's the gulf stream. Sea captains report that it isn't where it used to be. We have our suspicions. It's probably been hooked on to the Muscle Shoals and Tennessee Valley conservation project and it's going to be turned and made to run through Virginia and some more southern states so as to keep 'em warm in winter.

WHEN DANDELIONS COME.

When morning leaps across the Summer waters,
When sunset burns the forest with its flame,
When Father Moon, with all his spangled daughters,
Invades the sky—such glory lacks a name.
To see a mountain stand majestic, lonely,
Against an Autumn twilight's final flare,
To look far down on brooding vales, and only
One's God beside—such beauty breeds despair.
To walk through tinted woods of late October
Is but to weep that death can be so dear.
Bleak, wailing winds—they wring one's heart with sober
But let these pass. One's very soul goes dumb
When May arrives and dandelions come!

AT LEAST let it be cut into our simple white tombstone in bold letters, U. C. R. (upper case Roman), "HE NEVER BORROWED SO MUCH AS A NICKEL FROM J. P. MORGAN." We could be elected President on the strength of that epitaph, but, of course, it will then be too late.

CRADLE CAP.

TETTER on the head, or cradle cap, a disorder known by other names as well as these, is one of the nightmares that afflict mothers. It develops usually in fat, well fed, well nourished and otherwise healthy babies. In fact, breast fed babies that are growing and thriving in all other ways are just those who are seemingly most liable to develop it. So few symptoms accompany it that we wonder how an infant can have so much trouble with his skin and yet be so normal in his lungs, heart, kidneys, digestion, and digestive organs. The question comes up that since the baby's digestion is so good, and he is growing and thriving, and since the food he is getting is just what the authorities say it should be, why not let well enough alone? Why do anything?

In spite of everything the mother is not apt to want to let things drift. In the first place, the eruption is so displeasing in appearance. A baby with cradle cap is far from being attractive, and mothers like to show their babies. In the second place, the eruption itches and causes the child to be uncomfortable. To prevent him from scratching the red, sore, oozing areas is very difficult.

The trouble lies with the food, ninety-nine times out of a hundred. However appropriate the diet may be for the average child, and however well it may suit this child's growth needs, it is unwholesome in that it causes the skin trouble. The reason is that the child has been sensitized to some food ingredient and that is now poisoning him. In all probability he inherited some allergy tendency from a parent or other relative, but whether that is the case or not he is now being poisoned by some food which is wholesome for other children, and even is so to this child except as to this one quality.

If a baby has a light case of eczema due to food it is the part of wisdom to continue the diet as it was, changing it with increasing age, treating the skin with some appropriate salve, and awaiting the natural tendency to these tetters to disappear by the end of the second year. Almost all the cases of skull cap are due to one or more of these three foods—milk, eggs, wheat. Of these milk is much the most frequent cause. Some parts of milk may be wholesome and others unwholesome in a given case. A few cases are caused by the milk fats. They get better when skim milk is used. Some are due to milk sugars.

However, very much the most fruitful source of the trouble is the milk proteins. It has been found that some babies get well promptly when they are fed milk substitutes containing no milk and not made from milk. Some babies thrive on soy bean milk. Japanese and Chinese babies get soy bean milk and other milk substitutes. It has been found that prolonged boiling—boiling for several hours—so changes the proteins of milk that babies with skull cap, when fed this way, recover promptly. Preparations of long boiled milk, suitable for use with some skull cap babies, are on the market.

If egg is the food to which the child is sensitized the simplest way out is to give an egg free diet. If wheat is the cause some cereal can be substituted for wheat, bread and crackers. However, there are available cereal starches especially prepared so that they are less liable to cause allergy diseases.

MOUTH CANKERS.

J. T. B. writes: 1. I am subject to frequent canker sores in the mouth. Could this come from my diet?

2. I am rather fond of desserts, mainly puddings and cakes. Is this a contributing cause?

3. Are there any serious consequences?

REPLY.

1. Yes, and usually does.

2. A diet that contains too much sweets is often the cause.

3. No. The pain and inconvenience are the only harm done by the cankers.

SEE A PHYSICIAN.

W. B. writes: What is angina pectoris? What are the symptoms? Is it curable? If so, what can one do? If not, how long can a person live who works hard at manual labor?

REPLY.

Angina pectoris is a neuralgic pain and uneasiness originating in the heart. The term is used to cover two or three related heart conditions. The outstanding symptoms were given in the first sentence of the reply. A physician's services should be used. He will diagnose the particular kind of angina and advise treatment for relief and to ward off attacks. Angina is always a serious disorder.

POLICE EXAMINATIONS.

Chicago, May 23.—[Friend of the People.]—I would like to know what the requirements are for a plain clothes man job on the city police force. When will the next examination take place?

T. A. F.

No examination is scheduled at this time for patrolmen, but we have placed the name of the writer on our mailing list for notification of same when called. Assignments to plain clothes duty are made from the ranks of patrolmen by the commissioner of police. The age limits are 21 to 28 years; minimum height required, 5 feet 9 inches; minimum weight, 145 pounds.

JAMES S. OSBORNE,
Secretary Civil Service Commission.

ATTORNEY'S FEES.

Chicago, May 24.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—About two years ago I gave an attorney $100 to cover court costs and a bond in a suit he was filing for me. This money was turned over to him in three payments of $25, $50 and $25. The $50 item was turned over to him to cover cost of bond in my case [that's what he claimed], but I found out the case was never filed and no request was made to him for any money to cover cost of bond. In other words, he obtained the money from me under false pretenses. He has refused to refund the money now and the bar association will not take any steps to disbar him from their organization. What do you advise?

C. D.

We cannot determine whether the demand for the bond fee was made in good faith without knowing the nature of the case. If you wish to try to force him to return the money, court proceedings would be necessary, for which it would seem necessary that you employ another attorney. Apparently, the bar association representatives with whom you have discussed the case were in a better position to advise you than we are.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

40 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 27, 1893.

CHICAGO.—The United States government will this morning file its bill for an injunction to restrain the World's Fair directors from opening the exposition gates Sunday. It is doubtful whether the case can be heard today. Meanwhile plans are going forward to open the gates tomorrow [Sunday].

The bust of Harriet Beecher Stowe was unveiled in the library of the Woman's building. Mrs. Isabella Beecher Hooker presented the bust to the library. Miss Anne Whitney of Boston is the sculptor and the studies for the bust were made by her at Mrs. Hooker's house in New Haven, a portrait of Mrs. Stowe being used to supplement her own sketches and measurements.

The Italian exhibit in Manufactures building will be formally opened to public inspection today. The Marquis de Ungaro, royal commissioner general, and Dr. Candiani, principal commissioner of manufactures for Italy, will hold a reception this afternoon and meet invited guests.

The Ferris wheel is a sure enough wheel now. The great felloes were joined together yesterday, and the work of lighting up was begun. Twenty-five of the thirty-six cars which will be suspended from the wheel have already been completed. Contractors expect to have the wheel in operation by June 10.

The captive balloon people will try to get their airship inflated by Sunday and, as the Barre sliding railway and the ice slide are nearly finished, there will be no lack of thrilling and novel modes of transportation for the crowds expected tomorrow.

The "Street in Cairo," through the closed gates of which multitudes have been gazing curiously since May 1, will be formally opened today. Three hundred Cairoites, Egyptians, Arabs, Nubians, and Soudanese will lead a parade scheduled for 10 o'clock this morning.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 27, 1917.

CHICAGO.—A tornado in east central Illinois yesterday caused the death of between 100 and 200 persons, the injury of several hundred more, and property damage which cannot now be estimated. Wire service to the stricken district is defective. The center of destruction was in and about Mattoon and Charleston in Coles county. The wind also swept through Greene, Christian, Macoupin, Shelby, and Pike counties. There was much damage in Grundy and Will counties.

WAR SUMMARY.—Sixteen German aircraft raided southeast England, killing seventy-six persons and injuring 174. Considerable property damage was done. Rome reports continued Italian successes against the Austrians. They captured 3,500 in their latest operation and carried trenches east of Jamiano on the road to Triest. London reports advance of the British line northwest of Fontaine-Croisilles and the repulse of hostile raids.

WASHINGTON.—One week from next Tuesday, on June 5, every young man in the United States who is 21 years old and who has not reached his thirty-first birthday, or unless he already is engaged in some military arm of the government, must register for service in the new national army of 500,000 men to be raised under the selective service law enacted by congress on May 18. After the registration the government will draw by lot, under regulations yet to be announced, the names of 1,000,000 or more men. From these will be drafted the 500,000 who are to form the first increment of the new army.

THE MORGAN INQUIRY.

Pekin, Ill., May 24.—Reading your today's account of the Morgan investigation before the senate banking committee—and, by the way, these investigations seem to be an almost continuous performance—I wondered if it would not be possible to have some little light on the investigators' taxes.

The senatorial committee may be righteously indignant in regard to Mr. Morgan's taxes, but, as it seems to me, it would be extremely interesting to read the record of tax payments made by the senators themselves. These gentlemen pay almost any price, resort to every known device, to get themselves chosen to represent the public and prescribe the proper line of action for businesses as well as individuals.

Have we, in fact, enough senators having absolutely clean skirts of their own to form a committee competent to pass upon the affairs of others? Or is it taken for granted that, having been chosen by the people through the use of every known political strategem, these gentlemen are, perforce, without sin?

MANY CENTURIES AND NO PROGRESS.

Chicago, May 25.—I understand the World's Fair is going to charge for the use of comfort stations. Investigation yesterday disclosed that in many of the big buildings the only toilet facilities are run on a pay as you enter basis. For instance, in the huge Electrical building there is a toilet at each end. They're not operated on the system used by stations and other public places where one at least can enter and wash his hands without cost and then have the choice of using a free or pay toilet.

At the Fair the comfort rooms in the big buildings can be entered only through a turnstile, with an initial cash payment just to enter. It was stated on good authority that there'll be additional charges of a nickel and further charges for use of a wash bowl, as well as a cent for a towel and a cent for soap. There are no free toilets in the Electrical building, according to officials.

We would say that more concentrated unpleasantness and genuine dislike for Chicago and the Fair will be stirred up by this bit of commercialism than can be offset by millions spent in other ways. The farmer isn't used to being charged and his resentment eventually will react on Chicago and the Chicago market. In addition, visitors are going to avoid buildings which furnish no comfort facilities and exhibitors in those structures are going to suffer.

THE NEW SCHOOL TRUSTEES.

Chicago, May 12.—Our mayor has appointed the five new members to the board of education. May I suggest that you interview these appointees and let the public know something about them? Such facts as birthplace, schools attended, business connections [which have already been given], club affiliations, and, if there are children, the schools their children attend. Such information would be of great interest to many of your readers.

You know, of course, that our public schools have been dominated by politicians over a long period of years, so that today they are outstanding among the schools of the country as the ones that glorify the janitor. By politicians I mean those who regard our schools primarily as institutions supplying jobs rather than as institutions to educate our children. Chicago spends more on the administration and maintenance of her schools than any large city in the country, but spends the least on the education of her children, and the Chicago teachers also carry the greatest pupil load.

The spectacular method of economy adopted by our board impresses only those who do not look behind the scenery. I refer to the economy effected by saving diplomas, and the closing of schools at 3 o'clock instead of 3:15 to save coal. These economies, of course, are meant to impress the public and to divert attention from the waste, extravagance and unwise expenditures for which our Chicago schools are known throughout the country.

We show a fine front yard to visitors—the Spalding School for Crippled Children, the Joyce Kilmer school, and other show places—but we are careful not to show them our back yard, in which we find conditions no one would believe, and which a visit to the Bowen High school and the Avalon Park Elementary school on the south side would reveal.

I shall look for a biography of our new school board members in your metropolitan section next Sunday.

NOTE ON THE DIET OF CATS.

Chicago, May 23.—"Northern Indiana Reader" is absolutely right in saying that cats when well fed will not molest birds. Let me add that a cat should be fed on an exclusive raw meat diet four times daily and with plenty of milk and water to drink. Then there will be no craving for birds as food.

My own pet cat has frequently brought into me baby robins and laid them at my feet quite unharmed. I soothe the little creatures' fears and place them on the window sill to fly back home. In six years I have never known him to harm any living thing. That is more than can be said for most human beings.

NO MORE PEACE GUARANTEES! IS BRITISH DICTUM

Stands on Old Pacts; Will Sign No New Ones.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 26.—America's abandonment of its historic doctrine of freedom of the seas was hailed with joy by Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, in the debate on foreign affairs in the house of commons today. The debate took the form of a report by the government to parliament on recent events at the Geneva disarmament conference.

Sir John said the declaration of Norman H. Davis, American ambassador at large, that America will no longer insist on the right to trade with or help a power designated as the aggressor in a future war was a historic document which changed the whole face of world politics.

States British Policy.

FIRST—Great Britain warmly welcomes President Roosevelt's message.

SECOND—Great Britain has already effected vast reductions in armaments and cannot go further without a general agreement.

THIRD—The British government recognizes the validity of the concern for the future which lies behind the demand of certain states for security.

FOURTH—Great Britain is ready to join other countries in consultation for promoting security. Commenting on this principle, Sir John said Britain will strive to perform the obligations she has already assumed in the Locarno and other pacts, but he said the continental nations must understand that Great Britain will assume no further obligations to guarantee their security.

Says No Settlement Is Near.

Discussing Davis' declaration at Geneva, Sir John said:

"I do not think this was ever said on behalf of the United States before. The policy of merely standing by with folded arms as spectator from afar of a struggle between two powers, when one has been declared in the wrong, has been abandoned."

Concluding, Sir John struck a sour note. He said:

"It would be foolish to delude ourselves with the hope that we are on the eve of some definite and final agreement, but there is a good spirit in the efforts which are being made to go through the British plan for disarmament, article by article."

Lansbury Recalls Wilson.

George Lansbury, leader of the Labor opposition, sneered at the Davis declaration. He reminded the house that President Wilson said the same thing and was repudiated by his country. He also pointed out that the United States only said she would do certain things if she herself decided who was in the right and who in the wrong in a dispute. He argued that peace cannot be assured until America and every one else is ready to take the decision of a body of international jurists on the merits of a dispute.

Sir Austen Chamberlain defended America's good faith. He said he had no more doubt in the faith of the American people than that of the English. He did, however, display some doubt in the good faith of Chancellor Hitler's declaration of peaceable intent, declaring that deeds are needed as well as words. He said he was surprised that no one had repudiated Vice Chancellor von Papen's "terrible speech" on the glories of war. While urging eventual disarmament, Sir Austen said he would not urge anyone to disarm until the good faith of Germany is fully proved by actions.

KELVYN PARK AND ENGLEWOOD HIGH WIN IN CLEANUP

Five scholarships were awarded and the school winners were announced in the annual cleanup week conducted by the Chicago Association of Commerce and the schools at the annual civic assembly yesterday at the Union League club. Englewood High school and Kelvyn Park Junior High school were declared winners of the campaign to clean up Chicago for the World's Fair.

President James B. McCahey of the board of education appeared at the luncheon as the representative of Mayor Kelly.

Winners of the scholarships were selected for their scholastic ability, character and civic leadership. They were: Leonard Peifer of Austin High school and Dorothy Axtel of Schurz High school, to Northwestern university; Edmond J. Lindblom of Englewood High school and Bessie Nicopoulos of Austin High school, to the University of Chicago, and Ernest Bodenmann of Lane Technical High school, to Armour Institute of Technology.

GRANTED DIVORCE

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Circuit Judge Philip J. Finnegan yesterday granted Mrs. Helen Rend Clarke a divorce from John Vaughan Clarke III. on grounds of cruelty. Mrs. Clarke is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Rend. Clarke, whose parents live in California, is a broker. The couple's marriage last October was a social event.

Mrs. Clarke described a series of occasions from April 2 until May 11, when they separated, on which her husband allegedly struck and bruised her.

Mrs. Clarke told Judge Finnegan that she received a property settlement out of court, and asked no alimony. She is now living with her parents.

JAPAN DEMANDS RECOGNITION OF RACIAL EQUALITY

Also Insists on Parity in Armaments.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, May 26.—Japan is likely to demand not only armament equality with the great powers of the western world but also racial equality, the foreign office spokesman intimated today in commenting on Ambassador Naotake Sato's speech to the disarmament conference, in which Sato said Japan regards the London naval treaty as unstable.

The spokesman explained that the question is one of principle, and that Japan may be satisfied to obtain parity on paper only and racial equality in principle. A gentlemen's agreement may be entered into under which Japan would agree to limit emigration to restricted areas, such as the United States, but in which racial discrimination would be done away with.

Balks at Signing Treaty.

GENEVA, May 26.—(AP)—Japan cannot sign the projected general disarmament treaty if it refers to the Washington and London naval conventions, which bind her to the short end of a 5-5-3 ratio, Tokio's spokesman, Ambassador Naotake Sata, informed the disarmament conference today.

Reference to these former agreements, Sato said, would amount to perpetuating the present proportion in the new treaty, which is contrary to Japan's desires.

The Japanese delegate made it clear that his country proposes at the expiration of the London treaty in 1936 to seek a revision which will give the Japanese navy greater relative strength in the face of American and British sea power.

Japan's views were presented to the conference in the form of an amendment calling for deletion from the British draft plan of the clause which would embody the Washington and London naval treaties in the proposed new convention.

The existing naval treaties, the Japanese amendment said, "are unstable in character and will soon expire" and they therefore should not be referred to in the new treaty.

Wants a Reduction.

Sato asserted that the Japanese amendment did not disturb the present validity or the structure of the Washington and London pacts. He disagreed with Norman H. Davis, American ambassador at large, who had said that elimination of reference to these treaties would have an unfortunate effect on public opinion.

The British plan, the Japanese spokesman said, does not provide for reduction of naval armaments, but only for a truce in existing strengths.

The Japanese proposals presented last December to the conference would have meant a reduction in total actual naval tonnage of 880,000 in the British, American, and Japanese fleets, Sato asserted, or a reduction of 1,130,000 tons as compared with the figures allowed the three nations by the Washington and London treaties.

World's Fair Adds 4 Books to Literature

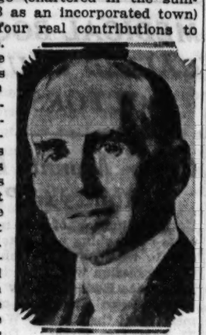
Leaders in Various Fields Tell of Progress.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

TO adorn the opening today of the exposition celebrating A Century of Progress in the city of Chicago (chartered in the summer of 1833 as an incorporated town) there are four real contributions to literature. To make the city and its Exposition more charming and understandable to its inhabitants and visitors there are at least three excellent guide books. It seems fitting that all of them should have their place in today's columns.



DR. C. A. BEARD.

There is importantly "A Century of Progress" [Harpers], edited by Charles A. Beard, which triumphantly chronicles the working out of the theory that the lot of mankind on this earth can be continually improved by the attainment of exact knowledge and the subjugation of the material world to the requirements of human welfare."

Mr. Beard, the editor of this remarkable symposium, thus defines progress. He further clarifies his meaning with "To see life whole and to see it steadily, to sound its depths, to illuminate its possibilities, and to make the noblest and wisest use of material resources in realizing its purposes, this is the sum total of the idea of progress."

In that wide and comprehensive sense and not in the celebration alone of Chicago's century of progress is this stimulating and impressive volume dedicated. The foremost men and women in their fields have contributed to it short surveys of the progress of the last one hundred years in the ways of humankind. The result is a book of inestimable value and of oddly inspiriting optimism for the reader who has been unable or disinclined to study for himself the actual events of recent human progress. Waldemar Kaempffert succinctly explains "Invention as a Social Manifestation" and gives the history of the great period of invention which has given the name "mechanical" to our era. Henry Ford, in collaboration with Samuel Crowther, discusses "Industry" with understanding. Edward Hungerford tells of the wonders of "Transportation and Communication," Frank O. Lowden explains the importance of "Agriculture" and recites the story of its progress, and William Green of "Labor."

H. Parker Willis tells of the stabilization of "Banking and Finance" from the practical chaos of a century ago. Mr. Beard reviews the progress of "Government and Law," Jane Addams, with her usual sympathy, describes "The Process of Social Transformation," Grace Abbott makes clear "The Changing Position of Women," and Watson Davis "The Advancement of Natural Science," which has come almost as far from its century-old standards as the more advertised physical sciences. Fielding H. Garrison opens readers' eyes to the progress of "Medicine," Charles H. Judd, "Education," and Fiske Kimball and John Erskine survey, without labeling it progress, the accomplishments of men in the fine arts and in literature during the century. Incidentally Mr. Erskine's survey is one of the most inclusive and best swift summaries that I have ever read. The whole book has a quality of rightness despite its necessary brevity on each subject. The book is issued with the approval of the advisory committee on publications of A Century of Progress Exposition.

The visitors of two hundred and sixty years, from 1673 to 1933, provide the material for "As Others See Chicago" [University of Chicago Press], edited by Bessie Louise Pierce. It is a delightful compendium of criticisms good and bad of our native town from Father Jacques Marquette, who found it merely an indeterminate spot beside a great lake where his company killed thirty pigeons in one day and where his illness did not prevent him from saying holy mass every day, to Morris Markey, visitor in 1932, who found us a city of urgency and furious endeavor, and said "from the meanest to the highest in Chicago there is no repose," but declared that because of that very fact "there is not much doubt that it will dominate the stream of American civilization."

Between them came hundreds who hated Chicago, Rudyard Kipling among them, and as many more who found in it something more vital than any other city in the world boasted. The book is a delightful compilation of letters and extracts from books which is an ideal souvenir of Chicago, for other visitors and for natives who have never taken the trouble to look upon their city with seeing eyes.

"Cheecagou" [1673-1833] [University of Chicago Press], by Milo M. Quaife, and "Chicago's Great Century" [1833-1933] [Consolidated Publishers], by Henry Justin Smith, together give the history of Chicago from its first white footfall to the present. They are the work of a fine historian and of a brilliant journalist, both of whom have both the excellent qualities of historian-journalist. The story they tell is more than a noble one. It is a thriller!

It looks to me as if no Chicagoan or visitor can be without any of these books. A Chicago bookshelf. (To which must be added "Chicago: The History of Its Reputation," Mr. Smith's collaboration with Lloyd Lewis of a couple of years ago, and the delightful, recently published "Julia Newberry's Diary.")

Three excellent guide books have been done about Chicago. Two of them, "All About Chicago" [Houghton Mifflin], by John M. and Ruth Ashenhurst, and Dorothy Aldis' guide book for children, "The Magic City" [Minton Blach] have already been reviewed in these columns. To them has recently been added "Chicago Welcomes You" [Kroch], by Alfred Granger. Mr. Granger is a distinguished Chicago architect who finds in his city beauty as well as the driving activity which has made of it in a mere one hundred years the second city of the most spectacular country on earth.

Mr. Granger recites the history of Chicago and tells the story of its industrial and cultural growth before he gives the reader valuable information as to the charms and diversions of our diverting city. He even—with the help of his daughter, as he proudly confesses—includes a shopping list which, as all readers and users of the famous Clara Laughlin guide books, "So You're Going" series, knows—is invaluable not only for the woman who wants tips on the shop market but for men who suddenly realize in a horrible moment of harassment that they have forgotten to get presents for the girls they left behind them.

Chicago may be proud to be the inspiration of today's books!

BRIEF REVIEWS
BY M. D.

The cover of "Young Mr. X.," by Elizabeth Jordan [Century], a famous writer of mystery tales, looks as if the story inside might come under the classification of mysteries. It is, however, deceptive. There are no killings until the last few pages, and these are perfectly explicable, inevitable, and unmysterious. The story concerns the strange character of Perry Norris, who appears to be a Jekyll and Hyde combination.

ELIZABETH JORDAN.

Young Penelope Lowell has the misfortune for 324 pages to be hopelessly in love with the young man. She is rich, beautiful, capable, and independent. For the sake of those who want to read the book to discover the answer to the riddle it would not be fair to reveal the trick that straightens everything out at the end.

Nichols Titles Book of Plays His "Failures"

Versatile Author Is Busy at All Times.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—There is a sort of defiance in the title under which Beverly Nichols publishes three of his plays. He calls his book "Failures," just as for a similar reason Frederick Niven once called a book of short stories "Above Your Heads." Mr. Niven's stories had been refused by editors as being above the intelligence of their readers; Mr. Nichols' plays have either been refused by London managers or, if produced, have met with small success. But the publication of the plays under such a title will do two things.

BEVERLY NICHOLS.

It will call attention to Mr. Nichols' versatility and it will remind those who think very little about such matters that Mr. Nichols is one of the hardest workers among our younger writers. He is always writing. Hence the versatility. When he is not writing articles for newspapers he is writing novels of increasing skill and amusingness; and when he is not writing articles or broadcasting talks on the subject of gardening he is making plays upon all manner of themes.

Such constant change of work is a part of the eager spirit which Mr. Nichols brings to all things, including pacifism. Yet Hector Bolitho, who has just been writing about Mr. Nichols, has heard him described as a lounge lizard. That is because Mr. Nichols is everywhere at once—or seems to be—and his social success is as great as his literary success. No "failures" there.

Nor is Mr. Nichols' fame confined to America and England. Mr. Bolitho says that during a recent visit to a new Zionist colony in Palestine he had an odd experience. A young Jewess of charm opened a window, upon the news that an English writer was at hand, and eagerly demanded, "Is he Nichols Beverley?" Upon being told that the visitor was not Nichols Beverley but Bolitho Hector she slammed the window shut and drew the blind. No doubt she had read all Mr. Nichols' works, attracted thereto by photographs of Mr. Nichols' very handsome features. A disappointment for Mr. Bolitho, but a tribute agreeably recorded by his friend and admirer.

The British Broadcasting corporation has been much criticised [by myself among others] for allowing so many highbrow literary critics to praise each other's works over the wireless. It has done this, of course, in innocence, because the active work of the corporation is executed by young British highbrows who know no better; and at last it has shown real intelligence by asking L. A. G. Strong to broadcast a series of talks on "The Enjoyment of the Novel."

Mr. Strong is the best person who could have been chosen for this task. He is fully as "intellectual" as any highbrow, and he also has imagination, which the highbrows lack. He is entirely free from affectation. I shall be surprised if his talks are not among the most genuine successes of the year.

RICH MAN, THEN CONVICT, BRITON DIES IN POVERTY

Horatio Bottomley Was a Spellbinder in War.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 26.—Horatio Bottomley, financial wizard, ex-convict, former member of parliament, and former millionaire sportsman and publisher, died in poverty at Middlesex hospital today. He was 73 years old. His only surviving relative is an invalid daughter living in southern France.

Bottomley, who also achieved notoriety with his anti-American diatribes, was left an orphan at the age of 5. He escaped from an orphanage when he was 12 and began a career which carried him to alternate heights and depths until he was convicted of converting $500,000 to his own use in 1922—the 70th lawsuit in which his activities involved him. He was a ruined man thereafter.

Builds $5,000,000 Concern.

Bottomley got his start through a contract to publish parliamentary debates. He began a series of publishing house mergers culminating in a $5,000,000 concern which collapsed two years later. He was charged with conspiracy to defraud. He conducted his own defense and was acquitted.

He then began the promotion of companies. He formed 23 within a year with a total capital of $50,000,000. Out of 50 companies which he promoted, 24 have been reconstructed and 24 liquidated. During these financial operations Bottomley purchased a stable and won several famous races.

He entered politics and was elected to parliament as a Liberal. In 1908 and 1909 he was charged with fraudulent conversion and duplication of shares in connection with a joint stock, trust, and financial corporation. He made a speech in his own defense which lasted two days and he was acquitted.

Resigns from Parliament.

Heavy damage suits in 1911 bankrupted him and he resigned from parliament. He began the promotion of sweepstakes in Switzerland, cleaning up $750,000 on a pool in which the prizes were one-tenth of Bottomley's profit.

During the war Bottomley became a paid patriot, reaping a rich income cheering on the troops in France and spellbinding London theater audiences.

Then he paid his creditors $170,000. His bankruptcy was annulled and he reëntered the house of commons.

At the same time he branched out as the publisher of a weekly, John Bull. He previously had dabbled in journalism when he and his associates founded the Financial Times and the Sun, a London evening newspaper. It was in John Bull that he swung out right and left at America, harping particularly on the theme that the United States "filled its pockets in the war before it filled its cartridge belt."

Following the war he launched his ill-starred "victory bond" scheme with promises of financial benefits to subscribers. He was exposed by a former associate in the sweepstakes promotions, who plastered England with pahphlets describing "Bottomley's latest and greatest swindle."

Sent to Prison.

Bottomley refused to bring libel action and was placed on trial in 1922 and convicted. He was released from Maidstone prison in 1927, a broken man.

When he left prison, Bottomley received $60,000 for a series of articles and then founded a new weekly. The magazine failed and he again was bankrupt.

A few months ago he applied for an old age pension of $2.50 a week. The application was rejected.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Ah-Wah! Ah-Wah!

27 CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICTS IN REMAP PLAN FOR ILLINOIS

Springfield, Ill., May 26.—[Special.]—Believing that they have done all they can to placate congressmen who do not want their districts tampered with, a committee of legislators today completed a map reapportioning the state into 27 congressional districts. Thirteen and a large fraction of the districts were drawn downstate, while thirteen and a small fraction districts were given to Cook county, which has more than 51 per cent of the population.

Over the week-end, Representative Frank W. McClure [Dem., Abingdon], the chairman, and his associates will incorporate the new districts into a bill for presentation to the assembly next week.

Most of the last few sessions of the committee were occupied in attempting to frame a district for Speaker Henry T. Rainey which would not lessen his chances for reëlection. The committee believes that this has been accomplished, as well as bringing it closer to equality in size with other districts by adding Macoupin and Montgomery and removing Brown county.

Objections over a new district in the northwestern corner of the state are certain to be made by Republican legislators, inasmuch as two Republican congressmen—John T. Buckbee of Rockford and Leo E. Allen of Galena—were both put into it. This was balanced, however, by placing two Democrats—Frank Gillespie of Bloomington and James A. Meeks of Danville—in another district.

Congressman J. Earl Major, Democrat of Hillsboro, was shifted into Speaker Rainey's district, but this apparent difficulty may be solved, it was reported, by Major's retirement to accept a federal appointment.

Caplan, assistant to Probate Judge Horner. Mr. Jones, a bachelor, who lived at the Parkway hotel, 2100 Lincoln Park West, died on April 9 at the age of 76.

He made bequests of $50,000 each to the Home for Destitute Crippled Children, the Chicago Home for the Friendless, the Children's Memorial hospital, the Chicago Home for Incurables, the Old People's home, and the Salvation Army.

The trust fund principals are to be paid to the fund after ten years. # MEDICAL BOOM CALLED CAUSE OF DOCTORS' WOES

Costs Mount Beyond Ability to Pay.

An evaluation of the methods and costs of teaching and practicing medicine to weed out nonessentials during the depression was urged last night by Dr. James Ewing of New York before the Chicago Institute of Medicine, meeting at the Chicago Woman's club, 72 East 11th street. Dr. Ewing attacked the federal government's expenditures for hospitalization of veterans as one of the items to be eradicated.

Overexpansion of medical schools, both tax supported and endowed, was one of the extravagant growths during prosperity, according to Dr. Ewing, who is a professor of oncology at Cornell university medical college and director of the Memorial hospital for the treatment of cancer and allied diseases in New York.

Unable to Pay Costs.

The result of it all, said Dr. Ewing, is that the high cost of medical care has mounted and the practices of medicine had reached a point of diminishing returns.

"The annual bill for medical care is more than 3 billions of dollars," asserted the speaker, "or $30 per capita. That is more than the family man with a $2,000 income or less can spend, although 50 per cent of the cases that come to medical attention are in this strata of society."

The mushroom growth of medicine in this country during prosperity Dr. Ewing compared with the rise of the apothecary shops in the reign of James I. of England when there were the rendezvous for society loafers. This was the era, he said, when artists learned more about anatomy than the physicians.

"Rubens, Rembrandt, and other artists," declared Dr. Ewing, "painted their knowledge of the body on canvas while the poor were allowed to suffer and die.

Pour Money Into Hospital.

"From 1880 to 1929 in America," he continued, "our private citizens poured huge sums of money into hospitals and other institutions for the sick. Industry spent millions on medical care and our government overbuilt hospitals and forced through a hastily planned program for the treatment of veterans' ailments which were never contracted by military service.

"We have overexpanded our medical colleges to such an extent," said Dr. Ewing, "that a student must spend five years surveying the whole field before he gets out and learns something about curing a sick man."

Old and well tried standards had been abandoned in the rush, Dr. Ewing declared, to build bigger and better hospitals and schools. Often so much was expended in "brick, mortar, and bronze" that nothing had been left over for the operating expenses of the institution.

Many of the hospitals, he pointed out, have been built to glorify the institution. Medical schools, according to Dr. Ewing, have suffered from an "overexploitation of institutional reputation."

RITES HONORING CITY'S WAR DEAD TO BEGIN TODAY

Few G. A. R. Posts to Hold Services in Cemeteries.

Tribute will be paid to the city's war dead in ceremonies beginning today with the decoration of graves and services in the cemeteries and in the churches and terminating with the annual Memorial day parade in Michigan avenue on Tuesday afternoon.

Few G. A. R. posts will be able this year to conduct their own services in the cemeteries, where thousands of their comrades are at rest. This duty will fall for the most part on younger veterans' groups and affiliated women's organizations.

The first of the ceremonies will take place this afternoon when the Women's Relief corps for Wilcox post No. 257, will place wreaths on boulders dedicated to the memory of civil war veterans. These will be at 96th street and Longwood drive, 103d and Church streets, and 104th and Wallace streets. The post has only three living members.

National Chief to Attend.

N. A. Wing, commander of Meade post No. 444, G. A. R., will preside at a memorial service tomorrow at Marlboro Presbyterian church, 6800 Damen avenue. Capt. William P. Wright, national commander in chief of the G. A. R., and Mrs. Wright will attend the services as well as other veterans.

Memorial exercises will be held at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow by the Columbia post No. 706 at Forest Home cemetery. A Salvation Army band and Boy and Girl Scouts will escort the various patriotic groups. Columbia post was the home post of the late Gen. James E. Stuart, who was grand marshal of the Memorial day parade for many years.

North Shore post No. 21 of the American Legion will hold a Memorial day service at 3 p. m. tomorrow in the Irving Park Boulevard cemetery. Joseph Burke, judge of the Circuit court, will give the address. The firing squad of the 202d field artillery will give the salute.

Historical Society Observance.

A Memorial day observance will be held at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow at the Chicago Historical society. The drill battalion of the Woodlawn post No. 175 of the American Legion will assemble in front of the Lincoln monument where a wreath will be placed and an address will be given by Dr. James A. James of Northwestern university. Those attending will then go to the Historical Society building in Lincoln park where Lincoln's Gettysburg address will be read. A detail from the drill battalion will lay wreaths in the rooms dedicated to the civil, Spanish-American and world war veterans.

The largest function will be the Memorial day parade which will assemble at 1:30 p. m. Tuesday, and will start from Chicago and Michigan avenues at 2 o'clock. The parade will be headed by veterans of the civil war. They will be escorted by Gov. Horner and other high officials, the Chicago Black Horse troop, and band of the 106th cavalry, Illinois National Guard. Other individual units and bands will follow.

Presbyterian Assembly Uses New Hymn Book

Joyful Songs Take Place of Doleful Type.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Columbus, O., May 26.—[Special.]—Following yesterday's election during which the fundamentalist minority, led by Prof. J. Gresham Machen of Philadelphia, was defeated by the 145th general assembly of the Presbyterian church in session here, the assembly turned to the singing of hymns of praise out of a brand new official Presbyterian hymnal which was introduced today.

The new official hymnal was opposed by Dr. Machen on the ground that it represents the modernistic spirit in Presbyterianism. It is admitted that the new hymnal features short, joyful songs in contrast to the early Calvanistic dirges which marked services of worship.

Such doleful hymns, characteristic of the early Calvanistic fathers, are completely lacking in the new book presented to the assembly by Dr. William Chalmers Covert of Philadelphia, secretary of the Presbyterian board of education.

For instance, a hymn by Dr. William P. Merrill of New York, with a militant note of triumph, "Rise Up, O Men of God," may be said to replace the nearly forgotten hymn of defeat found in early hymnals. This dirge, which Puritans taught their children on dark and stormy Sundays, follows:

Cease mortal, now to boast thy transient charms,
A prey to worms; in vain the glass reflects
A well proportioned harmony of parts,
Since thou must rot in grave, a hideous corpse.

Dr. Hugh T. Kerr of Pittsburgh, former moderator of the general assembly, pointed to the new hymnal as one of the chief evidences of change now taking place not only in the Presbyterian church, but also throughout Protestantism generally.

"If you want to know the trends of religion, listen to the way religion sings," said Dr. Kerr.

"About 400 old hymns were dropped. The doctrine note in hymns is almost missing. In place of doctrine, brotherhood, international fellowship, and sound service are stressed. In addition to this change the new hymns, instead of stressing outward ecclesiastical conformity, sound the mystical note.

"Since the general assembly last met in Columbus eight years ago great changes have taken place in the Presbyterian church. Then we faced the crisis in the fundamentalist drive on the church. The thing was fought out on this same platform from which the announcement of Dr. John McDowell's election as moderator yesterday meant the death of fundamentalism as a party in the church."

Mr. Machen, however, today asserted the fight is not over. He said the real friends of the Bible would not rally against its traducers. The vote for Dr. McDowell, he said, was fully expected.

"Bible believing Christians," said Dr. Machen, "who are truly devoted to the deep things of the Christian faith and really aware of the present deplorable situation, are in a minority in the Presbyterian church."

The committee on foreign missions will present a report tomorrow morning which bears on Dr. Machen's criticism of Mrs. Pearl S. Buck, novelist and former missionary.

The assembly voted this afternoon to stop the publication of the Presbyterian, official paper of the church.

I hope every minute spent in Chicago will be a happy one, and am sure that some of those joyous moments will be spent, between sightseeing tours, in our movie theaters. Don't like to brag—but we HAVE got some grand cinema houses—heavenly cool and restful on a hot day, warm and relaxing on a cold one. Ease into them every now and then and see if you're not glad that you did.

Out at the Fair grounds there'll be movies, too. No need for newlyweds who picked Chicago for a honeymoon to regret not having shuffled off to Buffalo. Because, you see, Niagara Falls has come to A Century of Progress—via George M. Spoor's third dimension movie, with sound, which makes them appear just as grand and beautiful as they are in the, well—not flesh—water! "Niagara" will be shown—on the world's largest screen—at Spoor's Spectaculum on Northerly island at the 23d street bridge.

Now—about "The Eagle and the Hawk," at the Chicago.

Here's another photoplay from a story by John Monk Saunders, who, drawing from his own experiences as an aviator in the war, wrote "Wings" and "The Dawn Patrol."

This tells about American aviators who find themselves in the British Royal Flying corps. Steering clear of romance, the plot concerns itself with the adventures of men who daily fly aloft to note and photograph enemy operations.

As Jeremiah Young, ace pilot, Fredric March gives a bangup performance. He is seen as a flying man of the highest caliber. Fearless, able, sporting! He is time and again decorated for bravery and is held up to the youths who come pouring in to become cannon fodder as a shining example of all an aviator and a patriot should be.

But Young never gets inured to dealing out death. His idle moments are spent in brooding over the needless, horrible sacrifice of life that war demands. He is the "eagle."

The hawk? Cary Grant—as Henry Crocker. Crocker is a gunner. He had once aspired to become a pilot, but his abilities didn't run that way. After several observers who have flown with Young as pilot are killed, Crocker draws the job. Ruthless, conscienceless Crocker!

Though he and Young are enemies throughout the action, they unqualifiedly respect one another's skill. . . .

Young shows signs of cracking and is sent to London for a brief holiday. Here Carole Lombard makes a brief bow as a girl who is sorry for the unhappy man and does her best to quiet his remorse while he is on leave.

Back at war Young refuses to fly with Crocker. The latter's determination to kill—needlessly—has brought about the death of his pilot, Mike Richards, Young's buddy. Young's new observer, a mere boy, is shot, and falls from the plane. At last the ace's endurance snaps. Tragedy ensues. In the final scenes Crocker comes across nobly to protect the memory of the man he had hated. . . .

"The Eagle and the Hawk" incorporates some exciting air stuff. It is commendably acted, photographed and directed. Jack Oakie, as the ill fated Mike, provides refreshing comedy. Though somewhat tedious in spots, the piece holds the interest. It will probably make more of a hit with men than with women.

U. of C. Symphony Gives Concert in Tribute to Brahms

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Brahms in his phase as composer for orchestra became the subject of the second festival concert done in his celebration at Mandel hall, University of Chicago, last night. The University of Chicago Symphony orchestra, directed by Carl Bricken, played the set of variations on a theme supposedly but not certainly by Haydn, and the first symphony. Following the intermission came Egon Petri, an eminent specialist of the piano keyboard, to play the concerto in B flat.

Rather curiously, this concert had considerably more of the festival atmosphere than the one the night before, which had been mainly choral. Usually, as between an amateur chorus and an amateur orchestra, the chorus has the better of it in spirit. The University of Chicago, however, would seem to take its musical duties with more than a little seriousness, while still retaining the amateur feeling of playing for the love of it.

It is a full sized orchestra, numbering ninety-odd, and apparently in command of the complete instrumentation for symphonic works. The players have evidently rehearsed with much zeal. They attack a phrase well, they follow the director's baton with much care, and they have gone deeply enough into the subject to realize that good orchestral playing means both accurate and expressive playing. But, most of all, they constantly project an impression that orchestral playing is a fine and enjoyable activity, and this impression unfailingly reacts upon the audience.

Tea Tomorrow for Sir Josiah and Lady Stamp

Two Dawes Families to Give Dinners.

BY INDIA MOFFETT.

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES H. BOSWORTH have invited a few friends to meet or to renew acquaintance with Sir Josiah at tea from 4 to 6 o'clock at the Bosworths' handsome Evanston residence where the former Frances Bosworth was married to Dr. Trevor Stamp on April 5 of last year. Sir Josiah and Lady Stamp, who were here for the wedding, are arriving this morning from Toronto for a week's visit with the Bosworths, and from present indications it would seem as if they will be very busy every minute they are here.

Today will be spent at the Fair, of course, and probably most of every day will be spent there by Sir Josiah, for he is coming especially to visit the Fair, where the crack train, the Royal Scot, of his company, the London, Midland and Scottish railway, is on exhibition.

Tomorrow night Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Dawes are entertaining at dinner for the Stamps and on Wednesday night Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Dawes will be dinner hosts for the visiting English people. Mr. and Mrs. Rufus C. Dawes also plan to give a dinner for them, and also several other people, but the dates will not be set until the arrival of Sir Josiah. He is to talk before the Economic club at the Union League club on Thursday night, and next Saturday, after the commencement exercises at Northwestern university, he leaves for Washington and Lee university in Lexington, Va. Then to Canada and then to New York to sail June 10 for home. Lady Stamp will remain with the Bosworths until June 7, when she will leave to join her husband in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Bosworth are looking forward to a visit from their sons-in-law and daughters, Dr. and Mrs. Trevor Stamp and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon L. Padley [Della Bosworth], this summer, for both young couples have written that they plan to leave London late in June to come to Chicago for a look at the Fair and a visit with their parents. The Stamps will be here about 6 weeks, but the Padleys only plan to stay a month. And then, if present plans do not go awry, Mr. and Mrs. Bosworth will go to England to have Christmas with their family next winter.

Party Tomorrow for Judge Bartelme.

After the rush that today will be for most of those of society who are in the city, the party tomorrow afternoon that Miss Florence Dibell Bartlett is giving for Judge Mary Bartelme will seem like an oasis in a desert, we are sure. Miss Bartlett is to show pictures and talk about "Enchanting Majorca," that little isle off the coast of Spain where so many Chicagoans have vacationed during the last few years along with other Americans and English people, as well as Europeans, of course.

From all accounts, Majorca is a divine spot, peaceful and calm and beautiful and far removed from the trials and tribulations that are every one's portion these days apparently, and not even Spain's political upheavals upset the foreign visitors to the enchanting island. Miss Bartlett and Judge Bartelme spent part of the summer there last year. In addition to the hostess' contribution to the program tomorrow afternoon Miss Jane Addams will talk on "Our Juvenile Court," from which Judge Bartelme is retiring this June after having served 20 years on the bench.

Assisting and pouring tea after the program at the party, which will be given at the Chicago Woman's club, starting at 3:30 o'clock, will be the Misses Beatrice and Harriet Borland, their mother, Mrs. Chauncey B. Borland, Mrs. William P. Hodgkins, Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mrs. James M. Hopkins, Mrs. Francis R. Dickinson, Mrs. Raymond E. Durham, Mrs. Fred I. Raymond, Mme. Giovanni Cardelli, and Mrs. Frederic Clay Bartlett Jr.

Borland Sisters' Book Is Delayed.

Writing of those clever Borland sisters reminds us that publication of their book, "Passports for Asia," has been postponed until September or October, due to the fact that their publishing company is in receivership.

They do not know whether to be sad or glad that the book will not be published until then, for although they are disappointed that the manuscript cannot go to press immediately, they believe that next fall would be a better time to bring out the book.

The Borlands are expecting many guests between now and July 6, when they are going to their summer home in Camden, Me., to stay until the book is published. Among the first of the guests to arrive will be Mrs. Ralph Morgan and Mrs. Anna W. Sawyer of Worcester, Mass., who made the round the world trip with the Misses Borland and Miss Barbara Buehler, who are all coming on June 4.

There never was another girl quite so active as Miss Josephine Patterson. No sooner did she set foot in Chicago last week after a five months' junket to India than she began making plans for another trip. Last night she was off by air to New York for a short visit with her sister, Mrs. Joseph W. Brooks. And, she hinted yesterday in speaking of this trip, there may be some traveling beyond New York.

Closeups

Orchestra hall will open June 1 with a special Century of Progress showing of "Forgotten Men." This picture was originally scheduled for exhibition within the Fair grounds. It is said to be an authentic record of the parts played by every nation in the world war, and consists of official films from the archives of 14 nations.

Popular prices will prevail. Showings will be continuous daily.

Attractive Costume at Benefit Dance

A black gown with white organdie trimmings and the most delectable organdie capelet tied with a huge bow was Mrs. Edgar L. Marston III.'s attractive costume at the dinner dance for the benefit of the Lower North Community council Thursday night at the Pabst Blue Ribbon casino. Mr. and Mrs. Marston (she is the former Florence Carr) are still with her father, Robert F. Carr, in town, but they are looking for a house in Lake Forest in which to spend the summer. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Dotted Swiss Dance Frocks Are Popular

BY RHEA SEEGER.

COTTON PICKINGS! . . . lovely, cool, navy blue dotted swiss dance frocks (the dots are white) topped with piquantly demure hip length white piqué jackets, the jackets made with restrained leg-o'-mutton sleeves and a tiny epaulet shoulder extension that makes them look fresh, trim and slim and frightfully smart for sultry summer evenings. Also vividly striped organza in scarlet and white made to fit super-smoothly down to the knees and then to flare quite madly in huge godets cut in circles for proper swish and swirl. Around the top of this creation is worn a snowy white fichu cape collar trimmed with yards and yards of circular ruffles.

A stunning summer contrast of black embroidered organdy dress is achieved with a spanking white cotton jacket against a very decorative dress . . . the black organdy is embroidered with red and white designs and worn over a rustling black taffeta slip.

Another all dark dress that is twice as alluring as it sounds is made of deep blue organdy trimmed with narrow ruffles and sold with a short ruffle-sleeved waistline jacket, also of dark blue.

And you can buy all kinds of new separate sheer jackets or coats . . . positively knockout affairs that transform the most uninteresting frock . . . cinnamon brown organdies, pale green wisps of almost nothing at all, all the delightful white numbers . . . anything and everything any jacket buying shopper ever tried to decide on.

Turning to linen lures, you will find some very new and very sheer black linen handkerchiefs, large squares without a single thread of color or any decoration or monogram whatsoever, just swanky squares of filmy blackness as a good 1933 contrast for all the summer white and pastel colored costumes.

Then there are some new rough crash jackets made a bit unusually with a fitted silhouette as to sides and front and with a clever new flare in back. These are fastened with wooden buttons in a warm brown tone, perfect buttons to accent the old rather deep ivory tint of the crash of the jacket.

You will see cases full of newly unpacked linen handbags . . . slim, trim appearing envelopes in all colors, clever pouch bags with and without handles, and many unusual shapes trimmed with white and prystal ornaments. The white linens and the pale gray cotton fabrics are racing pocket to pocket with the popular cotton tweed affairs trimmed with simulated tortoise shell clasps and frames.

New Book Describes Races and Hunt Sports of Society in 1834

Society in 1834 . . . when sportsmen enjoyed a horse race one day and a wolf hunt the next . . . is depicted in a delightful new book of Bessie L. Pierce, "As Others See Chicago," that is to make its appearance next Friday.

A lot of prominent visitors to the city in the pre-civil war days are quoted. They tell how the race track in those days was the frozen river and the contest a pacing match. They tell, too, about the horses that pulled carioles, a kind of cart sleigh.

Society in 1834, however, really got more fun out of a wolf hunt than a horse race, according to Charles Fenno Hoffman, a pioneer New Yorker who visited Chicago that year. He tells how the hunt was conducted by men on horseback with "a pack of dogs consisting of a greyhound or two for running the game with several of a heavier and fiercer breed for pulling it down." The University of Chicago press is publishing Miss Pierce's book.

Bal des Quat'z Arts to Climax Busy Opening Day of the Fair

Mrs. Potter Palmer's Talk to Be of Particular Interest to Listeners on the Radio.

BY JUDITH CASS.

ANY one who tries to "take in" all the interesting things that are scheduled for today will be so busy that she won't be able to enjoy the Bal des Quat'z Arts that is to end the opening day's festivities at A Century of Progress—and start the second day well on its way, to judge by advance reports—and that is why some of our socialites are planning to forego the thrill of being at the opening ceremonies at Soldiers' field this morning and spend the day quietly at home, resting and preparing for the ball.

Those who are at home will hear the proceedings over their radios and every one will be particularly interested in hearing Mrs. Potter Palmer talk, not only because she herself is such a charming and splendid woman, but because of the name she bears. Her husband's mother, the first Mrs. Potter Palmer, was the "first lady" of Chicago's first World's Fair, and so it seems appropriate that another Mrs. Potter Palmer should have a part in the inaugural ceremonies at the present Fair. Mrs. Palmer will talk from Soldiers' field about 11 o'clock.

The young Potter Palmers will not be here to attend the opening of the Fair with their mother and father, but perhaps they will hear Mrs. Palmer talk on the radio this morning, for they are up at the Island club in the Lac du Flambeau region of Wisconsin with a party of friends to spend the long week-end there. With them are Miss Eleanor McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Pirie, Hulburd Johnston and Harlow N. Higinbotham.

Luncheon Today for Postmaster General.

The Chauncey McCormicks, the Joseph M. Cudahys, the John A. Carpenters, and Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank are among the 1,000 who have been invited to the luncheon at the Pabst Blue Ribbon Casino that will be given at noon today for Postmaster General Farley. Gov. Horner, Mayor and Mrs. Kelly, Gov. Gore of Porto Rico and Mrs. Gore, President Rufus C. Dawes of A Century of Progress and Mrs. Dawes, Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Dawes, Khalil Bey, Turkish chargé d'affaires; Prince Potenziani, Admiral and Mrs. McManee, Admiral and Mrs. Wat T. Cluverius, Gen. and Mrs. Parker, Mr. and Mrs. Harry S. New, the German consul general and Mrs. Hugo Simon, and Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Roberts are some of those who will sit at the table with Postmaster General Farley.

Many socialites, especially the older and more dignified ones, will attend the reception to be held at 9:30 o'clock in the trustees' lounge of the Hall of Science. Admission will be by card only.

Jolly Good Time Assured at Paris.

Paris at the Fair will be the rendezvous of about 2,000 persons looking for a good time tonight and from the moment one shows his passport and crosses the gangplank on to the ship [it's a stunning ship, too, for we had a preview of it the other night] that is the entrance to the Streets of Paris, until he leaves, he'll have a jolly good time if the plans and predictions of those who have arranged the party materialize.

Dinner will be served from 8 o'clock until midnight in all the cafes, the Cafe de Paris, the Cafe de la Paix, the Cafe du Dome, the Moulin Rouge, the Cafe de la Rotunde, the Mission Burgundy inn, the Bar au Lapin Agile, Harry's New York bar, and others with typical Parisian names, and in the same cafes breakfast will be served from 2 to 6 a. m.

Anything that conceivably might be worn in the streets of Paris is O K to wear tonight. Fancy dress, conventional evening clothes, street clothes, anything, as a matter of fact. A few of the many who have planned parties are the James Ward Thornes, the Laurance H. Armours, the Donald F. McPhersons, Robert Hall McCormick, Vincent Bendix, Miss Narcissa Swift, the John Wentworths, the John P. Kelloggs, the Joe Magnuses, and the Charles D. Freys.

Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne was hoping until yesterday morning that her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Simeon B. Chapin Jr., would be arriving today to be here for the party. Mrs. Osborne and the William M. Spencers are giving at the Bal des Quat'z Arts tonight, but her hopes were dashed when she had a wire with the sad news that they couldn't possibly come just now. The King Whites and the Griffin Kings, from Cleveland, are coming, however, to be the guests of the Spencers over the week-end.

Grand Dinner Tonight at the Swedish Club.

There is to be a notable Swedish representation at the inaugural ceremonies of the Fair this morning and at the grand dinner the Swedish club is having tonight in its quarters at 1258 North La Salle street. Last night that distinguished gentleman, Wollmar F. Bostrom, the Swedish minister in this country, arrived from Washington to be here today and tomorrow.

This noon following the Fair dedication he will be the guest of the Swedish consul general, Oscar C. Lundquist, at luncheon. Tonight he will have a place at the Swedish club banquet close to Dr. Gustaf Munthe, director of the Rohss Museum of Art in Gothenburg, and Kurt Gungstedt, a well known Swedish artist, both of whom are visiting in the city making their headquarters at the Drake with Mr. Bostrom.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., May 26.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt has as his overnight guests the governor of New York and Mrs. Herbert H. Lehman, who arrived late this afternoon. The President has a few other guests at dinner, mutual friends of his and his house guests.

Mrs. Roosevelt went to New York last night at midnight to spend the week-end.

The Japanese ambassador and Mme. Debuchi entertained at dinner last night in honor of the Viscount Ishii of the Japanese house of peers and former ambassador here, who is en route to the world economic conference in London and who stopped here for conferences with the President. A large and brilliant reception followed the dinner when the viscount renewed acquaintances with many whom he had known in his service here.

The retiring naval attaché of the British embassy, Capt. Patrick Macnamara, and Mrs. Macnamara, accompanied by their children, sailed today for their home in England. They had as their guests until yesterday Mrs. Junius Morgan and Mrs. Henry Morgan, both of New York, daughters-in-law of J. P. Morgan.

Some Unknown Woman

By Elisabeth Sanxay Holding

SYNOPSIS.

Dinah Allen and Jane Rosslyn are roommates in a Manhattan boarding house. Dinah, from the south, envies and imitates Jane's air of mystery and sophistication. Jack Fiske, a young boarder from Vermont, is head over heels in love with Dinah, who considers him just a hick. Dinah and Jane stroll to the corner drug store for sodas. A good looking young man in a silk hat, not quite sober, invites the girls for a ride in his car. To Dinah's surprise Jane accepts for both of them. He takes them to his home. Dinah soon finds herself left alone, with Jane's purse instead of her own. In Jane's purse Dinah finds an automatic pistol. All the lights are turned out. Dinah rushes for the door and is grabbed by strong arms. She shoots. Jane reappears. She rushes Dinah away from the scene of their host lying in a pool of blood. Next morning the papers carry the story of the murder of Philip Divine, Broadway playboy, and said there were two bullet wounds. Jane and Dinah saw a tall, dark man with a mustache as they left Philip Divine's house. Jane recognizes Jack Fiske's sterling qualities and tries to bring Dinah and him together. Jane admits to Dinah that she knew Philip Divine before and that she also shot him. Jane goes to the theater with Jack after Dinah refuses him. Dinah has a caller. He introduces himself as Pierre Baron. He is the tall dark man with the mustache. Dinah promises to have dinner with him next evening. Baron tells Dinah that Divine was secretly married to Jane. Dinah resents his hatred of Jane and doesn't trust Baron. She tells him it was she, who shot Divine. Jane confesses to Fiske that she shot Divine and that she'd brought Dinah to his home. Jane's efforts to shield Dinah win Jack's admiration. Jane leaves not telling Dinah or Jack where she is going. Baron's sister, Jerry, calls to see Jane. She tells Dinah and Fiske that she was married to Divine.

INSTALLMENT XXIV.

AN UNWELCOME GUEST.

Jerry looked straight at Dinah.

"I had dinner with Philip," she said, "I told him I was going out with my brother—and he told me what he was going to do that evening."

Fiske struck a match and lit a cigaret.

"Then, of course, you'll be able to tell the police," he said.

"I don't know," said Jerry, "if there's really—anything much to tell."

"Still," said Fiske, "they'll want to know. I'm afraid, Mrs. Divine, that they won't like your not having come forward sooner."

"I can't help that," she said. "You can imagine how upset I was. And—I'll admit it! Just at first, I thought perhaps there was some truth in those horrible stories—about some woman having been there. But now—" she paused. "Now I haven't any of those doubts. Now I feel that—I know."

"You mean," said Fiske, without a tremor, "that you know who—who did the shooting?"

"Yes," she answered, and again she glanced at Dinah.

Dinah's hands were like ice; she felt that the color had drained from her cheeks.

"If I feel like saying that that fatal handkerchief is—the woman of mystery is disposed of."

"Yes," Jerry repeated. "I knew who Philip expected to see that evening. And I'm certain—I'm sure——" She stopped, for an interminable time.

"Sure—of what?" asked Fiske, encouragingly.

"Sure that a burglar did it!" cried Jerry, in a tone of joyous triumph.

Fiske gave a faint but audible sigh of relief. But Dinah felt no relief. She saw, in Jerry's exultant air, the triumph of sheer malice. Jerry had played with them, tormented them, led them on to expect a terrifying revelation—and then brought out this preposterous suggestion of a burglar.

And she could not so have played with them, unless she had known what it was they feared. It was plain to Dinah that she did know.

"A burglar?" Fiske repeated. "But the police said nothing had been stolen."

"Philip always carried a revolver," she said. "I think he probably fired at the burglar. And the burglar killed him, so that he couldn't identify him, and then rushed off."

"Well, that's very plausible," said Fiske. "But, of course, the police may have clews they haven't made public yet."

"I don't think so," said Jerry. "My brother took me to see the district attorney late this afternoon, to tell about being married to Philip. And the district attorney was rather darling, and I thought he was just vague about the case, and simply craving for any new information."

"O, then you've seen the district attorney already?" said Fiske.

"Didn't I tell you? But that's nothing. It's the newspaper people I dread so. I don't know how they manage those things—but I'm sure there'll be reporters when I get home. And they'll make me talk—and I'm sure to say—more than I should."

"You can refuse——" Fiske began.

"No!" she interrupted. "Things look queer enough already. I've got to be perfectly open now. And, you see, it's still worse for me, because I've lost the marriage certificate."

"That's bad," said Fiske, gravely. "But still, the marriage must be registered somewhere."

"O, yes. In Connecticut. Only, you see, I didn't get married under my own name."

"Did Divine?"

"Yes. But I was 'Julia Martin.' O, you can see how queer it's all going to look for me! And I don't belong to Philip's set, none of them will stand by me. My brother's wonderful. But if there only, only was another girl who'd understand—and be nice to me. I know Jane would have been—but she's gone, and there's no one."

"I'm sure Miss Allen will be good to you," said Fiske. "She's very kind hearted and sympathetic——"

"I'm afraid I'm not," said Dinah, with emphasis.

Jerry was looking at her, tragic once more.

"If I could just stay here with you, this one night. . . ," she said. "So that I shouldn't have to face those reporters——"

"I'm sorry, but——"

"I know I'll say too much! They'll want to know where I've been, and then I'll tell them about coming to see Jane. And they'll think there's something so strange about her disappearing. If I could just stay here tonight——"

"I'm sure you can," said Fiske, gently.

"But Miss Allen doesn't seem to like me, I'm afraid."

"That's just her way," Fiske explained. "She does like you. Who could help it?"

"Lots of people help it," she answered, with a sigh. "Philip's family, for instance. He introduced me to most of them, and they didn't even pretend not to—loathe me. Simply because I was an artist—and half Cuban. I really have no one. Not one woman in the whole world I can go to now—when I'm so unhappy——"

"You'll find Miss Allen one of the finest girls——" Fiske began.

"No," Dinah said. "I'm not."

"I know you'll keep Mrs. Divine here with you, Dinah," he said.

"No!" said Dinah. "I'm sorry, but I can't."

She looked at Fiske—and for the first time in her life, she saw a man thoroughly angry at her. That hot anger so transformed his face, which wore usually an expression of alert politeness, that she was startled, and then very angry herself.

"Is there anything I can do for you, Mrs. Divine?" he asked.

"No, thank you," she answered, forlornly. "It's—I did so want to find Jane. I do need a girl friend—so awfully."

"Of course you do," he said. "Any one could understand that. But—Mrs. Divine—if there's anything I can do, will you let me know? Anything," he added. "I'll give you my office telephone number, as well as this one."

"It's sweet of you," she said.

"I should think any one would be glad—in the circumstances. . . ," he said. "Then—can I get you a taxi?"

"Please——!" said she.

He went off without a word or a glance for Dinah, and the moment he was gone, Jerry took out her vanity case.

"He's sweet, isn't he?" she said in a friendly, confidential tone. Dinah made no answer, and Jerry went on:

"Of course, he doesn't understand. . . But you do."

"Understand——?" Dinah began.

"I don't have to put it all into words, do I?" asked the other. "You've made up your mind to fight me. I'm not awfully sorry—because I like fighting. . . But I think you're very—rash. Because, you see, I've got all the cards."

"Maybe you haven't," said Dinah, but she spoke at random, utterly in the dark.

"Darling child!" protested Jerry. "What cards could you have? You see, I wasn't near poor Philip's house when—he was killed. I have a perfect alibi. Millions of people saw me, that evening. So that if I feel like saying that that fatal handkerchief was mine, the woman of mystery is disposed of. And if I don't feel like saying it's mine——"

Dinah's throat felt dry.

"Probably it is—yours," she said.

"My dear!" said Jerry, as if shocked. "I'm sure you know who it belongs to, as well as I do."

There was a knock at the door.

"There's a taxi waiting for you, Mrs. Divine," said Fiske's voice. "I hope you'll let me see you home."

The two girls looked at each other.

So the door was not opened even a crack for young Fiske. He was told briefly by Dinah that Mrs. Divine was going to stay, and he had to go downstairs, to deal as best he could with a disappointed taxi driver.

Education for Life by Life a Fine Ideal

Belgian Educator Follows Progressive Trend.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Listen to this about a world famous educator:

"The secret of his success was in his approach; it was not as a psychologist or a pedagogue primarily that he approached them, but as a lover of children, and out of this he evolved l'education pour la vie par la vie—education for life by life.

"He did not set out to teach children things that would be useful to them in later life nor to prepare them for some remote and distant destiny.

"Instead, he took the child as he is, normal or abnormal, and enabled him through his five senses, his memory, reasoning power, native energy of his limbs and creative energy of his mind and emotions to realize the world about him, and to prepare him through his own sense of life for all the demands that life would make upon him."

O, isn't that just swell? If only all schools could no that for their children and not prepare them for "some remote and distant destiny" which might prove not to be their individual destiny, at all—but prepare them through their own sense of life for all the demands that life will make upon them.

Some day, some say, that is the way we shall educate our children. Some of us are doing it now; some parents and some schools. The number of both is growing and I think a new education is "working" in all sorts of undercurrents and channels which don't show much on the surface, but which will have a strong influence and bear fruit in the homes and schools and lives of the children later on.

Decroly was the name of the educator who is written about in the first part of this article—Ovide Decroly. His is the famous Decroly school in Belgium on the outskirts of Brussels, which was started 'way back in 1907. The quotations are from an article in the current issue of the magazine Progressive Education by Lois Gilbert, called "A Visit to the Decroly School."

Those who have read the suggested books on my education leaflet may remember this as one of the schools described by Washburne in his "New Schools in the Old World." If you are interested you would be really entertained as well as informed by the brief reading suggested in our "Progressive Education" leaflet which will be sent on receipt of a stamped self-addressed envelope.

MINUTE MYSTERY

BY H. A. RIPLEY

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

CLASS DAY.

"I attended a banquet given in honor of the officials of New Scotland Yard on my recent visit to London." Prof. Fordney's students waited eagerly for him to continue. His English tales were always particularly interesting. "During a clever after dinner talk by Detective-Inspector Whish, he told us about Diana, twelve year old daughter of Lord Ormingsbee. His lordship had spent a fortune on the child, who had been blind from birth. At the heighth of his despair he learned of the surgical miracles being performed by a Dr. Zurfli in Vienna. It was with renewed hope that he took his daughter there.

"After a lengthy consultation the renowned specialist told Ormingsbee there might be a chance. The next day he performed the very delicate operation. For two weeks Diana was kept in a darkened room, her eyes heavily bandaged while her father spent anxious days hoping—despairing. Had the operation been a success? At last came the great moment! Slowly the bandages were removed while Ormingsbee stood by with bated breath. Finally the eyes were uncovered and after waiting a few moments the great Dr. Zurfli held up a card and softly asked, 'What color is this, my child?'

"'Red,' she replied as the father knelt beside her and caught her to his breast. 'You've done it, doctor—she can see,' he cried.

"The European papers exploited the news and soon afterwards his royal highness sent for the great surgeon to attend——"

"Pardon, professor," interrupted Jim Barry, "but there is a slight discrepancy in your story!"

WHAT WAS IT?

Talk by Mrs. Palmer to Interest Listeners.

Paula Uihlein and Philip B. Hosmer Jr. in yesterday morning's paper. THE TRIBUNE photographer didn't make the mistake, for he took down the names as given to him by the young people he had photographed. Not so funny to the photographer and the young couple whose names were given as to the ones who played the joke!

Mrs. Hibbard's Shop Curtailed for Summer.

Conveniences, that handy little shop run by Mrs. Frank Hibbard, assisted by Miss Elizabeth Ricker, closed its doors for all but two services—bathing and plucking dogs—yesterday, and it will not be opened again until Oct. 1. In case either of these services is desired, Miss Ricker has asked that one telephone Superior 1301, Mrs. Hibbard's apartment.

Mrs. Stanley Keith and Mrs. George A. Richardson will be arriving in town today with their daughters, Miss Leslie Keith and Miss Nancy Morse, who arrived in New York yesterday on their return from a winter abroad traveling with Miss Stout's school. They are to be debutantes next season.

Mrs. Franklin B. Hussey has arrived at home from Switzerland, where she has been for the last winter, and is in her Highland Park house. Her daughter, the former Rosemary Sidley, now Mrs. Charles Ingram Bernard III., is coming out from New York to visit her in August.

An ex-Chicagoan who will be here before long for a glimpse of the Fair and a visit with her son and his family is Mrs. Ellicott Evans, who, with Mr. Evans, will be passing through Chicago on their way from their winter residence in Montecito, Cal., to their summer one on Mackinac island, Mich. Mrs. Evans' son, John L. Cochran, and Mrs. Cochran plan to spend frequent week-ends with Mr. and Mrs. Evans at Mackinac, and the two little Cochran girls and their governess will be their guests for the entire summer.

Good news for the friends of John Sidney Burnet is that he landed in New York Thursday on his return from a trip around the world. His daughter, Mrs. Edward L. Hersey, does not know if he will come straight to Chicago or if he will stay in the east for a week or so.

He will open the Burnet house in Harbor Point for the summer, and Mrs. Hersey will spend most of the hot weather months with him, though she will be in town to entertain her husband's family—Mrs. Edward L. Hersey Sr., Mrs. Hersey Carroll, his sister, and Hamilton and Jack Hersey, his brothers—when they come down from St. Paul to see A Century of Progress.

Mrs. Walter G. Smith and her mother, Mrs. Kenneth S. McLennan, are motoring east on June 1 for the graduation on June 10 of Mrs. Smith's daughter, Roslyn M. Paine, from Sarah Lawrence college. They will drive directly back to Chicago so Miss Paine may join in the festivities for Miss Carroll Slade, who is to be married on June 17 to Kenneth C. McKeown. Miss Paine will be presented to society on Sept. 7 at a tea in the gardens of the Smiths' lovely Evanston home.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hertz are back once more at their charming country place near Cary making plans for the entertainment of almost a continuous round of guests during the Fair and especially during the coming season at the Arlington race track to open on June 26. By that time their two daughters, Mrs. Alfred Ettlinger and Miss Helen Hertz, will have returned from Paris, where they are now for a brief holiday.

Bruce Strongs Announce New Home.

Friends of the Bruce Strongs are in receipt of penny postcards with crude but cunning little drawings on them of the Strongs' new domicile at 1540 Lake Shore drive, to which they have moved from 1320 North State street.

The play that the young Lake Foresters who go to Bell school were to have given yesterday in the school auditorium has been postponed until Friday. Anne Porter, youngest daughter of the Gilbert E. Porters; Sheila Kelley, daughter of the L. Thomas Kelleys, and Marian Peters, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Peters, share honors in the leading rôles.

The time spent soliciting funds by Miss Edna Doering, Miss Ethel Dixon, Miss Florence Otis and other girls who did their Junior League "hours" at Emerson house was time well spent and money well gained, for it helped to make possible a program to be given by six settlement houses at 8 o'clock tomorrow night in the Children's theater on the Enchanted island. The other settlements participating are Madonna Center, Chicago Commons, Eli Bates, Garibaldi and Onward. The money was raised to buy costumes, as the whole program is to be of Italian dancing and Italian songs, sung in Italian, and all the children will wear Italian costumes. Miss Betty Brawley, Miss Edith Behr, Miss Barbara Senn, Miss Dorothy Senn, Miss Patty McCormick and Miss Lydia Swift are also workers at Emerson house.

North Shore Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Henning have announced the engagement of their daughter, Jane, to Percival Hunter Jr. of Winnetka. Miss Henning attended the Knox School for Girls at Cooperstown, N. Y., and Northwestern university. Mr. Hunter attended the United States naval academy at Annapolis, Md. [Daguerre Photo.]

Girl of 21 Wants to Be Wife No. 4 for This Romeo

BY DORIS BLAKE.

She's 21. The man on her trail now has been thrice married already and is the father of four children, all told, by his respective wives. Her dad says he'll shoot the man if he ever again catches him in his daughter's company. The girl says she'll die if she can't marry him.

And there you have a sorry picture of a bridal adventure for a 21 year old girl. O, and, of course, the much married one tells the girl she's the only woman to understand him. Not one of his previous choices could get beneath and find the gold embedded in his character.

You'd think one out of the three might have struck a vein of gold if it was there to be struck.

But to get back to a 21 year old and the supposed happiest epoch of all her lifetime. So many nice boys, 22, 23, 24, 25 and 26 to choose from for the Lohengrin march—clean boys, ambitious, good fun, and ideal for altar escorts. And to be content with a weather beaten old marriage failure like this one!

Girl, you certainly aren't asking much for yourself! What's the matter with you that you're willing to let yourself go so cheaply?

Unless the man owns the mint he can't have much money left after he's provided for his three alimony receivers in the style to which they usually subscribe. And if the man can't bring you money and great gobs of it in exchange for youth, freshness, idealism, he has nothing to offer.

Perhaps a psychologist might explain your mad infatuation, Bernice, but we can't understand why any young girl would be willing to throw herself away on a tenth rate man when she could have a first rate one. Unless she suffers a hideous inferiority complex.

Suppose, Bernice, before you get your dad into trouble carrying out his threat you hie yourself off to some retreat where you'd meet boys nearer your own age and just see if one of these couldn't show you that you don't have to pawn yourself so cheaply.

BY MARY MEADE.

And if you don't believe it you ought to see some of the trouble questions that come tumbling in on our desk each week, begging to be answered before the next cake falls, bacon shrivels, or rabbit is stringy. For these kitcheneers have discovered that they learn about twice as fast when they buttonhole the questions when they turn up instead of putting off the asking. We'll see if between us and the Saturday kitchen clinic we can't settle the worst of the stickers and make cooking a bushel of fun as well as a real craft and science.

Question number 1 today comes from Mrs. K. D. E., who writes: "Is it true that you can keep frosting from graining by adding sirup to it? And how much do you use?"

Yes, though perfect frostings may be made with care and correct recipes without adding sirup, a drizzle of light table sirup does help along the best of frostings and wards off most of the danger of graining. Simply substitute two or three tablespoons of sirup for the same amount of sugar in the recipe. Cook it as usual. Many frostings may even be tightly covered and stored if this small amount of sirup has been added to keep in check the forming of large sugar grains. I usually count on one tablespoon of sirup for each cup of sugar.

Next a letter from Mrs. M. L. I wonder if I understand it correctly. Mrs. L. asks: "I am very anxious to know how to prepare fried noodles."

There's no trick, fortunately, to the preparation of these crispy, brown noodles. It's mostly a matter of serving them. Usually when we buy them they can stand a little oven re-crisping. Then place them on a hot platter and pour over them a family sized serving of vegetable and meat chop suey (I have a top notch recipe, if you'd like it). Or you may sprinkle the noodles crunchily over the top of the chop suey. Again, if you're not China-minded, you'll find fried noodles grand eating as a topping off for cream soups, casserole dishes, and meat loaves.

Mrs. G. K. writes that she had a fat fire in the stove one morning and, thinking she'd put it out in short order, she tossed in a cupful of water. Instead of putting it out it spread and she nearly had the kitchen on fire before she finally smothered it. "My husband tells me that one shouldn't put water on a fat fire, but he doesn't know what one should do. Can you tell me?" says Mrs. K.

Your husband's right, Mrs. K. Water and fat don't blend, so unless the water happens to smother the fire as it falls it will simply get under the oil, which will keep right on burning. The safest way is simply to grab the salt box and dash on handsful of salt. The fire will soon go out.

Now a trouble about bacon. We get so in the habit of heating our frying pans to sear all sorts of meats and such that about half of us forget that bacon prefers—yes, insists—that it make its debut in a cold pan. Otherwise hard, shriveled bacon is the answer. So when the man of the house next brings home the bacon simply lay it smoothly in the bottom of a cold baking pan, cook slowly till of the proper doneness—always a matter of taste—and as the fat melts pour it off.

Lastly for a filling tip. So many letters arrive asking for something a little different from frosting, cream filling, and jellies for the in-between of a layer cake that I'm going to answer you all of a lump. May I suggest:

SPEEDY DATE FILLING.

Simply take two-thirds cup of pitted dates, cut them twice, and place them in a sauce pan with one cup of cold water. Simmer, stirring frequently, till the mixture becomes a thick paste. Let it cool, then spread between cake layers.

DESSERTS

With Sweet Hearts

| | |
|---|---|
| 3 ripe apples | 2 tablespoons shortening |
| 1 cup sifted flour | ¼ cup milk |
| 1½ teaspoons baking powder | 1 small egg, well beaten |
| ¼ teaspoon salt | |

Sift the dry ingredients together and cut in the shortening till the mixture is mealy. Add the milk and egg which have been beaten together. Mix only till blended, then drop by spoonfuls into large buttered muffin tins, filling them only half full. Have ready the apples, peeled, cut down in halves and cored. Place a half apple in each muffin tin, on top of the batter with hole up. Fill the centers of the apples with sugar mixed with a little cinnamon. Press them down a little into the batter, then bake in a hot oven (400° F.) for 25 minutes or until the apples are done. Serve very hot with sweetened whipped cream. Makes 6 apple nests.

Clip on the dotted line, mount on a card; mounted, the recipe just fits the new Mary Meade Recipe File . . . If you haven't one of these files, you may obtain one (containing 133 delightful recipes) at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn Street. Price, 25 cents. By mail, 33 cents.

Stunning Street Dress Has Chic Wide Shoulders

WOMAN'S OR MISS' DRESS.

Here is a stunning street costume—just right for immediate wear. It has the smart widened shoulders that jut out over sleeves plaited into the armholes. The surplice bodice helps in giving a slender appearance, while bias seaming and the center front skirt panel tend further to give the figure height. Plain crinkled silk crêpes in gray, biege, navy, and poppy-red are charming.

The pattern, No. 2546, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 5⅛ yards of 39 inch material.

Don't Neglect Eyelids When Cleansing Face

They Deserve a Daily Creaming.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

If you have a good eye—or two of them—don't let its beauty blush unseen! This is the heyday of the eye glorifying. If your eye isn't so good—well, there are all kinds of ways of making it appear lovely.

You younger women aren't going to be caught eyelid-wrinkled if you are listening well to the advice you hear today. The older ones were not told so often to treat the eyelid skin as they treated the skin on the rest of the face. Consequently, you see any number of older women with crepy and baggy eyelids.

But you younger ones won't have the excuse of ignorance if yours begins to wrinkle and fold, along about the mid-thirties. Also, you have one skin preservative in the cream eye-shadow a good many of you use, and I note many of you leave that film of plain cream or vaseline on the lid just to give a moist, fresh look to the eye.

But I must warn even some of you younger ones to begin your eyelid and eye-preserving work early. Those of you who cleanse your face with cream or oil are inclined to skirt over the eyelid area. If you don't give this skin water, cream, or anything, you will be a crepy-lidded one early.

I don't think any eye lotion necessary while one is young, except, perhaps, the warm and cold water rinse. What you mascara users need is a nightly cleansing of the eye and lash with soap and water, and the cold water rinse. You want to get every bit of the foreign coloring out, and whatever particles of dust and grime that may cling. Continue using the film of cream in your makeup preparations.

The older woman may, indeed, need the eye lotion for brightening eyes beginning to dull. Once a day the rule is to bathe the eyes with lotion and warm water. And gently pat wrinkle cream or any good cream over the lid surface once a day.

Use the finger tip lightly and cover the entire eyelid. If they are crepy already, use a pad saturated with an astringent and let this remain on the lids for a few minutes daily.

Be Adventurous, Graduates Told by Mrs. Roosevelt

New York, May 26.—[Special.]—Mrs. Frnklin D. Roosevelt, speaking today at the commencement exercises of Todhunter school, called on the graduates to be adventurous in life as well as courageous. Mrs. Roosevelt since 1927 has been associate principal and one of the owners of the school.

Quilt Gathered Various Names in Its Travels

Rocky Glen.

BY NANCY CABOT.

Though "Rocky Glen" originated in New England—in 1810—it has traveled widely, has gained in popularity as it went along, and as picked up many new names in different parts of the country. On the Atlantic coast it is called the "Lost Ship," in the south the "Rockey Mountain," while the west and middle western states call it "Storm at Sea."

For a pattern of this quilt design, send 5 cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn.

Paris Matches Pique Gloves to New Frocks

BY BETTINA BEDWELL

PARIS.—[Special.]—Whether or not the thousand and one washable fashions for this summer are the result of dirty work on the part of soap and washboard manufacturers, they are here and no style-conscious wench can avoid them. You simply must wear some washable clothes this summer if you want to be in style. You may get away with a washable wrap like a cape or jacket, or you may have washable pique frocks and wear them with wool or silk wraps.

You just must have some lingerie gloves and they should match your washable wrap or frock. You can wear washable hats and be smarter because of them, but you aren't absolutely forced to do so.

Lots of women are choosing pique frocks as the simplest way out of this washable styles dilemma. There are sub-regulations for these, too. The most fashionable pique this summer is embroidered, like the pique that makes the Mirande dress in our sketch today. This is covered with dots done in white embroidery.

The cut of the dress makes it suitable for the washtub. It has a plain blouse with diamond-cut bands around the armholes instead of sleeves, and a similar band ending in a bow that holds the blouse closed below its shawl collar. The plain, four-gore skirt has two diamond-cut bands sewed on at the hipline. The flaring slip-on gloves of the same pique as the dress are trimmed with two of these bands.

ROOT VICTOR IN FIFTH TRIUMPH OVER BRAVES

Babe Herman Gets Three Hits.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

It was fitting that two long suffering Cubs, Babe Herman and Bill Jurges, should be the main aides of another profound sufferer, Charley Root, in the accomplishment of a splendid ten inning, 4 to 3 victory over the Boston Braves in the second of the series at Wrigley field yesterday afternoon.

Without Babe the game would have been another washout for Charley. The lank Mr. Herman busted his No. 11 double in the fourth inning later to tie the score on Demaree's single after Randy Moore's homer had given the Braves a 1 to 0 edge in the first half of the inning. After the Braves had taken a 3 to 1 advantage in the first of the seventh, Babe knocked his No. 4 homer in the same inning with Woody English on base to tie the count again.

That Winning Tenth.

To win the game in the tenth Hartnett singled—his first hit of the series—and Jurges followed with a double to put Nelson, who ran for Gabby, on third. After Root had flied out and Hendrick, batting for Douthit, had been given an intentional pass to fill the bases, Bill Herman sent a long fly to Berger and Nelson scored after the catch.

In addition to his vital double and homer, Babe Herman made a good start to end the game in the ninth. He led off with a single and moved to second on a sacrifice. His chances for further heroics were ruined, however, when Charley Grimm lined into a double play.

Five Straight from Braves.

Yesterday's victory enabled the Cubs to gain a game on the leading Pittsburgh Pirates. It was their second straight win in the current series and their fifth straight in their season series with the Braves. The champs now have won seven of their last nine games. The record against the invading eastern clubs is seven out of 11 with two to go. It was Root's second victory of the year, the other one having been a 7 to 5 verdict in the first game of the rainsoaked doubleheader which the Cubs played with the St. Louis Cardinals on April 30.

In winning his second game of the season Root got a measure of revenge, for it was the second time this year he had hooked up with Huck Betts in an extra inning game. In the previous meeting, on May 5, Betts was the victor, 2 to 1, in 13 innings.

Root held the Braves to two separated hits in the first three innings of yesterday's contest, and Betts was equally stingy. And besides the Braves completed three double plays in the first three sessions.

Moore Starts Scoring.

The scoring began with the first batsmen in the fourth. Moore socked one high in the air which came down a homer less than a foot inside the right field screen. Berger, Jordan and Urbanski then furnished easy outs. In the Cub half of the fourth Bill Herman and English flied to Mowry for the first two outs. Babe Herman then dropped his double in left center, just out of Mowry's reach, and came home when Demaree lined a single to center. Demaree was out trying to steal second.

The 1 to 1 tie prevailed until the seventh. Berger led off with a single to left and reached second on Jordan's sacrifice. Urbanski then doubled to left, scoring Berger. Hargrave popped one to short right and Bill Herman apparently lost his voice when he tried to call for the ball. At any rate, Babe Herman ran into him just as the ball hit his glove. Bill Herman was given an error for his weak voice and Urbanski reached third. Maranville then engineered the squeeze play, his bunt enabling Urbanski to score and Hargrave to reach second. Betts fanned.

Threatening Gestures in Ninth.

Each team threatened in the ninth. For the Braves Jordan led off with a single to right. Urbanski attempted to sacrifice but forced Jordan, Grimm to Jurges. Hargrave singled to left, Urbanski stopping at second. Then Maranville hit into a double play, Bill Herman to Jurges to Grimm. The Cub ninth inning threat was described earlier in this piece.

The Braves' tenth also opened with a single and ended with a double play. Betts made the single. Then Knothe grounded sharply to Root, who started a double play through Jurges.

Sox Give Mauling Yanks Lesson in Mauling, 8-6

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 26.—The Yankees' title of world champions did not mean a thing to the White Sox this afternoon. They ripped the titleholders to ribbons with salvos of base hits in their first Stadium appearance of the year and convinced some 10,000 spectators that there is something to the claim that the Chicago team is the most improved in the American league. The score was 8 to 6, and it would have been worse than that if the Yanks had not come up in the ninth with one of their old time threats that was snuffed out when mighty Babe Ruth failed to produce.

High class pitching by young Paul Gregory kept the Yanks from mauling as is their habit. For seven innings he sailed along serenely on a yield of four hits, but even with this limited attack the champions scored three runs because errors helped them. Then in the eighth Gregory wilted and even though the lead was fat Manager Fonseca preferred to take no risk. He ordered old Red Faber into action and the veteran staggered through despite three sound drives in the ninth.

Ruffing No Jinx.

Ordinarily the Sox find Charley Ruffing a problem, but this was not one of those days. They almost had him on the ropes in the third, but he escaped with two runs scoring. They got after him again in the sixth, principally because Al Simmons showed some skill on the base lines, and then blew him out of the picture entirely in the seventh on four hits, the last of which was a lengthy triple by Luke Appling. For good measure Appling contributed a homer to the rough treatment accorded bespectacled Danny MacFayden in the two closing innings.

Hayes opened the day's Sox attack with a single, but nothing came of it. Combs did the same thing for the Yanks. His hit developed into a run mainly because Hayes erred after accepting 167 successive chances since the game of April 15. The error was a fumble on Ruth's grounder after Sewell had been thrown out. It put Combs on third. Ruth moved to second on a wild pitch. Gehrig was thrown out by Appling and Combs scored. Chapman's fly to Haas closed the inning.

Grube's Double Starts Second.

The profitable second which started as if the Sox would score a half dozen and finished with only two runs across, opened with Grube doubling to left. Gregory singled to center, but it was a half fly ball, so Grube could travel

Shires Faces $50,000 Suit, Assault Charge

Louisville, Ky., May 26.—(AP)—Art Shires made news three times today. Most newsy perhaps was that Mr. Shires engaged somebody else to do his talking—namely: Roscoe Searcy, attorney at law. Scarcely less important was a charge of malicious assault set for a hearing June 20 and a suit for $50,000 damages.

Shires, slightly the worse for wear but with sartorial elegance undimmed, arranged a $1,000 bond in police court. With Shires, who plays first base for Columbus, was Jimmy Adair, Louisville second baseman, who also was charged with malicious assault and put under $1,000 bonds.

Not present in court, but considerably interested, was one Jack Deacon, 32, nursing a broken leg and sundry lacerations in a hospital and trying to remember the details of a knockdown, drag-out in his house just before midnight Thursday. By midafternoon he had remembered enough details to file suit for $50,000 damages, charging Shires picked him up in the midst of an altercation and pitched him downstairs.

Deacon faces charges of malicious assault and conducting a disorderly house. His bond was $600. Minor characters in the tableau include Robert Armstrong and Carrie Potts, both charged with malicious assault, and Ruth Carsons, charged with disorderly conduct, all three under $300 bond. All three, as well as Shires, are 26 years old.

Dressed in the latest thing in adhesive plaster, Shires gazed across his bruised and bandaged nose in court while the story was unfolded how Adair was believed in danger of being "rolled" for $125 by "a girl" and how Adair didn't like it. Also, how Deacon took up the girl's defense and Shires more than evened matters by defending Adair because "he's a small guy."

Stanley Briel, the prosecutor, scented the prospect of more serious business, and told the court Deacon's broken leg possibly would result in an amputation, and hinted that even death might result. Word from the hospital, however, was that Deacon was in no immediate danger.

SIX FILLIES WILL GO TO POST TODAY IN ILLINOIS OAKS

BY FRENCH LANE.

Only six of the proud 3 year old fillies in the west were named for the seventh running of the Illinois Oaks at Washington Park today, yet the folks who try to pick the winners could not find one that was a standout favorite.

They finally made At Top, which races for Pat and Dick Nash of Chicago, the choice, but she was at the right good odds of 5 to 2. Technique and Bright Bubble, the latter a daughter of Bubbling Over, were next in line—Bright Bubble at 3 to 1 and Technique at 4 to 1. Bamboula, a Pacific coast filly, was mustering many backers and was at around 4 to 1. The two extreme outsiders were Jessie Dear and Spartan Lady, both Kentucky fillies.

Much Depends on Track.

Seldom has a stake renewal with such a small field developed into a more open race, and track conditions today probably will determine even if the Chicago filly At Top is to rule as the choice. At Top is fast of foot in the mud, and the track was muddy at Washington Park yesterday. A drizzle of rain was falling last night. Yet, a six or eight hour stretch of sunshine today will improve the running strip to such a stage where it could easily be good or possibly fast by the time the field parades to the post for the $3,000 added money prize.

Four of the overnight entries trailed Col. Edward R. Bradley's champion Barn Swallow home in the Kentucky Oaks just a week ago. Barn Swallow didn't come on for the Oaks, because she is in search of bigger game in the traditional American Coaching Club Oaks soon to be renewed at Belmont Park.

Most of Entries Like Mud.

The Illinois Oaks had its beginning back in 1926, when W. R. Coe's great filly Black Maria was the winner. In 1927 came a victory by Yeddo. The Oaks wasn't renewed in 1928, when Chicago racing affairs were somewhat in a turmoil. The champion Rose of Sharon won it in 1929, when it was renewed again. Then came victories by Snowflake and Alyssum, and last year it was won by Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Suntica.

Most of the fillies named for the race are noted mud runners and, with the exception of Jessie Dear, jockeys had been selected for all of them. The field, arranged in the order of post positions, follows:

| Horse. | Wt. | Jockey. | Odds. |
|---|---|---|---|
| At Top | 116 | R. Finnerty | 5-2 |
| Bright Bubble | 116 | W. Curran | 3-1 |
| Bamboula | 116 | W. Wright | 4-1 |
| Spartan Lady | 116 | K. Horvath | 15-1 |
| Jessie Dear | 116 | No boy | 10-1 |
| Technique | 116 | C. Corbett | 4-1 |

While she has worked sensationally at Washington Park, clockers were of the opinion Jessie Dear does not favor a soft track. Last night they suspected that she might be scratched out of the Oaks unless the track shows great improvement.

Reigh Count's Son to Race.

A 2 year old race at five furlongs backs up the Oaks in making the day's racing an attractive program. It brings into action a son of the old turf champion Reigh Count, which has been called Count Rae and which races for Warren Wright's Calumet stable.

IS SCHMELING O.K.? DEMPSEY TO SEE HIMSELF

New York, May 26.—(AP)—The unusual spectacle of a boxing promoter actually testing the wares of one of his fighters will be offered tomorrow when Jack Dempsey climbs into the ring with Max Schmeling to box one round or less with the German.

Dempsey, now 38 years old, is visiting both of the principals in his scheduled heavyweight fight in the Yankee stadium June 8 to see how they are coming along in their training, making his first stop at Schmeling's camp at Lake Swannanoa, N. J. Sunday he will box with Max Baer, the Californian, at Atlantic City.

Schmeling Denies He Will Marry Actress

Lake Swannonoa, N. J., May 26.—[Special.]—Max Schmeling, former holder of the world's heavyweight boxing championship, who will meet Max Baer of California June 8 at Yankee stadium in New York, denied rumors today that he is to marry Anny Ondra, an actress. "She is a friend and a very fine girl, but we are not going to be married," Max said.

5 Qualify at Indianapolis; Field Totals 30

Indianapolis, Ind., May 26.—(AP)—It was another day of thrills with one spill at the Indianapolis motor speedway today as five more drivers qualified their cars for next Tuesday's 500 mile race, increasing the field to thirty.

Out of control, the speedster driven by Virgil Livengood of Hammond, Ind., crashed head-on into the guard rail on the inner edge of the track, but the pilot and Laddie Erban, riding mechanic, also of Hammond, escaped injury.

Both Men Land on Feet.

The racer went into a spin in the last turn leading into the home stretch, hit the wooden guard rail, ripped away some 40 feet of it, and tossed Livengood and Erban high into the air. Both men landed on their feet some distance from the car, which remained upright. Livengood was driving 103 miles an hour when the car got away from him.

Petillo Makes Best Speed.

Other qualifiers today were: Kelly Petillo, formerly of Pittsburgh but now living in Los Angeles; Gene Haustein of Detroit; Wesley Crawford, Indianapolis, and Sam Palmer of Los Angeles.

Petillo made the best speed of the day, averaging 113.037 miles per hour. Haustein, who had to make good on today's trial or automatically be eliminated from the race for three failures, turned the trick at 107.603 miles per hour. Crawford averaged 109.862.

How They're Voting on National League Stars

The baseball fans of the nation will decide who will play in the game of the century at Comiskey park July 6. Fifty-five newspapers in all sections of the United States have invited fans to help pick the National and American leagues' greatest players.

The Tribune is offering $500 in cash prizes to the fans who come closest to naming the teams. The first award of $250 will go to the person who comes closest to naming the starting lineups [batting order] and the three pitchers for each team in the order they work. The fan who selects the National league's starting lineup with starting pitcher will receive $100. A similar prize will be presented for the American league team. Fifty $1 prizes will be distributed among the fans who can name the six pitchers.

Harridge Wins Toss of Coin.

BY ARCH WARD.

Comiskey park will be the site of the game of the century. The location of the greatest attraction in baseball history, scheduled for July 6, was decided by the flip of a coin yesterday in the office of Commissioner K. M. Landis.

President William Harridge represented the American league. Leslie O'Connor, secretary to Judge Landis, was delegated by President John Heydler to serve for the National league.

As the coin was tossed Mr. Harridge called heads. And heads it was. He named Comiskey park.

If the game is a sell-out, as baseball fans predict, at least $12,000 hinged on the toss. That represents the additional seating capacity of the White Sox park over Wrigley field, which would have been chosen had tails turned up.

50,000 May See Game.

"I naturally am happy that the American league won," said Mr. Harridge. "Comiskey park is close to the grounds of A Century of Progress. It has greater seating capacity and a larger playing field. It will be much easier for American league players to catch late afternoon trains to the east, where they must appear in regularly scheduled games July 7."

The capacity of Comiskey park is approximately 50,000. There are 35,000 seats in the grandstand, 12,500 in the boxes, and 2,400 in the bleachers.

All box and grandstand seats will be reserved. Ticket applications will be handled by officials of the park. No orders will be accepted, however, until June 1. It will take that long to work out details.

No Advance in Prices.

It was agreed among President Harridge, President Heydler, and THE TRIBUNE, which is sponsoring the game, that there would be no increase in prices over the regular daily big league admission in Chicago. Box seats will sell for $1.65, grandstand seats for $1, and bleachers for 55 cents. Never have baseball fans been offered such a bargain. A world series game costs four times as much. On July 6 you can see all the stars, the greatest players in the major leagues, at prices that prevail every day at Chicago games.

The playing field at Comiskey park is the only symmetrical playing area in the major leagues excepting the Municipal stadium at Cleveland. The distance from the plate to the end of both foul lines is 362 feet, the distance from the plate to the center field wall is 450 feet. The lines at Cleveland are 42 feet shorter than those at Comiskey park and the distance to the center field wall is the same. The walls, therefore, are not parallel with the base lines, making the Comiskey grounds the only ideal playing inclosure from the standpoint of dimensions.

Favorites Hold Leads.

The team will be chosen by popular vote in a nation-wide poll in which fifty-five papers from coast to coast are coöperating with THE TRIBUNE.

Included in the National league standings this morning are votes from Minneapolis, Minn.; Steator, Ill.; Little Rock, Ark.; Quincy, Ill., and Topeka, Kas. The Chicago vote, of course, still dominates.

The various localities have different ideas of who is who in major league baseball. Charlie Grimm of the Cubs, for example, leads the National league first basemen in the vote from Little Rock. Billy Herman of the Cubs, is ahead of Frankie Frisch at second base in the Streator returns. Walter Berger of the Braves, who ranks fourth among the outfielders in the grand totals, was only one vote behind Chuck Klein at Streator.

Collins Shows Gain.

Catcher Hartnett and Pitcher Warneke of the Cubs are running in front everywhere. So is Pie Traynor, the Pirates' third baseman.

Warneke is leading Carl Hubbell of the Giants in the total vote by a 9 to 8 ratio. Red Lucas of Cincinnati is holding third place. The opinions on the league's most skillful moundsmen are so divided that there are 25 candidates. Five Cubs—Warneke, Bush, Malone, Root and Grimes—have received votes.

Jim Collins, Cardinal first baseman, was the principal beneficiary of the out of town vote. He jumped from seventh place with 57 votes Tuesday to third position and 1,127 votes.

The sincerity of the fans in picking the strongest available players for the game of the century is obvious from the returns. Home town popularity has played no part in the selections. The Cubs listed in early returns have run no stronger in Chicago than they have in Kansas, Minnesota and Arkansas.

STANFORD LANDS 15 IN FINALS OF I. C. 4-A. MEET

U. S. C., Defending Champion, 2d with 14.

Cambridge, Mass., May 26.—(AP)—Today's qualifying trials in the Intercollegiate A. A. A. track meet failed to alter expectations that most eastern opposition will be swept aside tomorrow in the rampant rush of Stanford and Southern California toward title honors in the 57th championship competition.

BEN EASTMAN.

Stanford, still the team favorite, earned 15 qualifying places for tomorrow's finals and led the field, mainly because of the sensational performances of a strong-armed quartet of weight men. Southern California, the defending champion, qualified 14 men and made a surprisingly strong showing on the track. Each coast team landed men in nine of the 11 events in which preliminaries were held.

Harvard Leads East.

Harvard led the eastern brigade with nine places, an unexpectedly good showing, but New York university and Yale, because of strength in the remaining four events to be contested only as finals tomorrow, appeared to be the chief rivals for third place in the final team standing. N. Y. U. picked up seven qualifying places and Yale five.

No records were broken and there were few upsets; most of the stars having been satisfied to qualify "under wraps." A new threat in the 400 meter run appeared in the slim, speedy Jimmy Lu Valle, sophomore representative of the newest association member, the University of California at Los Angeles. Lu Valle ran his heat in 47.5 seconds with such ease that he was quickly rated a favorite over such seasoned racers as Yale's Karl Warner and Southern California's Ed Ablowitch, Olympic stars who captured the other 400 meter heats in 48.8 and 48.3 seconds, respectively.

The Stanford captain, Ben Eastman, qualified easily in the 800 meters, by running third in a 1.55.9 heat, eight yards behind Keller of Pittsburgh, and seven back of Burns of Manhattan. Eastman has only lately returned to competition after a long lay off, due to to pulled leg muscle, and he may have trouble keeping pace tomorrow with such stars as Bill Bonthron of Princeton and Pongrace of Michigan State, in addition to the runners he trailed today. Bonthron will run the 800 meters little more than an hour after he tries to set a new American 1,500 meter record.

Stanford Sprinter Beaten.

Stanford's lone sprint hope, Les Hables, was shut out in the 100 meter, although the motion pictures may give him a recount because of the closeness of the finish in which Dick Hardy, of Cornell, was declared the winner of the first semi-final heat. Hables was blanketed with Hardy, Parson of Southern California, a qualifier in both dashes, and Maskrey of Pennsylvania in one of the most exciting finishes of the day. Les Bell of U. S. C., however, made the best time when he won the second semi-final heat in 10.6 seconds.

A close race was forecast in the 110 meter high hurdles final by the performances of Gus Meier of Stanford, and Bob Lyon of Southern California. Both were timed in 14.7 seconds, and looked superior to the eastern champion, George Lockwood of Yale.

The pace setters among Stanford's weight men were close to record as they outclassed all rivals with the exception of Hueston Harper of U. S. C. in the shotput. John Lyman, with a toss of 51 feet, 9 inches, was two inches better than his team mate, Gordon Dunn, while Henri Laborde was way out in front of the discus throwers with a mark of 162 feet 10½ inches. Dunn, Laborde and Nelson Gray, the shotput champion, all qualified in both weight events.

Yale Hopes Stinted.

Two of the most surprising performances were turned in by Henry Little, all around star from William and Mary, and Horace Odell of Manhattan. Besides qualifying handily in the 200 meter dash, Little topped the broad jumpers at 24 feet 4¼ inches, better than the 1932 winning mark. Odell made the best javelin throw, 205 feet ½ inch, leading two Southern California rivals.

The only defending champion to set the pace in his specialty was Pete Zaremba, New York university hammer thrower, who had a qualifying mark of 168 feet 6½ inches. Vic Malin of Yale qualified with the second best throw, but Yale prospects suffered a setback when Hillman Holcombe failed to qualify, due to the unexpectedly strong performance of a pair of Rhode Island State entries coached by Fred Tootell, former world champion in the event.

The complete list of qualifying places:

Stanford, 15; Southern California, 14; Harvard, 9; New York university, 7; Yale, 5; Pennsylvania, 3; Penn State, 3; Cornell, 3; William and Mary, 3; Michigan State, 3; Rhode Island State, 2; Princeton, 2; Manhattan, 2; Bates, 1; Boston college, 1; Bowdoin, 1; U. C. L. A., 1; Colgate, 1; C. C. N. Y., 1; Fordham, 1; Lafayette, 1; Maine, 1; Pittsburgh, 1.

MISTAKE ON PROGRAM COSTS HORSE TROPHY

Philadelphia, Pa., May 26.—(AP)—With victory clinched, Rollo Reed, hunter from the stables of Mrs. A. C. Thompson of Elmhurst, Ill., was disqualified through a typographical error today at the Devon Horse show. Just as the judges were awarding the trophy for the best handy hunter in the class open to all, somebody discovered Rollo Reed was entered under the name of Master Johnny.

Officials said the names were twisted by mistake when the programs were printed. The judges finally took the trophy away from Rollo Reed, and moved up Reveille, a winner in other years and runner-up today.

MORSUN, rank at post, where he was placed on the outside, broke slowly, but rapidly worked way up in first quarter, was steadied at the turn and, after easily disposing of PRINCE SULIEMAN, held on well, outstaying GOLDEN SUN. Latter, under steadying restraint for a half mile and always on outside, closed resolutely and was getting to winner, ONDOTT, unable to keep up and a good distance back for half a mile, made up ground thereafter.

SUFFOLK, much the best and away fast, took command quickly, easily increased his advantage after reaching stretch, and had something left. BATTLING GIRL drew away from DISPATCHER after three-eighths, was under strong restraint at the turn, but could not threaten winner, and weakened, yet outstayed DISPATCHER. Latter held on fairly well under vigorous driving the final quarter.

Winner trained by owner. Went to post at 3:28½. At post 3 minutes. Start good from gate. Won ridden out; second and third driving.

DUELIST, under strong riding after three-eighths, began working way up approaching stretch, wore down HAMILTON after reaching final eighth, and kept under pressure to end. HAMILTON followed the early pacemaker under light restraint, headed LADY MENEFEE quickly after reaching final quarter, and held on well, but was outmatched. WAYWARD LAD, slow to get going and far back for a half mile, saved ground when closing boldly.

Winner trained by T. F. Devercaux. Went to post at 4:00. At post 1 minute. Start good from gate. Won easily; second and third driving.

FIGHTING BOB, much the best and cleverly ridden, was taken under strong restraint when unable to outrun DOUBLE NUGGET, responded stoutly when called upon and, racing into easy command, won in hand. DOUBLE NUGGET displayed keen speed from the start, led by a quarter, and weakened, but outstayed LITTLE JOYCE. Latter dropped far out of it and closed well on inside.

UPSETS LASSIE, inclined to bear in and steadied along for a half mile, failed to rally when urged hard, but held on well and headed the badly faltering GUIDESS within a few strides of the end. Latter opened up a good lead quickly, maintained her advantage to final eighth, then weakened badly, enabling winner to get up. VERDA saved ground throughout and showed an even effort.

POPO, suited by the going and lucky, was well in hand for a half mile, stood tight punishment gamely, and, saving pluch ground in late stages, was up in final strides. FOOLHARDY, probably best and having most to gain from start, bore out badly at stretch turn, raced wide thereafter, and held on well, but failed to withstand winner. HIS LAST, a strong factor from start, saved ground throughout and weakened in final drive.

SUN WORSHIP, away slowly, reached contention on inside, responded gamely when urged hard after reaching the final five-sixteenths and, wearing down the leaders, outstayed TADCASTER. Latter, slow to get going, remained a good distance back to final quarter, where he gradually improved his position when, racing wide and holding on well, was strongest of all at end. OSWEGO PRINCESS, much used racing YOUNG BILL into submission, weakened in final eighth.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse $700. Net value to winner, $525; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25.

Winner trained by owner. Went to post at 5:44½. At post 1½ minutes. Start good from gate. Won handily; second and third driving.

NORTH SHADOW forced early pace under restraint, took a short lead after reaching final half mile, briefly gave way to HELEN BAB and, regaining a clear advantage, was taken in hand and had a close call when Westrope drifted to see MOMO on inside. Latter saved much ground and held on resolutely under a long drive. HELEN BAB, well up from start, weakened after taking a short lead in stretch.

The title was not at stake. The decision was unpopuuar, many ringsiders concuring in the belief that Wolgast had won every round.

Fighting Bob, Boot to Boot's Son, Triumphs

The best race on Washington Park's muddy track program yesterday was the five furlong dash for 2 year olds. Fighting Bob, a red hot favorite, won it by four lengths from Double Nugget and Little Joyce was third. Fighting Bob is a son of the American Derby winner, Boot to Boot. Jockey Charley Allen let him take things easy until the stretch run started. Then he ran away from his field.

There have been few greater rides at Washington Park this season than the one Jockey K. Horvath gave Upset's Lassie, the 1 to 2 favorite, in the fifth race. Guidess, a long shot from Sam Furst's stable, made all the early pace and when Upset's Lassie headed into the stretch four lengths behind, her chances didn't seem so good. Then Horvath started driving her. She galloped up, gaining an inch at a time, and got the decision by a neck in the last few jumps. In the mutuels Upset's Lassie paid $2.96 so all the favorite players were happy.

The sudden change in track conditions caused four substitute races to be added to the program yesterday and the "figure" players were completely baffled. Yet the heavily backed horses marched home one after another nearly all afternoon.

The World's Fair American Derby, to be decided on June 3, has begun to shape into what the boys call a warm hoss race. Frank Garret, trainer for John E. Hughes, has wired Tom Young, track superintendent, that he will ship eight horses to Lincoln Fields next Sunday. Included in this entourage is Silent Shot, an American Derby candidate. Silent Shot is a superior soft track racer.

Jack Price, trainer for Adolph Pons, has wired for twelve stalls at Lincoln Fields. He will bring along Swivel and Projectile. The latter is entered in the American Derby. At Washington Park and Lincoln Fields there are 17 eligibles for the American Derby. These include Charley O., Trace Call, Head Play, Warren Jr., Stride Away, Red Whisk, Gyro, Misguide, North Gallis, Colonel Hatfield, Isaiah, Spicson, At Top, Graceful Lad, Advising Anna, and Fair Rochester.

Expert turf observers look for a field of fifteen or sixteen to start in the World's Fair Derby, including such eastern stars as Mr. Khayyam, De Valera, Ladysman, Bertrano, Sarada, Kerry Patch, Clarify, Utopian, Silent Shot, and Projectile.

Trainer Tom Hayes breezed the "red cyclone," Head Play, six furlongs yesterday morning in 1:19 3-5, the first quarter in :25 1-5, half in :52, and five-eighths in 1:05 3-5. The big colt was begging to run through the slop, but Hayes held him down all the way. Isaiah, Derby hope of J. W. Parrish, Kentucky banker, breezed three-eighths in :37 3-5 handily.

M'LARNIN ENDS DRILL FOR BOUT WITH CORBETT

Los Angeles, Cal., May 26.—(AP)—Jimmy McLarnin ended his training today for a 10 round welterweight title fight Monday night with Young Corbett III., the champion.

In top condition and well under the 147 pound limit, the Irish youth from Vancouver, B. C., is satisfied he has done everything possible to prepare himself for the rôle of challenger.

Corbett, on the other hand, proposes to stretch his gymnasium work out one more day and celebrate his 27th birthday anniversary tomorrow with six rounds against two or three light opponents. He worked four rounds today against fast moving lightweights, seeking to tune himself up to the tempo he expects McLarnin to set.

McLarnin's last workout also was designed to stimulate speed. He dismissed his heavier opponents yesterday and concentrated largely on his footwork, which he hopes will help him to maneuver away from Corbett's lefts.

SENATORS, 5; BROWNS, 2.

Washington, D. C., May 26.—(AP)—In an abbreviated game, cut short by rain in the seventh inning, the Washington Senators today defeated the St. Louis Browns, 5 to 2, to strengthen their second place position in the league standing.

The Senators captured the ball game in the first inning. They blasted George Blaeholder from the hill with a five hit attack that netted four runs, and then continued their assault in the later innings against Sam Gray and Jack Knott to total 10 hits. Score:

Giants Defeat Pirates, 6-5, on Homer in 8th

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 26.—(AP)—The New York Giants clipped a game off Pittsburgh's lead in the National league pennant race today, reducing the Pirates' margin to two games, as they slugged out a 6 to 5 victory in their first appearance at Forbes field.

Gus Mancuso's home run over the score board in left field in the eighth provided the winning run after the Giants had come from behind to tie the score. Bill [Hard Luck] Harris, was the victim of the hit after both starting pitchers, Heinie Meine of Pittsburgh and Fred Fitzsimmons of New York, had been driven from the mound. Score:

REDS, 3; DODGERS, 2.

Cincinnati, O., May 27.—(AP)—Chick Hafey stepped up to the plate with the score tied at 2 to 2 and none out in the ninth inning today and smashed Van Mungo's second pitch over the left field fence for a home run that gave the Reds a 3 to 2 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers.

The Reds scored their first two runs off Watson Clark in the first inning. Clark was removed after that inning and Mungo waged a close mound duel with Silas Johnson until Hafey's home run ended the game. The Dodgers got their first run on Tony Cuccinello's homer and tied the score in the sixth on two hits and a wild throw by George Grantham. Score:

WOMAN SUICIDE BELIEVED TO BE MRS. THEVENOW

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 26.—(AP)—Tommy Thevenow, Pirate shortstop, said tonight the description of a woman seen to leap into the Monongahela river from a bridge answered that of his wife, missing since last Wednesday.

Thevenow is said to have identified by a description a coat and hat left on the bridge as belonging to Mrs. Thevenow. He told police they had quarreled recently.

A man giving his name as James Magin reported to Police Lieutenant George Schmotzer that he saw a young girl running across the bridge yesterday morning. He said he found a red coat wedged in the bottom of the railing and a black purse on the floor of the bridge.

Thevenow was married last February, just before starting the training season with the Pirates.

DEAR WAKE: Back in the old days before we ever dreamed of the Volstead act I used to drop into Joseph Schlogl's place in Wells near Washington street when I wanted a glass of elegant old Oporto port wine. Joseph Schlogl passed away in 1919. His place thereafter was conducted by his son Edward.

In the old days, Schlogl's, famed for its steaks as well as its liquors, was a great rendezvous for city hall politicians and Board of Trade operators. One of our favorite appetite whetters was a schopfen of Oporto, plate of German rye bread, and a great big slice of sharp old limburger cheese. O boy, when I think of that!

At the beginning of the baseball season we kids asked our mothers for some old worn-out home knitted stockings. Beginning at the toes, we unraveled them, then wound the yarn tight over a walnut. Next, with wrapping cord and a darning needle, we sewed over and over again to make the ball hard and firm. Then we were ready for a game of "three cornered cat."

Before the days of automobile delivery, pies were delivered to dealers by light, panel bodied wagons having an aisle down the center which was flanked by compartments in which the pies were carried.

These wagons always were drawn by teams of fast horses which, in spite of the poor pavements, apparently were in great rush to get to their next destination.

Pictures were painted on the panel sides of the wagons depicting stirring scenes from American history such as Pocahontas saving John Smith's life, Mollie Pitcher at Monmouth, Washington and Cornwallis at Yorktown, Grant and Lee at Appomattox, Monitor and Merrimac, battles of Shiloh, Gettysburg, etc. Figures, faces, and proportions in these figures always were well done and historical detail accurately observed.

Sox Lambast Ruffing and Yankees, 8-6

only as far as third. Hayes singled past Gehrig and Grube scored. A pass to Haas filled the bags with none out. The runners refused to move on Swanson's short fly to right. Simmons' single to center was a fly ball, so only Gregory scored. Then Appling fouled to Gehrig and Fonseca fanned.

The Sox slipped back into a tie in the fifth. Ruffing led off with a low drive into the wide open space between Simmons and Haas. He kept moving until he reached third. Just as he arrived the ball, relayed in by Appling, shot past Dykes and bounced off the front of the grand stand. Ruffing jogged home while the Sox were trying to recapture the loose ball.

Simmons Run Wild.

Simmons put on his exhibition of daring in the sixth to restore the Sox to a one run lead for a few moments. He led off with a hit to left and took a long chance trying to stretch it into a double. He thundered into second feet first and survived when the ball leaped out of Crosetti's hands. Appling flied to Combs in short center, but Simmons took another gamble and started for third. He slid in head first and beat the throw. Then he went tearing home on Fonseca's fly to Ruth. The Yanks tied it again in their half on Gehrig's single, a pass to Chapman and Hayes' wild throw to first in attempting to complete a double play.

The stormy seventh in which four Sox hit and three scored started with Gregory doubling off the right field bleacher fence. He went to third when Hayes caromed a hard single off Ruffing's shin. Haas almost tore an ear off Ruffing and sent Umpire Geisel diving to earth for safety, with a low line single to center on which Gregory scored and Hayes went to third. Swanson popped out and Simmons grounded into a forceout on which Hayes tallied. Then Simmons ran home on Appling's triple, which traveled on the fly to the 402 foot sign in left center. The spurt subsided when Fonseca struck out.

Sox Hop on MacFayden.

The Sox leaped on MacFayden with three hits in the eighth, but scored only one run. It began with Dykes' single to left. Grube was thrown out, but Gregory's third hit sent Dykes home. Then Hayes walked and Haas beat out an infield popup, filling the bases. Swanson ended it when he poked into a double play.

Gregory's dismissal in the eighth was caused by healthy singles by Sewell and Gehrig. In between the hits was Ruth's long drive which Haas captured in deep right center. Faber stopped this rally on one pitched ball. Chapman hit it to Hayes for a double play. Then Appling applied one more fancy touch with his homer inside the park in the ninth.

The Yanks didn't start to get tough in the ninth until two were gone. Dickey, who was on first as the result of a pass, went to second on a wild pitch and to third when Pinch Batter Walker singled. Both scored on a triple to right center by Combs. The latter registered on a double by Sewell. This brought up Ruth, and Faber, after pitching three in a row wide of the plate, trapped the big fellow on a roller to Fonseca for the final out.

Sox Pick Lyons to Face Yankees in Second Game

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 26.—Ted Lyons will work the second of the series against the Yanks tomorrow. Joe McCarthy plans to start Don Brennan, one of his new fellows. Brennan and Lyons hooked up in Chicago recently and the Chicago ace was thumped, 7 to 3.

Lou Gehrig tumbled head first over a gate leading into the grandstand when he chased a foul off Fonseca's bat in the third inning. He continued to play but when he ran out his single in the eighth he discovered his left leg was beginning to stiffen. He retired immediately. He'll be lucky if he is able to play tomorrow.

The Yankee officials had a good reason for canceling yesterday's game, even though the field was dry and there was no rain. They wanted to stage a double header Sunday to offset a twin bill scheduled at Brooklyn between the Giants and Dodgers.

Billy Sullivan, the graduate law student from Notre Dame, was scheduled to rejoin the Sox today but didn't show up. Being of a legal turn of mind, he probably needs considerable time to decide which train he'll travel on.

No Game Today; Cubs and Braves to See the Fair

The Cubs and Braves will go to A Century of Progress today. Today's game was put over till tomorrow in deference to the opening of the Exposition.

Bush and Warneke will pitch in Sunday's double header. Guy will be after his fourth victory of the season and Warneke will be seeking No. 7. Bush hasn't faced the Braves this year. Warneke beat them, 5 to 2, on May 7.

Kiki Cuyler, Cub outfield star, who broke his left leg in an exhibition game against Hollywood on March 29, showed up at Wrigley field yesterday afternoon. Earlier he had called on Dr. Edward Ryerson, who told Ki he could take batting practice with the team Sunday. Thereafter he will take daily workouts, including the two days the Cubs are in Pittsburgh, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week.

The first nine innings of yesterday's contest were played in the snappy time of 1 hour and 27 minutes.

Del Young Jr., youthful infielder, who has been the property of the Cubs for two years, bounced back from Albany yesterday and was given his unconditional release.

Boys Taught How to Drive at 27 Courses

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The boys' class in THE TRIBUNE Golf school, composed of hundreds of budding Bobby Joneses, had its night last night. Ranging in age from seven to just under eighteen, the limit for this division, they underwent their first tests on the first portion of the course, the driver.

Although the boys' class is by far the smallest of the four taking free lessons at all of the 27 courses of the Chicago Daily Fee Golf association, sponsor of the plan, it was one of the most enthusiastic of the opening week. Those who matriculated last night left little doubt in the minds of the operators and professionals at each course that they would return to take the remaining five lessons.

Because of the comparatively small enrollment in this class boys under eighteen probably will derive more benefit than any other, since the professionals will be able to give them more personal attention. A number of clubs invited last night's students to bring their friends to the second lesson next week.

Special Classes Tomorrow.

Those who missed the lesson this week will have an opportunity to take the lesson on the driver. That will be given to them tomorrow afternoon, when special lessons of the same type as this week's will be given at the 23 outlying courses. The men and boys will be taught in a combined group at 4 o'clock and the women and girls at 4:45 o'clock. All of the clubs have made special preparations to solve the problem of Memorial day. Those who have not read previous announcements with reference to these plans are advised to communicate with the professional at the course at which they are taking their lessons.

Students who have been taking lesson at Evergreen may witness a practical demonstration of the course in a special best ball match at the club at 4 o'clock Memorial day. It will bring together Al Megeff, the home pro, and Don Gardiner, Flossmoor professional, against Johnny Takach and Ray Hutchison. The public, and particularly the pupils, are invited to attend. Evergreen has postponed its Tuesday night men's class of next week until the following Monday, June 5. A class of 75 boys attended last night's session at the club.

Will Explain Shots to Gallery.

Sixty boys appeared for their first lesson at Mid-City last night, and one young Hagen of 7, who disappeared before his name could be learned, was the prize pupil of the evening, displaying a natural swing which Danny Taggart, his instructor, said might be envied by his elders. Mid-City also will hold an exhibition match, involving Norman Faunce, Eddie Gayer, Joe Tivnan, and Frank Springer, at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Taggart, Bill Campbell, and G. E. O'Donnell, who are also teaching, will explain each shot to the gallery. Mid-City will inaugurate its first annual junior tourney for boys of high school age today with the first portion of the qualifying round.

Only twenty appeared at Techny Fields, but they enjoyed one of the best classes of the entire school thus far, for they were allowed to drive a half dozen balls each by Jock Anderson, the club professional. Backward pupils were taken aside and given special instruction. Thirty-five were taught by Joe Roseman and Lou Humphries at Pickwick, where next week's classes will be held for women and girls on Wednesday night, and for men and boys on Thursday night.

Blue Island Boys Attend.

Westgate Valley, where Packey Walsh, who is assisting his brother, Tom, in teaching, gave a fifteen minuate demonstration of all the shots in the bag, drew 40 boys, a majority of them sent by Charles Price, principal of the Blue Island High school. John Reuter found plenty of talent among a class of 30 at Rob Roy. Harlem attracted a class of 25. The men's class at Harlem next week will be held at 7 p. m. Monday night, because of Tuesday's holiday. Forty turned up at Big Oaks for instructions from Joe Sturm. Among his pupils Sturm has discovered an entire family, all taking lessons. They are Mr. and Mrs. Albert D. Keil of 5554 North Sawyer avenue and their daughter and two sons.

Jack Daray of White Pines gave a lesson to fifty boys last night. Daray will hold his men's classes next week on Wednesday at 10 a. m. and 7:30 p. m., on Thursday for women at the same hours, and for boys and girls together on Friday at 7:30 p. m.

This will be a best ball amateur championship open to teams of two from any C. D. G. A. club. It will be played in connection with the one day handicap event scheduled at the Oak Park Country club on Aug. 30.

Invitations have been mailed to every club in Illinois to send representatives to the third annual open Illinois amateur and professional championships, to be played at the Medinah Country club June 19-24.

A number of the stars who will compete in the national open at North Shore June 8, 9, and 10 will stay on to compete in the north shore open tournament on June 11 and 12 at Sunset Valley. Last year Olin Dutra, P. G. A. champion, broke the course record to win the event.

The Mohawk Country club will open its season Tuesday with a 36 hole medal play event in A, B, and C classes for men, and an 18 hole tournament for women. A dinner dance at the new clubhouse, first opened last year, will be held tonight. The course wintered well and the club is in excellent financial condition, with only a few memberships now open.

The Cherry Hill Golf club, located at Flossmoor, will hold a flag tournament to mark Memorial day. An annual membership heads the list of prizes.

The Maywood Golf club, one of the oldest in the district, has been sold and will be operated henceforth as a daily fee course. The club was founded in 1900.

Plae Dae, the annual invitational tournament of the Calumet Country club, will be held on Aug. 3 instead of Aug. 2, as originally announced.

One hundred members and guests of the Goodfellow club of the Insurance Company of North America will hold a tournament June 4 at the St. Andrews Golf club, West Chicago. Competition will be at 18 holes for various gross and net prizes. Paul Magnuson heads the tournament committee.

The Butterfield Country club announces that its membership quota of 300 is now complete, with no more memberships for sale. The only way to gain membership admission now is through formal application and awaiting the sale, resignation or forfeiture of a present member. Until further charges are authorized by the board of directors, the fees for future applications will total $220, including membership, transfer and tax.

New York, May 26.—Although many members of the trading fraternity closed shop to attend the Bond club outing, the bond market gave a fairly good account of itself today.

Features were strength in treasury issues and active buying of speculative railroad bonds. Further strength of rail loans was attributed to optimistic freight car loading reports and general business news. Sales totaled $14,979,000, par value, slightly under yesterday's aggregate.

Low-Priced Rails Advance.

Early trading witnessed gains of 1 to 4 points in low-priced rails. There were intermittent flurries of profit taking, but offerings were well taken and near the close the market embarked on an upward trend with an active demand.

Higher prices were noted for such issues as New York Central, Alleghany corporation, Baltimore and Ohio, Southern railway, Southern Pacific, Missouri Pacific, Illinois Central, Nickel Plate, Canadian Pacific, St. Paul, Chicago and North Western, Erie, Great Northern, Northern Pacific, Louisville and Nashville, and others.

Industrial Bonds Narrow.

Narrow price movements ruled among industrials and utilities, with slight improvement in bonds of National Dairy, North American, Gulf States Steel, Consolidated Gas, and American and Foreign Power.

Irregularity marked movements of foreign bond prices in a quiet market. Improvement was shown by some of the issues of Argentina, Austria, Brazil, Denmark, France, Italy, Japan, and Great Britain. German bonds were irregular.

Trading on Chicago Curb Sets Mark of 25,700 Shares

Trading on the Chicago curb set a record yesterday, a total of 25,700 shares changing hands as practically all classes of stocks advanced. Berghoff Brewing reached and held a new peak at 13½, up 1⅞ for the day.

American Rolling Mill.

Please give me information on 'American Rolling Mill.—W. B.

American Rolling Mill company specializes in production of high quality steel, iron sheets and light plate, producing about 20 per cent of the industry's output. Next to United States Steel, its share of the business of that branch is the largest.

The automobile industry ordinarily takes about one-fourth of total output. Other customers are the building, road construction, refrigeration, electrical equipment and steel jobbing trades.

The company has developed a new process for continuous rolling from hot ingots to finished strip sheets. It has licensed eight other firms to use it on a tonnage royalty basis. Because of slack conditions in the industry only two of them have been using it.

Lower prices and reduced sales, the direct result of industrial inactivity, have resulted in substantial deficits since 1930. Loss for the first quarter of 1933 was $967,000, against loss of $573,000 for the first quarter of 1932.

Sales for 1932 were $27,294,000, against $39,908,000 for 1931 and $53,652,000 for 1930. The company lost $2,030,000 in 1932 and $3,098,000 in 1931. Net income for 1930 was $114,000, or 3 cents per common share. In 1929 net income reached a peak of $6,111,000, or $4.24 per common share.

The company finished 1932 with current assets of $25,910,000, and current liabilities of $2,901,000. Cash alone was $5,124,000.

During 1932 funded debt was reduced $2,500,000. The company's major problem now is refunding the $14,000,000 4½ per cent notes due Nov. 1, 1933. Other funded debt amounts to $27,134,000. There are outstanding 884 shares of 6 per cent A preferred, 19,649 shares of B preferred [both with $100 par value] and 1,709,253 shares of $25 par common.

Nothing is being paid on the B preferred.

In view of unsatisfactory operations and the anticipated difficulties of refinancing, both the preferred and the common are considered quite speculative.

Greenbacks.

1. Please explain what is meant by "greenbacks." 2. Has the government the right to issue them and, 3, is it likely to do so? 4. What would be the difference in their value as compared with other money issued by the government?—Mrs. F. H.

[2] Yes.

[3] Yes. In January, 1933, there were $289,171,000 of these in circulation.

[4] There is no difference in monetary value between the greenbacks and other types of money. All United States money circulates at par value in this country.

MARKETS' RISE WILL CONTINUE, SAYS WOODIN AID

Inflation to Insure It if Business Doesn't.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Markets will continue to advance.

That is the plan of the United States treasury department as interpreted yesterday by Walter J. Cummings, executive assistant to Secretary of the Treasury Woodin. Mr. Cummings, who is president of the Cummings Car company and a Chicagoan, is here for the opening of A Century of Progress, his first holiday since he went into action March 4 as Secretary Woodin's man Friday.

W. J. CUMMINGS. [Maurice Seymour Photo.]

The administration, Mr. Cummings said, intends to raise prices materially above their present levels and has the power to do so.

More important, it proposes to pump credit into business until a normal rate of activity is attained and the idle have been put back to work.

Two Reasons for Success.

There are two excellent reasons, he said, why this end will be attained:

1. The nation's renovated banking system is now sound and ready to pour credit into business just as fast as good borrowers step up to the counter to get it, and

2. Poor borrowers are rapidly being made good borrowing risks because of the advance of prices and the general increase in business activity.

But back of all this, he continued, and the real prime mover is inflation.

To what extent the administration would exploit the inflationary powers conferred by congress, Mr. Cummings declined to predict.

"I will say only this," he said. "The power to inflate will be used only when and if required. If business continues to improve and prices continue to advance without recourse to additional currency or credit expansion, the exercise of these powers of inflation will be exceedingly limited, but if necessary they will be used extensively."

Banks His Chief Job.

Mr. Cummings' prime concern, however, is the nation's national banking system. He is Secretary Woodin's lieutenant in charge of the reorganization of closed banks.

If the Glass bill is passed in the form in which it went through the senate Thursday it probably will bring about a unified centralized national banking system under the control of the federal reserve system, Mr. Cummings said.

"In order to qualify for the deposit guaranty," he explained, "state banks would have to apply for membership in the federal reserve."

At this point he was asked what this would mean to the small state banks that could not qualify for membership in the federal reserve system. His questioner pointed out that after the moratorium stat banking authorities in some states were much more liberal in permitting banks to reopen than were the federal reserve authorities and the national bank examiners.

"There would probably have to be some consolidations and reorganizations," he replied.

Open National Banks Sound.

"I cannot speak for the state banks that do not belong to the federal reserve system," he continued. "They are outside my purview. But I can speak with authority for the national banks and, to some extent, for the state banks within the reserve system.

"I say this. Every bank being opened by the national banking authorities is 100 per cent liquid. It could pay out to the last dime.

"There are two reasons for this. In the first place, banks that have to be reorganized are permitted to use, upon reopening, only the liquid part of their assets. Second, the extension of federal reserve credit and the issuance of the new asset currency has been placed upon such a liberalized basis that practically all the good assets of a member bank are now liquid assets.

Asked whether the rules for the issuance of asset money to member banks would be further broadened, Mr. Cummings said:

How R. F. C. Helps Banks.

The Reconstruction Finance corporation, he added, has extended much aid in bank reorganizations. By accepting the assets that are left after the federal reserve system has taken the cream of the assets for loans, the Reconstruction Finance corporation has extended financial aid that would not otherwise be available and has thereby made it possible to free a much larger proportion of deposits.

"But does this not mean that the Reconstruction Finance corporation is lending public money on unsafe collateral," he was asked.

"Perhaps," Mr. Cummings replied. "As prices advance, however, the value of this collateral will rise and the Reconstruction Finance corporation will be protected."

"Then the R. F. C. must depend upon inflation of prices to get clear?" his interrogator continued.

"The nation's entire economic program," Mr. Cummings answered, "depends upon a further advance in price levels."

Asked about the treasury's transferring to Cleveland of A. P. Leyburn, former chief national bank examiner for the Chicago district, Mr. Cummings said the switch was a "routine" matter and in no way the result of political pressure by four midwest senators amliated with the radical bloc.

Life Insurance Not Likely to End Loan Curb

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Life insurance policy holders will not be restored their cash surrender and loan policy privileges when the national convention of insurance commissioners meets here June, according to the consensus of opinion in insurance circles.

Admittedly a damper on the production of new insurance some companies are said to be chafing under the regulations. So strong, however, is the sentiment against lifting the moratorium that it is extremely unlikely that the commissioners will take such action.

Purely an advisory body, the convention, nevertheless, wields immense power in the life insurance field. It is the police force of the insurance industry and what it says in official convention usually goes.

Stronger Companies Agreeable.

Even those companies which have been represented as favoring the removal of the restrictions are not likely to offer serious opposition to the continuance of the ban, it is said. These companies are said to feel that they cannot afford to disregard the wishes of other companies.

Geographically scattered, the smaller companies might be expected to wield a greater influence in a convention of commissioners representing every state in the union.

One salient fact emerges, however. The well fortified companies are exasperated at what is described as the dilatory tactics of many of the commissioners in weeding out the shaky concerns which are hiding under the moratorium cloak. The moratorium cannot be continued indefinitely, they assert, and unless the commissioners get to work and weed the weak companies out of the business the public reaction to the industry as a whole will be unfavorable.

Illinois Weeds Out Weak.

Illinois is not one of the states which has lagged in this respect. Ernest Palmer, Illinois superintendent of insurance, has taken aggressive steps to classify all companies. An audit of all Illinois companies was made at his direction by outside actuaries as a preliminary to putting each company on its own. At his request he was granted broad emergency powers by the legislature to deal with situations requiring special attention. By this program he hopes to avoid the extraordinary expense and the loss of business to companies which are financially embarrassed.

One factor working against a lifting of the moratorium is the disinclination of companies to make further borrowings from the Reconstruction Finance corporation. Such loans, it is felt, are attached with a stigma in the public mind.

In view of these conditions the commissioners are unlikely to go further than to liberalize the present regulations, insurance people believe.

GRAINS RALLY; WHEAT 'OFFERS' SOAR AT CLOSE

New Money Plan Is Belated Factor.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Announcement that bills would be introduced into congress to abolish the gold standard in the United States was received too late yesterday to have any effect on the grain markets, which had closed for the day. The indemnity market, however, was open, and felt the full effect of what traders regarded as one of the most inflationary measures yet conceived.

"Offers" on wheat, which entitle the holder to buy the grain at a specified price, advanced around 2 cents per bushel. Sellers were scarce and as high as 75¾ cents was paid for offers on the July future, good all day today. This was 3½ cents above the regular close on that delivery. Unofficial prices of around 78 cents were heard after the indemnity market had closed.

Trade Still Forging Ahead; Fears of Recession Diminish

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 26.—Business and industry forged ahead again this week, with increased confidence and surety, according to the trade reviews. The rise in general business now has been lifted to a level high enough to show its stability, it is said.

Increasing employment in the more active producing districts and the leading indexes show a quicker tempo in industrial activity which is too evident to be attributable to a seasonal advance.

Dun & Bradstreet's, Inc., says in part:

"In no week during the last three years have the reports covering most lines of productive and distributive activity contained so many evidences of consistent improvement, with more pronounced gains in prospect as the credit expansion program, now functioning, releases fresh funds to industrial and commercial channels.

More Employment Reported.

"Reports of steadily increasing employment continue to be received from centers devoted to the production of steel and allied products, automobiles, textiles, rubber goods, shoes and leather, lumber, and the essential supplies of the brewing industry.

"At many of these points, manufacturers not only have restored previous reductions made in wage scales but have raised the average level above that of a year ago. The employment gains appear not to be confined to any particular section, as the nation-wide average shows more jobs available than in any one week during the last two years.

Industrial Expansion Shown.

"The course of the leading indexes is indicative of the quicker tempo of industrial activity, which now has become too accentuated to be attributed merely to a seasonal rise. Automobile output has risen to a two year peak, steel operations have been advanced for the eighth consecutive week, and electric light and power production has continued its contra-seasonal rise for the third week, extending well above the line of last year's record."

STOCKS WHIRL UP ON CURRENCY REVISION PLANS

Gold Mining, Alcohol Issues Soar.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 26.—The stock market anticipated formal announcement of the administration's plans to "legislate" the country off the gold standard by a fresh outburst of speculation for the rise today.

Extreme gains ran as high as 17 and 18 points. Group leaders mounted 3 and 4 points in a body, and markups of from 1 to 3 points were numerous. The volume of trading expanded to about 4,350,000 shares.

Overnight news of the reduction of the bank rate here and publication of figures showing the beginning of open market operations by the reserve as the first move of the administration's credit expansion program were stimulating influences. Week-end trade reviews continued to reflect a steady improvement in general business conditions.

Morgan Lists Grew Thorns with Roses

Being on the Morgan favored list for stock subscriptions may have been a sweet experience for politicians and others not associated with banking operations, but according to Chicagoans who say they speak from experience there were thorns with the roses for those in the banking business.

"When attractive participations were offered," says one Chicagoan, "it was pleasant to be on the Morgan list, but when something sour came along it wasn't so good. The Chicago banker whose name was on the list simply got word that Kingdom of Bumgravia 5s were being put out; that his participation would be so much, and that he should pay on the line."

American exporters are hopeful that the nation's representatives at the forthcoming London economic conference will be able to clear up a number of situations which are detrimental to our trade. They cite as an example a South African situation. Apparently the British dominion on that continent has a tariff which is not excessive and therefore it might lull our tariff framers. The catch lies in the fact that railroad freight rates on imported goods going into the interior are six or seven times the rates charged for domestic goods.

*

"What's a landlord going to do?" the owner of a hotel remarked the other day. "When we set rates for our rooms some receiver on a nearby street cuts his charges almost to nothing. He doesn't care particularly, so long as he fills his rooms. But the rest of us are having a terrible time trying to make both ends meet under that kind of competition."

Robert B. Umberger, vice president of the Personal Loan and Savings bank, reports a new bit of evidence of the improving business. Mr. Umberger is president of the Sunset Ridge Country club.

"It would be expected," he said, "that the general economics—a condition over which we have no control—would affect the club adversely. It happens, however, that we must have been favorably affected by the movements of the 'new deal,' because we have the unique distinction and satisfaction on our part of a completely filled roster of 300 members at this date, not a single man on the resigned list, and every man in perfectly good standing in payment of his account."

"I have been following with a great deal of enjoyment," he adds, "the squibs which THE TRIBUNE is running in the financial section to indicate the perk-up of business and the human incidents lending color to the growing enthusiasm."

Report Plan to Combine U. S. Radio, Grunow Corp.

Merger of the United States Radio and Television corporation with the Grunow corporation is reported to be imminent. J. Clarke Coit, president of the former concern, admitted yesterday that merger negotiations are under way, but declined to name the other firm. Coit is slated to be chairman of the combined concern.

A seat on the Chicago Stock Exchange yesterday brought $6,500, up $1,500 from the last sale.

Home Building in Gain; Week's Total Is $6,562,300

The F. W. Dodge corporation says that in the week ended May 22 residential construction in states east of the Rockies accounted for $6,562,300 of the total for all classes, which amounted to $16,388,900. The daily average for this month's third week for residential building was slightly better than for the preceding fortnight, and there is an indication that the May total will exceed a year ago.

DOLLAR SAGS ON MISTAKEN IDEA OF NEW GOLD BILL

New York, May 26.—News of the introduction by Representative Steagall of an "administration" bill dealing with the gold clause in government and private obligations caused a rapid depreciation of the dollar in foreign exchange this afternoon.

The movement, it subsequently developed, was largely based on a misunderstanding of the bill which was represented in early reports as repealing the gold standard act. The dollar had been strong during the early part of the day, but when news of the bill was received in the financial district it cheapened quickly.

Sterling, which had dropped to $3.89⅞, compared with a closing price of $3.92 the previous day, rallied more than 4 cents to close at $3.94, up 2 cents net. The franc rose from 4.55½ cents to 4.58½ cents where it closed, up 1¾ points net. Guilders closed up 15 points at 46.80 cents, having rallied from a low of 46.57 cents; belgas came up from 16.09 cents to 16.18 cents, where they closed, 3 points higher on the day; Swiss francs rallied from 22.37 cents to 22.55 cents and closed up 7 points at 22.50 cents.

Other European exchanges were correspondingly strong. Marks gained 3 points net to 27.23 cents, and the Scandinavian currencies advanced with sterling.

UTILITY CENSOR IS MADE OFFICER OF MIDDLE WEST

George C. Mathews, chief examiner of the Wisconsin public service commission, has been named vice president of the Middle West Utilities, according to announcement made last night by Receivers Edward N. Hurley and Charles A. McCulloch.

The appointment was regarded as significant in financial quarters. Mr. Mathews for 22 years was a member of the commission, which at various times has been a thorn in the side of utility companies — particularly holding companies. It is an indication how far the management policy has changed since the Insull regime ended.

During the greater part of his service with the commission, Mr. Mathews was in charge of the statistical, rate, and accounting departments. Since 1925 he has been in charge of the blue sky division, which governs the issuance of utility securities. He is regarded as an authority on public utility rates and economics.

First All-Water Shipment of Flour Is Made to N. Y.

What is said to have been the first cargo of flour to be shipped from South Chicago to New York over an all-water route left yesterday from the Washburn Crosby company mills at 104th street and Calumet avenue. The shipment, which is being made in a scowboat owned by the Seaboard Great Lakes Steamship company, consists of 7,000 barrels, or 688 tons. The scowboat will travel via the Welland canal and the Hudson river. About 14 days will be required for the trip.

VARIED LINES OF TRADE SPEED UP TO FILL DEMAND

Call for Basic Commodities Quickens.

Textiles, boots and shoes, washing machines, lumber, oil, and steel were represented in the firms that yesterday reported a decisive quickening in their operations.

In the boot and shoe industry a heavy inflow of o[illegible] has gratified several manufa[illegible]rers and some factories are op[illegible] to capacity. A Fitch P[illegible] any survey indicates th[illegible] output of boots and sho[illegible] in the first four months [illegible] about 2¼ per cent under that for the like period of 1932, current production surpassed last year's and may raise the six months' aggregate above that for the corresponding period of 1932.

The largest volume of business in several years was being booked by clothing manufacturers at Rochester, N. Y., it was announced. "Soon after Memorial day all of the clothing factories here will be running at normal capacity," it was said.

Washing Machines Wanted.

At Peoria, Ill., the Altorfer Brothers company, manufacturers of washers and ironers, reports that orders have been so large that production has been extended to include one hundred per cent operation daily through a full six day week, and that the number of employés is the greatest since 1929. April business was 20 per cent better than March.

Such brisk business is stimulating the operations of the Crane company, Chicago, that J. B. Berryman, president of the local concern, and vice president of the board of its subsidiary, the Trenton, N. J. Potteries company, is planning to add more men to the pay roll. "So far there have been no very large orders, but there have been a vast number of small orders," he said.

Cement Plant Will Resume.

At Duluth, Minn., about 225 men will return to work at the Universal Portland Cement plant, when the company resumes operations next Thursday after a month's idleness.

G. G. Otto, general manager of the Alton Boxboard and Paper company at Alton, Ill., has ordered a 10 per cent salary increase, effective Sunday, for 300 employés. The raise will restore half of the cut made previously.

The National Cash Register company reports that domestic sales have advanced and that, in addition, foreign sales, bringing around one-half of the company's income, have expanded somewhat. The company attributes part of the gain in its business recently to legalization of beer, said Edward A. Deeds, chairman.

The Joseph Triner winery is far behind in meeting orders, it was stated yesterday, because bottle companies aren't abreast of the demand.

Raw Materials Sought.

Raw materials, too, are being energized by the new demand. Unfilled orders of the lumber industry, equivalent on May 20 to twenty days' average production, are the highest since 1930, reports the National Lumber Manufacturers' association.

The Daily Metal Trade observes that while automotive demand is holding up and a miscellaneous manufacturing demand for finished steel products is broadening, prospects for some improvement in railroad demand are more encouraging. The foundry trade is helping the pig iron market.

The South Penn Oil company announces a "slight increase" in demand for Pennsylvania crude oil, making larger stocks necessary.

HOUSE REBUFFS SENATE CHANGES IN BAN[illegible] BILL

Washington[illegible]26.—(AP)—The Glass-S[illegible] form bill was sent to [illegible]ay by the house, aft[illegible] senate amendment[illegible]

Dispatches [illegible]York said that the pro[illegible]guaranty of bank deposits th[illegible] a levy of one-half of 1 per cent on deposits of member banks of the federal reserve system has so alarmed bankers there that several of the most important state chartered members of the federal reserve are considering withdrawing from the system.

The bankers believe it is their duty to their own depositors, as well as to their stockholders, to withdraw from the reserve system if closer examination of the bill indicates that they would be compelled to use the deposits of their customers to make good losses sustained by customers in other banks less conservatively managed.

Columbia Pictures Shows 8% Increase in Earnings

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 26.—An increase of nearly 8 per cent in the earnings for the nine months ended March 25 over the corresponding period of the preceding year is shown in the report of Columbia Pictures corporation and its subsidiaries. Net profit amounted to $546,778, equivalent after dividend requirements on the preferred stock to about $3.02 a share on the common stock. This compares with net profit of $506,994, or $2.07 a share, for the nine months ended March 26, 1932.

HAY MARKET.

For the second successive day, there were no fresh arrivals of hay on the local team tracks; 1 car of wheat straw showed up. The market remains firm.

STOCKS WHIRL UP ON CURRENCY REVISION PLANS

Gold Mining and Alcohol Issues Provide Fireworks

has witnessed in many a day. Homestake Mining outdid itself with a perpendicular rise of 17¾ to a new high of 216¾. Alaska Juneau, McIntyre Porcupine and other mining issues were active and strong all day. American Metals advanced 3¾ and National Lead 6¾. Reports of prospects for early establishment of a gold market here helped to boom the yellow metal.

The so-called alcohol group was once more in fine fettle and National Distillers, Libbey-Owens Ford, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, and Crown Cork and Seal provided a new fireworks display by running ahead from 1 to 7 points or more. Buying orders, many of them for big blocks of shares, provided power for this group throughout the session. While all of these issues are in line to profit materially from repeal of the eighteenth amendment, which the street now believes to be assured, brokers report evidence of considerable pool activity in some of them.

Pools Reported Active.

Pools are also reported to be becoming increasingly active in various other descriptions lending themselves to easy manipulation when conditions are ripe for a further rise, as the trading fraternity thinks they are at present.

In the late trading the farm implements were brought forward—coincidentally with another rise in wheat—and J. I. Case was marked up 8% points in the most brisk kind of trading. International Harvester trailed with its accustomed bent, as did the small order issues, Sears-Roebuck and Montgomery Ward.

Railroad issues were strong and a few of them managed to break through their former highs, Atchison and Union Pacific being among those to accomplish the feat. A minor feature to attract attention was a rise of 22 points in New York and Harlem, an "odd lotter" of the group.

The session closed at 141, up 18 points on the day.

Specialties Are in Demand.

Many specialties enjoyed the whilom favor of speculators casting about for new shorts to conquer. Procter & Gamble was a favorite gamble for a while and Coca Cola spurted more than 4 points before it was dropped for some new "pet."

All the old line favorites were given a whirl. United States Steel, American Can, Consolidated Gas, General Motors, General Electric and Westinghouse got a boost of from 1 to 3 points on what the street calls "good" buying.

Tobaccos, motors and merchandise issues moved up with the crowd. The oils, however, found the going a bit heavy and losses were suffered by such old timers of the group as Atlantic Refining and Standard of Kansas. Standard of New Jersey and Houston Oil were up a point or so.

Stocks Soar in San Francisco.

San Francisco, Cal., May 26.—(AP)—Buying orders poured into the San Francisco Stock and Curb exchanges today after the eastern markets had closed, pushing many issues up above their New York final prices and giving the curb its biggest day since June 13, 1930. Stocks closed here virtually at their tops for the day.

Gold and other mining stocks led the industrials and other groups into higher ground. Here are some of the comparative closing prices:

HOGS REGAIN $5 AVERAGE WHEN DEADLOCK ENDS

Packer Buyers Fail to Get All They Need.

Hogs went suddenly forward in a flurry of activity yesterday as if a restraining leash had been parted. The deadlock between buyers and sellers that has overshadowed other events in the trade the last few days was broken and a deluge of buying orders was released in all divisions.

Prices bounded upward fully 10 to 15 cents and in places sales of good grades were 20 cents above the $4.90 selling at the close of the previous session. The general average price again reached the $5.00 line, making the highest figure since last Monday. Top sales advanced to $5.10.

The close was the highest point of the day and only 20 to 30 cents under the high day of the year. Competition between buyers waxed brisk as long as the meager supply on the market lasted, and it was evident at the close that none of the principal houses had managed to get all the hogs they needed.

Pork Trade Stronger.

More cheerful news from the fresh pork trade served to generate further enthusiasm among the smaller interests which have been a little skeptical of the sharp rise in hog prices during the last few weeks. Revived activity among these smaller houses is always an encouraging sign, traders contend, since it indicates that hogs are not losing money in a quick turnover at going quotations.

Closing hog quotations still were mostly 10 cents lower than a week ago, but about a third of the loss registered since the market established the new 1933 highs at the middle of last week has been recovered. The market shows mostly $1.25 advance compared with four weeks ago and is $2.10 to $2.20 above the low day of the winter.

Cattle Receipts Light.

The light run of cattle, totaling only 1,500, got good action at generally steady prices yesterday. Quality was very plain and nothing eligible to the top quotations arrived. The trade is carrying a nominal quotation of $7.50 for fancy yearling steers. The best available yesterday sold at $6.50. The bulk consisted of kinds selling at $5.25 to $5.75.

Good grades of steers are closing almost steady with a week ago, while others show losses of 25 to 40 cents. Cows are only slightly lower than a week ago, but butcher heifers and better grades of yearling stock have lost 15 to 35 cents since the high point of last week. Gains of 25 to 50 cents were made in calves yesterday, but the close still showed 50 cents loss compared with a week ago.

Lambs continued to drive toward higher prices. Yesterday's market was brisk and strong to 25 cents higher than Thursday, with top sales within 15 to 40 cents of the 1933 highs in the various divisions. Top wooled lambs to packers reached $7.10. Shorn stock sold up to $6.75, while, sorted native spring lambs brought $8.00 and new crop California offerings were sold at $7.75.

BUTTER AND EGGS LOWER

Under continued pressure, butter and egg futures eased slightly on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, butter closing ⅝@⅞c and eggs ¼@½c lower. New selling, particularly new hedging and liquidation continued in egg futures, but new buying and covering also continued strong. The market held within narrow limits throughout the session. Statistics remained bearish, but the news was not as strongly unfavorable as has been the case recently. Butter failed to gather material strength from favorable storage news, the four markets reporting 183,000 lbs less into storage than last year. The fact that the heavy production season is at hand has a tendency to make for a slightly bearish sentiment, although new buying remained fairly broad. Sales: Butter, 79 cars; eggs, 146 cars. Deliveries: Butter, 3 cars; eggs, 15 cars. Prices follow:

MARMON 8 SEDAN. 1929. It's the last word for beautiful appearance and sparkling performance. Has many costly extras. For today, $245.

FORD ROADSTER. 1932 Sport model with rumble seat and many nice extras. This is a snappy running car with nifty appearance. It's a wonderful roadster buy at $325.

AUBURN SEDAN. 1931 Free Wheeling 8 that we recommend as the outstanding Auburn purchase in Chicago. It performs as well as it did a new motor and the appearance is flawless; very fully equipped; spec. priced. $195.

PONTIAC COUPE. 1930 with wire wheels, side mounts, etc. It was driven very little and we gave it a thorough "going over" in our own shop. If you are figuring on spending $250 and up for a good coupe, you'll find this Pontiac is the very thing for $225

CHRYSLER COUPE. 1929 model 75 with spacious rumble seat and many extras; finished a smart cobalt blue. The lines are very trim and the motor has plenty of speed and power. It's a winner at $295.

HUDSON COUPE. 1929 sport model with rumble seat and very good rubber. The finish is bright and shiny and the upholstery appears unworn; dandy performance.. many extras. It is a steal at $245.

NASH 8 SEDAN. 1932 De Luxe model, with wire wheels, side mounts, etc. When we say this Nash looks and runs like new we really mean it. The finish sparkles and the upholstery looks entirely unused; motor is 100%. Only $785.

STUDEBAKER COUPE. 1931 Dictator 8 with roomy rumble seat. We claim that the finish, upholstery, tires and motor are like new, and you'll have to agree with us if you see and drive this car. For quick sale, $395.
